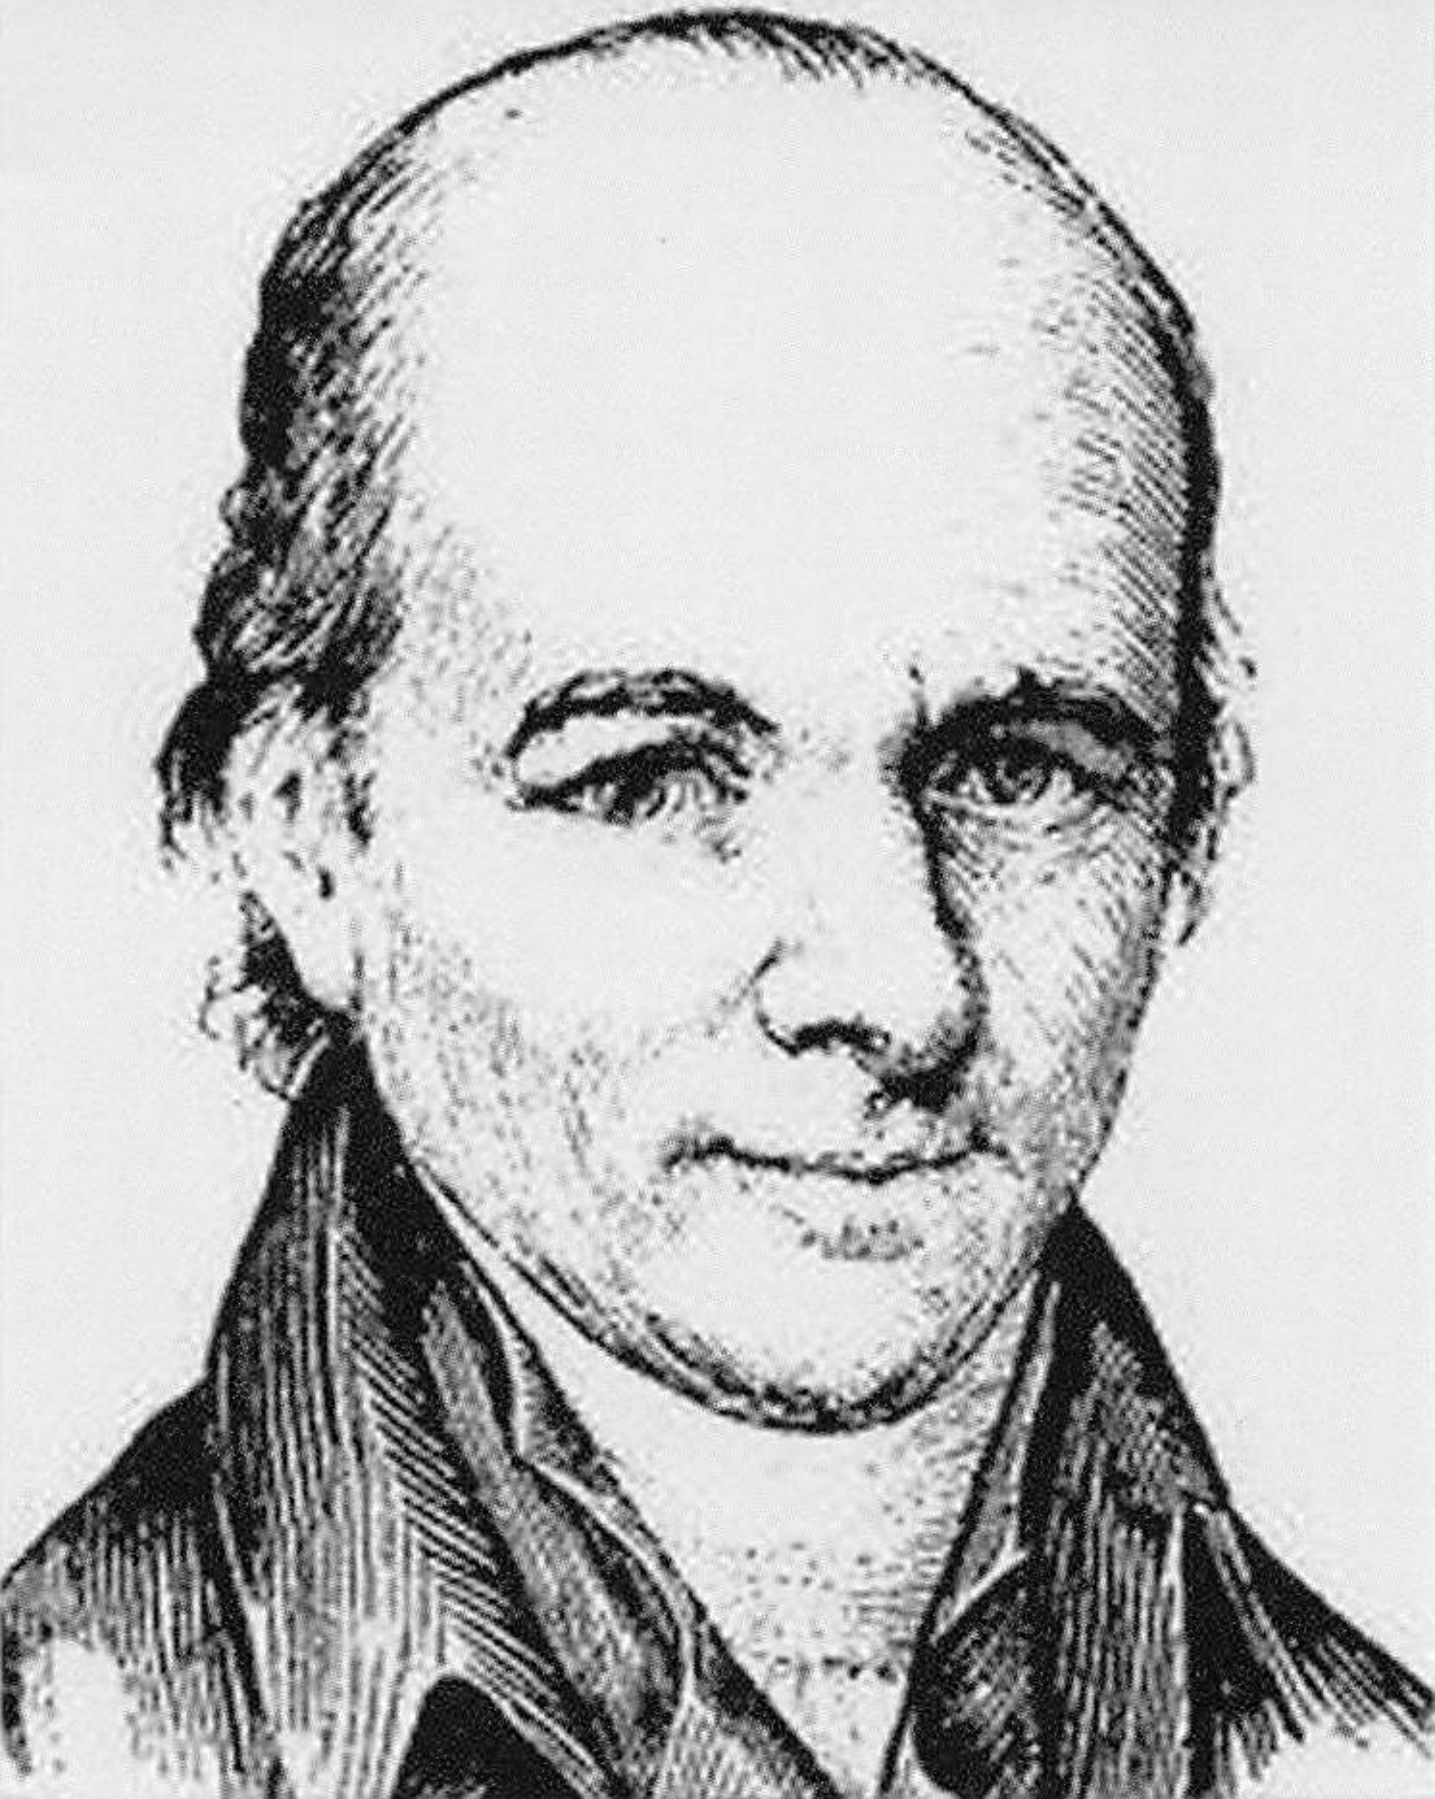
Ocmulgee National Monument



War Erupts in Indian Territory

British fur traders operated trading posts throughout the Southeast. The British also enslaved American Indians to work on Caribbean sugar plantations. The Yamassee War began in 1715 when the Creek, Yamassee, and other tribes protested and attacked hundreds of colonists. In retaliation, the British sent Col. James Moore and 300 Carolina men to stop the attacks.

To learn more, visit: www.nps.gov/ocmu

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE