The National Park Service celebrates 100 years of protecting and sharing America’s most treasured lands in 2016. As one of the nation’s 49 national heritage areas, Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor is proud to be part of the National Park family.

The Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor was created by an act of Congress in 2000. That year marked the 175th Anniversary of New York State’s creation and stewardship of the Erie Canal for commerce, transportation, and recreation. The Erie Canal, along with the Champlain, Oswego, and Cayuga-Seneca Canals established the network of waterways that connected the Atlantic Ocean with the Great Lakes, leading New York to become the “Empire State” and the Nation’s premier commercial and financial center.

The opening of the Erie Canal in 1825 was considered a supreme engineering feat. At the time of construction, the Erie Canal was the largest public works project ever undertaken by a state. It created critical transportation and commercial routes for people and goods that shaped the settlement and growth of New York and the nation.

Today, you can still travel along this waterway network from New York City to the Great Lakes and beyond. You can still see the engineering feats that earned the canal the reputation as the 8th Wonder of the World. And you can still find what makes the Empire State great.

Explore the Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor and discover the enduring legacy of New York’s canals!
Celebrate the National Park Service centennial right here in the Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor. Part bucket list, part challenge, our Top 10 list is a call to adventure and fun along 500 miles of waterway and trails. You don’t have to do all of these in a single year—put them on your list now for fun and adventure for years to come.

1 Cruise the Canal. Take a boat tour, skipper a canal boat, or explore the waterway in your own vessel. To get the full experience, get on the water in each of the four canals that comprise the NYS Canal System: the Erie, Cayuga-Seneca, Oswego, and Champlain Canals.

2 Lock Through. Get onboard a boat and experience one or all of the 57 locks along the canal system. For a more exhilarating ride, lock through in a kayak or canoe.

3 Cycle or Walk the Entire Erie Canalway Trail. Whether you hike or cycle the 365-mile trail from Buffalo to Albany, you’ll join the ranks of a growing number of End-to-Enders who are in for a big adventure and sense of accomplishment. You can also string together shorter segments to complete the journey.

4 Learn and Sing All of the Lyrics to Low Bridge Everybody Down. We’ll start you off: “I’ve got a mule and her name is Sal, fifteen miles on the Erie Canal.” You sang it as a child in school, now is your chance to sing it again.

5 Pick Your Own Fifteen Miles on the Erie Canal to Explore. Draw a 15 mile radius from any starting point along the canal. We guarantee you’ll find interesting historic and cultural sites, good food, and maybe even a surprise or two waiting around the next bend. Choose cycling or walking on the Erie Canalway Trail or take a Sunday drive for your 15-mile adventure.

6 Visit the Big Six: See the historic structures that earned the Erie Canal a reputation as the 8th Wonder of the World and led to the Erie Barge Canal designation as a National Historic District. Don’t miss the Waterford Flight; Lock 17, Little Falls; the dry docks at Chittenango Landing Canal Boat Museum, Chittenango; restored Nine Mile Creek Aqueduct, Camillus; the Lockport Flight; and the remains of the Schoharie, Montezuma, or Genesee Aqueducts.

7 Catch a Lift Bridge. There are 16 lift bridges along the Erie Canal in Western New York. Cross over on the pedestrian walkway when the lift bridge is up. You’ll get a broad view from above as boats pass under the bridge.

8 Discover “Hidden Gems.” Do a little exploring in canal towns and villages to discover local restaurants, unique shops, museums, world class art and architecture, nature preserves, beautiful murals, and other gems.

Past Is Present Along the Canal

Travel throughout the Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor and you’ll see that the past is very much present wherever you go. Growth and development from Albany to Buffalo was defined by the waterway and the diverse immigrant communities who worked and settled here. Look closer to discover the legacy of the canal across the state.

Sweet Spot
The next time you enjoy peppermint candy, think of Lyons on the Erie Canal. The fields and rolling hills around Lyons were once covered with peppermint plants. From 1841 to 1990, H.G. Hotchkiss Essential Oil Company crushed the leaves and refined especially pure peppermint oil. The oil was shipped around the globe and used to make food, candies, medicines, and perfumes.

Side by Side
Erie Canal traffic grew so rapidly that the original 1825 Lockport Flight had to be replaced with larger chambers by 1842. The row on the left was replaced in 1915 by the two massive chambers that are in service today.

Just Add Water
Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo and many of the smaller towns and villages along the canal were among the “boom towns” that sprung up or greatly expanded after the Erie Canal opened in 1825. The Erie Canal became affectionately known as the Mother of Cities.

A “Fair Port”
Described as a “fair port” by early canal travelers, Fairport still lives up to its name. The Erie Canal transformed Fairport from a marshy hamlet to a thriving commercial center. Farmers brought their produce here to be shipped to urban markets by canal and rail. Fairport’s canneries preserved local fruits and vegetables for their long journeys.
A Watery Past
The Erie Canal ran through downtown Utica until 1915, when it shifted to its present route north of the city. Oriskany Boulevard now runs on top of the old canal bed. You can still find traces of the city’s watery past in buildings and businesses that line the boulevard.

A Working Waterway
The canal system was built to carry cargo from the Great Lakes and Lake Champlain to the sea. The canal is still a working waterway, recreational resource, and scenic attraction. Look for tugs at canal festivals and working on the water today.

Worth its Weight
From 1850 to 1882, the Weighlock Building in Syracuse weighed, on average, four boats per hour, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Tolls collected paid for canal maintenance. The building has served as the Erie Canal Museum since 1962 and is the only remaining weighlock in the U.S.

A Big Lift
It once required five locks to lift or lower canal boats past Little Falls. Those were all replaced by today’s massive Lock E17. Lifting boats more than 40 feet, it was the tallest lock in the world when it opened in 1915.
Getting There is Half the Fun

Pack up the car for a drive or camping trip. Get closer to the water by boat or bike. Or use your own two feet. There are many fun ways to explore the Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor.

Become a “Canaller!”

What better way to experience America’s oldest continuously-operating canal than to get on the water! You can cruise in your own boat, take a boat tour, seek out an overnight excursion, or rent a self-skippered canal boat. The waterway is also great for kayaking and canoeing.

The New York Canal System includes four historic canals: the Erie, Champlain, Oswego and Cayuga-Seneca. Together, they create an inland waterway that spans 524-miles of upstate New York, connecting the Hudson River with Lake Champlain, Lake Ontario, Cayuga Lake, Seneca Lake, and Lake Erie via the Niagara River.

Canal travel offers a variety of scenery and experiences: cruising from village to village; traveling down dramatic rivers; navigating through towering locks; sampling local food and beverages. Canal towns are welcoming places. You’ll find dockside tie ups in many places where you can visit for a few hours or stay overnight. Many offer showers, restrooms, water, and electrical hook-ups, as well as information on places to eat, shop, and sight-see.

Boat launches are available in many locations, making it easy to enjoy the canal for a day or weekend excursion. You’ll need to purchase a pass from the NYS Canal Corporation to pass through a lock or under a lift bridge. You can purchase a Seasonal Pass, Ten-Day Pass or a Two-Day Pass online or in person at a number of locks and marinas throughout the canal system. To find out more, visit www.canals.ny.gov or call (518) 436-3055.

Did you know?

The New York Canal System is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.
Discover the Pleasure of Paddling

Load up your kayak, canoe or stand up paddle board and explore the waterway’s many treasures. You’ll be able to access all sorts of interesting canal sites and features that you can’t reach by car. There are 125 launch sites along the waterway and several boater-biker-hiker facilities that allow overnight camping at canal parks. Find them at www.canals.ny.gov/maps.

Going through a lock is one of the unique aspects of paddling on the canal. Paddlers follow the same procedures as larger boats, holding onto rope lines attached to the lock wall to secure the boat while the water level is raised or lowered. Locking through is free for paddlers.

Keep in Mind

Even though it is a canal, there is noticeable current in most places. Plan accordingly. If you plan to launch and end at the same place for a day trip, go upstream for the first leg. It makes getting back at the end of the day much easier.

Make safety a priority!

Whether boating, fishing, or swimming, Brookfield Renewable wants to remind you and your family to be safe, especially near hydroelectric facilities, as water conditions can change quickly and without notice.

Remember these important safety tips:

- Pay attention to your surroundings and to water levels
- Respect all signage and warning signals
- Stay a safe distance away from dams, buoys and barriers
- Always wear a properly sized life jacket
- Dress for the right weather conditions
- Keep your loved ones informed of your plans and destination
- Use designated boat ramps to launch your boat
- Never dive into water unless you know how deep it is; jumping feet first is strongly recommended

Hit the Trail

Enjoy great scenery, fascinating history, and unparalleled cycling on the Erie Canalway Trail. Extending 365 miles from Buffalo to Albany, the trail’s course alongside the historic Erie Canal makes cycling here truly unique. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, this living waterway adds distinctive flavor in the form of canal structures like locks and lift bridges, working tugs and other vessels, friendly vacationers in boats of all stripes, and canal communities that are intriguing and fun cycling destinations.

If you are new to the Erie Canalway Trail, try picking a segment to ride for an afternoon or day trip. You’ll quickly discover how easy it is to follow and how much there is to see and do along the way.

More than three-quarters of the trail is off-road and relatively flat. On-road segments are well marked, making it easy to ride longer distances. The trail is a perfect destination for those seeking cycling adventures. Weekend trips and multi-day excursions are easy to plan. Find online maps and information about trail guides on our website www.eriecanalway.org and at www.CycleTheErieCanal.com.

Along the Champlain Canal, short off-road trails are connected by on-road NY Bike Route 9. The Glens Falls Feeder Canal Trail is a nine-mile trail along the historic feeder canal from Fort Edward to Glens Falls that is well worth the trip. The trail passes the Five Combines, an intact series of five locks, on the Old Champlain Canal in Fort Edward, and connects with the Warren County Bikeway in Glens Falls for another nine miles to Lake George.

Passport to Your National Parks®

Record your visit to the Erie Canalway with special passport cancellation stamps available at selected cultural heritage sites. The free stamps are part of the Passport to Your National Parks® program, which enables visitors to collect stamps in a spiral-bound National Park Service Passport at national parks and NPS-affiliated areas nationwide. Look for stamp pads and stamps in each site’s visitor center, gift shop, or headquarters. The stamp lists the site and the date as a memento of your visit. A special Kids’ Passport® to Your National Parks Companion is also available from www.eparks.com/store or 1-877-628-7275.

History on the Highway

If you are traveling on the NYS Thruway between Albany and Buffalo be sure to stop at the newest rest areas. Westbound between Exit 28 Fultonville and Exit 29 Canajoharie is Lock 13, where you can purchase New York products and relax along a highly scenic part of the canal. Eastbound between Exit 41 Waterloo-Clyde and Exit 40 Weedsport-Auburn is the Erie Canal Heritage Park at Port Byron. The park features the impressive remains of 1853 Lock 52 of the Old Erie Canal. Future plans include a visitor center and access to the fully restored 1895 Erie House saloon and boarding house, mule barn, and blacksmith shop that once served both canal travelers and locals.
