Introductory Remarks

The following guide is a bibliography covering Philadelphia-area repositories housing material on Washington Square. While not comprehensive, I have attempted to describe the collections in as much detail as possible for future researchers. This bibliography was compiled in two parts under two separate contracts. Part I, the Preliminary Bibliography, was completed in May, 1998, and covered the American Philosophical Society, the Athenaeum, the Blockson Collection at Temple University, the City Archives of Philadelphia, the (Philadelphia) City Bureau of Property/Historical Commission, the Fairmount Park Commission, the Free Library of Philadelphia, the Library Company of Philadelphia, the Olmsted Center, and the Pennsylvania Historical Society. The Bibliography of Source Material, Part II, completed in May, 1999, covered the following collections: the CIGNA Archives, the CIGNA Museum, Dickinson College Special Collections, Haverford College Quaker Collections, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Penn Mutual Archives, the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution, Swarthmore College Friends Historical Library, and the Winterthur Museum and Library. In addition, I have included miscellaneous information such as on-line searchable databases and repositories, and material gleaned from CD-Roms. In order to make this document easier to use, I have combined these two bibliographies so that all repositories found within are listed alphabetically.

In many instances I have included partial or full transcriptions of certain materials that might be potential subjects for future research. The sources are organized by repository, material type, and chronology, except for books, which are arranged alphabetically by author's last name. The bracketed information contains the citations needed to retrieve each item at each repository. Where needed, I have also used brackets to indicate my own notations such as necessary clarifications; question marks indicate to illegible wording, questionable dates, or other aspects of the materials that are unclear.

Besides the places listed in the following pages, I have also checked other reference materials for entries on Washington Square. Poole's Index to Nineteenth-Century Periodical Literature contains no references to Washington Square in Philadelphia, but does have listings for articles on Philadelphia. These may possibly contain information on the square. I have not checked the twentieth-century volumes of the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature, which may contain more recent citations for Washington Square. I have also done a computer search on RLIN, the Research Libraries database, which turned up nothing that I have not already located at area repositories.

While the comprehensive nature of any work can never be certain, this bibliography is as thorough as possible given the access to repositories, reference materials, and on-line resources. The Historical Society of Pennsylvania, which reopens in August of 1999 after renovations, is the only promising location known to the author which has not been thoroughly mined for relevant materials.

When taken as a whole, the source materials in the various collections provide a fairly cohesive history of Washington Square as seen through visual documentation such as prints and photographs, manuscript materials, popular accounts from newspapers, books, and periodicals, in-house reports from company newsletters, and records found in annual reports.

However, there are two major parts of Washington Square's history that need to be clarified and/or confirmed. The first is the location of the thousands of bodies once interred at the site. It still remains unclear whether these bodies were really ever moved, and if so, where they found their final resting place. While archaeological investigations in areas of the site -- commissioned by the state in 1956 and more recently by the City of Philadelphia -- uncovered some human remains, the results are still inconclusive. It might be fruitful to check with area church archives for burial records, especially St. Thomas A.E. for African-American burials, and St. Joseph's for Catholic burials. Another possibility, suggested by Phil Lapsansky at the Library Company of Philadelphia, is that the bodies might have been moved near the University of Pennsylvania and what is now HUP, which was formerly the Blockley almshouse site. Jefferson Moak at the City Archives has also speculated that the bodies may have been moved to a West Philadelphia site, but does not know of an exact location.\footnote{The most recent study of Washington Square is: Crist, Thomas A.J., and Daniel G. Roberts of John Milner Associates. \textit{An Archeological Investigation of Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania}. 1996. This is located at the Library, Independence NHP, Philadelphia, PA.}

The other part of Washington Square's history that should be determined with more documentation is its role as a site for African-American gatherings throughout its history. There is some indication from City Council records that even from the late 1700s African-Americans gathered at the South East Square. Phil Lapsansky has also suggested this, and James Dallett mentions it in his book, information of which he has taken from Watson's \textit{Annals}. The Library Company of Philadelphia has the original manuscript versions of Watson's \textit{Annals}, and in these unedited volumes there may be more information about his specific sources for these remarks. This, then, ties into the issue of whether Washington Square was ever called "Congo Square" by African-Americans. Even though Charles Blockson states that it was in his book on African-American sites in Philadelphia, his original source for this has as yet not come to light. There was a confirmed and much celebrated Congo Square in New Orleans. A long-shot, contacting the historical society in New Orleans, just might determine whether they have records of other "Congo Squares" in the country. Whatever the outcome, the relationship of Washington Square to African-American culture should be clarified and established in more detail if an accurate history of the square is to be uncovered.

The APS houses an impressive collection of manuscript materials, but seemingly few related to people involved in Washington Square. A more thorough search through the card catalogue with a more extensive list of names might yield better results, as it is doubtful that all relevant papers are cross-referenced to Washington Square. The collection of printed material was not consulted, but might be a fruitful place to search as well. The curator of printed materials, Roy Goodman, mentioned the existence of some in-house indexes and databases that might lead to contemporary published articles.

Maps/Plans
- MAP. Map of Washington Square. Lithograph drawn by M. Schmitz, printed by T. Sinclair. [APS: 649.962 Schmitz, M, 1843 Sch17ws Large; photostat in FLP: Map Department]. Image size 25" x 34"; scale 30'=1"; bounded by Walnut Street and Locust Street, 6th Street and 7th Street - includes detailed visual depictions of individual trees, with botanical references listed for each, and their English translations.
  - two illustrative vignettes: iron fencing and gate; Washington Memorial
  - lower left reads: "The Botanical and English names of the Trees on this Map were collected with great care, and their position given by Patrick Kereven, Chief Gardener of Washington and Independence Squares." [Kereven listed as gardener in 1843 Philadelphia Directory]

  - image size 8 1/2" x 15 1/4"; n.d. [rec'd by APS, 1962]
  - detailed map of area bounded by Chestnut Street and Lombard Street, S. 8th Street, and the Delaware River
  - Washington Square Park area marked with buildings, trees, bushes in plan

Manuscript Material
- PETITION. Petition to improve Washington Square. [APS: Peale-Sellers Papers B/P31 ca. 1830] "That your memorialists have seen with great satisfaction the determination of your honorable bodies relative to the South East public square; particularly the enclosing of it entire, according to its patent boundaries, and the adoption of a plan for its improvement by walks and trees, so as to combine both beauty and usefulness, and tho as a late day to carry into effect the design of the enlightened founder of Philadelphia. The universal interest and approbation manifested on this subject by the citizens at large are sufficient evidence of the public wish, and it cannot be doubted that should the improvement be continued and completed in the manner proposed, this square will become an object highly creditable to the character of the city. Your memorialists having understood that the expense which may attend the execution of the proposed plan, is considered an obstacle to the immediate completion beg have to observe that in their opinion nothing to which the funds of the city are at this time applicable, can be considered as of equal importance, either in point of taste or extent of usefulness, and that most other objects ought to be viewed as secondary when compared with it. They therefore respectfully pray that the improvement of the said square may be completed as early as possible, and that an ordinance may be passed providing for its being kept in proper order and giving to it a suitable name."
They also beg have to suggest [sic] as connected with the improvement of the square, and as greatly to the convenience of the citizens generally, the propriety of paving the street on its southern and western sides."
- signed w/97 signatures
- appeal to the Committee on Property [?] to fix up Washington Square, put a fence around it, add walks and trees

1836. Aug. 10]
"Gentlemen,
The Committee on City Property has held a meeting this afternoon and are much dissatisfied at the very tardy manner in which the operations* at the Iron fence round Washington Square is progressing.
I was* obliged to put the Saddle on the right horse which All* around them to pass a Resolution that Unless you progressed* with all possibility patch in the acleariy* of the railing they would annull [sic] your contract and prosecute you for the damages, of which I am requested to notify you.

- "The City Property Committee threatens to sue unless the iron fence for Washington Square is put up at once."
Athenaeum
219 S. Sixth St.
Philadelphia, PA; 925-2688

The Athenaeum has an impressive variety of materials relating to Washington Square Park. Within the Vaux papers are a number of primary materials relating to the various early-nineteenth-century plantings in the square. Located on the square, the Athenaeum has a number of images relating to its own history and therefore which also record the development of the square. Most of these images were not consulted directly; rather, their descriptions are taken from the card catalogue cards. In addition, the Athenaeum houses the Washington Square Association Papers starting from the 1950s. According to Bruce Laverty, the Athenaeum will also continue to receive WSA papers in the future.

Manuscript Material

  - re: Sansom property, Chestnut Street to Walnut Street, 7th to 8th Streets
  - Are there any mortgages on this property?
  - gives dimensions of lots, describes buildings

  - re: Sansom property, Chestnut Street to Walnut Street, 7th to 8th Streets
  - lists any previous claims to property; establishes present title to Sansom as valid

  - "Resolved that a Joint Committee of two members of each Council be appointed to advise and assist the City Commissioners in the improvement of the Public Squares."
  - appointment of Vaux and Rush by Select Council; appointment of Watson and Garret by Common Council

  - "As some of your readers may not have examined the trees in the South East public square which are called 'paltry shrubs' by one of your correspondents, I beg leave to hand you the following list of the names and numbers of each kind already planted, and of some intended to be hereafter added --" [lists them - "Trees already planted" with quantities; number dead; number to be added]
  - "About 200 trees have been planted of which 61 or 62 are dead. Amongst the dead are all the hickorys and a considerable part of the Oaks. The larches have all been destroyed by an insect within the last month."
  - appointment of committee of two to "superintend the improvement of the South East Public Square"
  - appointment of Vaux and Wallace by Select Council; appointment of Stocker and Newcomb by Common Council

  - Five dollars in full.
  - for six trees delivered him in Potters' field for public use -- Daniel Hanes

  - 13 total

  - plea to create new walking, grassy place -- a park -- due to encroachment of city development on the foliage and trees; also acknowledges need for local park for "those classes whose occupation are mechanical or sedentary" and who cannot get transportation to outlying recreational areas, "to a distance from their ordinary dwellings."
  - also call to keep closed the streets running through the square
  - plea to pass the bill before the senate to protect the square as an open and public area free from through-traffic

  - offer by Harvey Elliott to supply Juniper trees at $.75 each if 12 are purchased, for planting in the public squares

  - response to "A Correspondent" who mentioned public squares, detailing and extolling the history of the South East Square
  - especially regarding the history of its being fenced, and whether it had allowed any through-traffic in the past
  - chronology of attempts to close 7th street, where it "cropped" the square
  - retelling of attempts to close the street and resistance to that closing
  - "There seems then to be no satisfactory evidence that streets were never regularly laid out through the public squares; but supposing that they had been so laid out, ought they not to be now closed, and the grounds improved, as places for exercise and recreation?"
  - weighing private interests favoring the road against public benefit

  - justification for not using Lombard popular or cottonwood
- list of trees, their botanical and English names, appropriate for the public squares (Washington Square not listed specifically)
- "The noble trees selected will afford sufficient shade, if put in the Squares in the course of the present and succeeding years, by the time they are required, and the growth of the two above mentioned [poplar, cottonwood] affords no argument in favor of planting them in public walks, when the inconvenience arising from their removal hereafter, and the injury they would do the other trees by impoverishing the grounds, are considered."
- provides rationale, considerations for choosing appropriate trees -- re: soils, digging, maintenance, planting considerations
- engages Bartram's to deliver required trees

  - "Delivered from Landreth"
  - number of trees, totaling 35

  - "Bought of Robert Carr" by G. Vaux
  - costs and numbers of trees

  - "Bought at Bartram's Gardens" by G. Vaux
  - 12 trees total
  - [on back]: "To be delivered to Mr. Gillespie at Potters' Field"

  - "Bought at Bartram's Gardens" by G. Vaux
  - 12 trees total
  - "To be delivered at Potters' Field"

  - [in margin]: "Note. The 'Washington Square' was improved according to the design of Grogan Bridport -- the gardener employed [---] Andrew Gillespie."
  - "Those marked D. are dead, not having succeeded after several successive plantings."
  - recorded which trees took; which ones didn't

  - "These may be had at Bartram."

  - Mr. Anthony Finley for George Vaux, Esq., bought of William Prince
- Isabella Grape; Isabella Grape cuttings; White Sweet Water; prices plus postage

  - May - Dec., 1816, Jan. - Aug., 1817
  - costs, 1816: City Commissioners for Labor Hands; Poulson's and Wm. Duane for advertising; Lawrence Harmstead for fence; J. Hallowell for layering [?]; B. Watson for lumber; George Peterson for bricks
  - costs, 1817: City Commissioners for Labor hands; Andrew Gillespie for planting trees; Lawrence Harmstead for fence; B. Watson for lumber; Levi Arnold for carpenter work; Robert Carr for trees; James Skevrett [spelling?] for ironwork.
  - total expenditures in 1816 - $2751.16; 1817 (to Aug. 1) - $2087.91

- BOOK EXCERPT: Chambers, W. Things as They Are in America. Philadelphia, 1854:
  - (p. 308): "Behind the old State-House is an enclosed space with rows of trees; no doubt an agreeable summer-lounge for the Hancock's, Washington's and Franklin's of revolutionary memory. Adjacent to the further extremity of the enclosure, is one of the few squares in the city, forming a lawn, with walks and seats, and prettily ornamented with trees. On visiting this spot, which is open to the public, I was amused by observing the tameness of a number of gray squirrels..." [ATH: photocopy, WSA Papers box 4, folder 4]

  - well-researched evolution of Washington Square Park from an architectural historian's point of view
  - useful bibliography of primary sources
  - good source for identifying important buildings and their inhabitants through time
  - "the city's Negro population came here about 1785 for camp meetings and to dance, 'speaking and singing in their native dialects.' as the annalist puts it" (p. 21).
  - also contains photo illus.: "Nos. 701-9 Walnut" [ATH]; "South Washington Square about 1890" [FLP]; "East Washington Square Below Locust" [ATH]; "aerial view" [ATH]; "Philadelphia Saving Fund Society" [FLP]; "Snow in Washington Square: 1965" [HABS].

  - puts development of Square in context with the rest of city development of the time
  - "Another proposal to establish a market in the 7th Street -- Little Seventh -- strip was defeated in 1811, as was a petition by the University of Pennsylvania to obtain the site for their new medical school" (n.p.).
  - collected historical poems

  - brief history of the Square; details its development around the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, beginning around 1952; description of the memorial
  - illustrations of Washington Square flags; explications of the flags' origins, meanings

  - "We have been asked to consider the question whether the Legislature of the State, with the sanction of the citizens of Philadelphia, can lawfully authorize the use of Washington square, as the site for the proposed public buildings" (p. 1). [legal opinion re: City's title to Washington Square]
  - "At the present time, as we have shown, the legal title to the square is in the city, in trust for some public use, limited or general" (p. 11).
  - gives brief legal history of Philadelphia's squares
  - approves erection of public buildings on Square
  - signed, Henry Wharton, Eli K. Price, Wm. L. Hirst, Geo. W. Biddle, R. C. McMurtrie

  - includes illustrations of Washington Square and its environs ca. 1940s- Athenaeum's relationship to its presence near Washington Square
  - its history as a pasture, then cemetery, then garden
  - (p. 10): "In 1831, the Horticultural Society noticed the square in its annual report: 'The whole is beautifully kept,' it said, 'and illuminated at night until ten o'clock, all showing the correct and liberal spirit of our city'."
  - (p. 10): "Lossing tells us that in 1860 Washington Square was the most beautiful promenade in the city."

Blockson Afro-Americana Collection
Temple University
Philadelphia, PA; 204-6632

In a published account of African-Americans in Philadelphia, Charles Blockson, the Blockson Collection compiler, wrote that African-Americans traditionally called Washington Square, "Congo Square." In an effort to find a documented source for this African-American tradition in the Blockson Collection, attempts were made to reach Charles Blockson, but with no success. Pursuing the question further, this writer consulted Phil Lapsansky, Chief of Reference and Curator of the Afro-Americana collection at the Library Company of Philadelphia. His research found no contemporary source referring to Washington Square as Congo Square. The only source for Congo Square may be oral tradition, a common means to preserve and pass on information in the African-American community.

James Dallett has mentioned in various publications (See esp. Dallett, Francis James. An Architectural View of Washington Square Park. Philadelphia, 1968.) that Washington Square was a regular gathering place for African-Americans in the last few decades of the eighteenth century. This information he gathered from Watson's Annals, which according to Phil Lapsansky is confirmed by looking at the City Council minutes, which express concern about gathering and potentially unruly crowds.
CIGNA Archives
Two Liberty Place
1601 Chestnut Street
Philadelphia, PA; 761-4901

CIGNA houses an impressive amount of material related to Philadelphia's history generally and to the history of insurance specifically. Leslie Simon was most helpful in accessing relevant materials, but cautioned that the CIGNA company's restructuring, happening as of June, 1999, leaves the future of archives accessibility uncertain.

Early fire insurance records list property addresses, descriptions, and owners who insured their premises against loss from fire. An examination of the first volume of these records found no listings for properties adjacent to Washington Square. (See pp. 21a-21d for fire insurance finding aid.) A name index that cross references these records should be consulted if property owners surrounding Washington Square are known for this time period, 1794-1805/1850.

CIGNA Museum
Two Liberty Place
1601 Chestnut Street
Philadelphia, PA; 761-4901

The CIGNA Museum contains prints, photographs, maps, three-dimensional models, and other material objects related to insurance generally and fire-fighting specifically. Nancy Powell, Registrar and Fine Arts Specialist, provided access. The Museum's collection is indexed primarily by artist's name in their "Historical Collection Index Cards," maintained until 1975; therefore, if specific cartographers, painters, or printmakers are known to have used Washington Square as a subject, these records should be consulted again by referencing specific creators' names. (See pages 22a-22c for photocopy of fireman's map and fact sheet.)

description: Complete title reads: "THIS NEW MAP OF THE CITY OF Philadelphia for the use of FIREMEN and others, is most respectfully dedicated to the Citizens and Members of the Engine & Hose Companies, By their humble Servant, John A. Paxton."

At bottom of map it reads "Entered according to Act of Congress."

Vignette labelled: "VIEW OF FAIR MOUNT WATER WORKS/Kneass, Young & Co. Sc."

Next to the vignette is a paragraph reading: "Fair Mount Water Works, were commenced in August 1812 and completed Septr. 7th. 1815. In the house are placed two Engines which work alternately, and raise the water about 98 feet from the river Schuylkill, to the reservoir, the reservoir covers near an Acre and a quarter of ground, its dimensions (sic) are 318 feet in length, 167 feet in width, and 10 feet 3 inches in depth, it contains 3264176 Gallons. The cost of the works including the pipes extended to the Centre Square is about 225000 dollars."

The map of Philadelphia shows street, pipes, fire houses, and hydrants. Streets are colored in yellow, greenswards in green, some items in red. Sky in top vignette is in blue.

To the right of the map is a diagram labeled "Interior construction of a Fire Plug". Parts are labelled: "A The handle of Valve screw. B The Valve screw. C The Saddle for the support of Valve Screw. D The Nosele [sic] of plug where the hose attaches. E The Valve Rod. F The drain or Frost Rod. G The Valve. H The pipe of Conduit."

"To open the Valve G which is represented shut, turn the hand screw A to the right. When the Valve G is open then shut the frost Rod F by dropping it.

To shut the Valve G which is represented open, turn the hand screw A to the left-When the Valve G is shut then raise the frost Rod F and tie it to the plug."

City Archives of Philadelphia
3101 Market St.
Philadelphia, PA; 686-1580

The City Archives has early Philadelphia Council Minutes. These are in huge volumes, hand-written, and mostly (except the first volumes) indexed in the rear, fairly completely. Jefferson Moak is most helpful in accessing relevant material here. The Archives possesses no Health Office records that indicate whether or not bodies from Washington Square were ever reinterred. Their Art Jury Files do not start until the late-1910s and so were not consulted.

[CAR: CNL8, Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 2 - Feb. 18, 1799 - Jan. 13, 1803]

- May 1, 1802: "The Memorial of Sundry Citizens soliciting Council to throw out thirty feet of the publick ground called Potters field on the South side of Walnut [Street], between 6th and 7th Streets and that two rows of Trees in addition to the one already there may be planted and the ground levelled so as to form a publick walk, was presented read and referred to Messrs. Bartram Thewell and Shoemaker" (p. 246). [CAR: CNL8, Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 2 - Feb. 18, 1799 - Jan. 13, 1803]

- May 13, 1802: "The Committee to whom was referred the Memorial of Sundry citizens [re: trees for Potters Field]. . . . made Report that they have viewed the ground attentively and obtained as much information as they could on the subject, that they believe that publick walks are highly necessary in a large City, a they are conducive to the health, convenience and innocent recreation of the Inhabitants; that there are fewer places of this kind in this City than perhaps in any other of the same magnitude and that every improvement of the above nature that can be conveniently made should be encouraged. They are therefore of opinion that the prayer of the petitioners is reasonable and ought to be granted. That they are further of opinion that it would be advisable to extend the walk contemplated by removing the fence on the west side of sixth street five feet within the row of Trees; by planting another row Trees [sic] on sixth street; by totally removing the wooden building used by the City Commissioners from their present situation to the Corner of seventh street and the horse market; and by rounding the Corner of the ground at Walnut Street and sixth street, by describing a curve from two points equi-distant from the corner; and not exceeding one hundred feet each way. Your Committee therefore offer the following resolution vis Resolved by the Select and Common Councils that the City Commissioners be directed to lay out the above ground for a publick walk in manner and form as above described, provided that the whole be fenced from the street way, by a substantial railing to prevent the intrusion of horses and carriages and provided that the corporation of the City be not called upon for the expence thereof, but that it be defrayed by voluntary contribution, allowing however the part of Walnut street to be first completed provided the funds cannot be conveniently raised to do the whole at once -- which report was read and adopted. The Select Council concurred in the foregoing resolution" (p. 248-9). [CAR: CNL8, Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 2 - Feb. 18, 1799 - Jan. 13, 1803]

- June 10, 1802: "Resolved that a Committee be appointed to enquire whether any and if any, what regulations ought to be made respecting the paving of footways or fixing curb stones on any improved square when two thirds of the owners of property on such square shall have agreed that the same shall be paved or curb stones fixed thereon and respecting the levelling or filling up of any footway when two thirds of the footways on any square shall be properly levelled or filled up -- to report the bill or otherwise -- Mr. Bartram, Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Boehm were appointed to the Committee" (p. 254). [CAR: CNL8, Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 2 - Feb. 18, 1799 - Jan. 13, 1803]

- January 3, 1803: "A Petition from owners and occupiers of grounds between the Public square commonly called Potters field and Spruce street and between seventh and eighth streets was read representing that the grounds in their neighborhood are liable to be overflowed by heavy rains, and moreover retain the water Stagnant for a considerable time. They pray council to take their situation into consideration. On motion resolved that the foregoing Petition be referred to the Committee appointed to examine what Streets, Lanes and alleys ought to be paved in the current year" (p. 285). [CAR: CNL8, Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 2 - Feb. 18, 1799 - Jan. 13, 1803]

- April 2, 1803: "Resolved that such of the citizens as may find it convenient be permitted to deposit in the S.E. public square of the City any earth suitable for filling up the said square subject to the regulation and direction of the City Commissioners" (p. 14). [CAR: CNL9, Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 3 - Jan. 1803 - May 17, 1813]

- April 7, 1803: "Revolved that such of the citizens as may find it convenient be permitted to deposit in the S.E. public square of the City any earth suitable for filling up the said square subject to the regulation and direction of the City Commissioners" (p. 16). [CAR: CNL9, Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 3 - Jan. 1803 - May 17, 1813]

- April 16, 1803: "Resolved by the Select and Common Councils that no dirt shall hereafter be deposited in the S.E. public square of the City of Philadelphia" (p. 25). [CAR: CNL9, Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 3 - Jan. 1803 - May 17, 1813]

- January 18, 1804: "A petition was presented from sundry inhabitants praying that Councils would erect a Market House on a part of the South East public square to wit, between Seventh and little Seventh streets, and between Walnut and South Streets -- ordered to lie on the table" (p. 61). A search on the database Archives USA (http://archives.chadwyck.com/) showed that Dickinson College housed Eli K. Price papers related to the Fairmount Park Association. Jane Schroeder provided a manuscript register of the Price papers (see pages 35a-35c), a collection which should be consulted first-hand to ascertain their scope and content.

Andrea Gottschalk was most helpful in retrieving information about Washington Square Park. Their "Washington Square Folder" contains mostly typescript histories of the square which offer no significant new leads. However, the flat file of their map collection houses a number of maps and plans of the square (see list, page 38a), and some original Centennial plans. The engineering department has two plans of Washington Square, rendered in 1983.

Maps/Plans

  - scale 1" = 30'
  - approx. 3'x4'
  - aerial photo of park, showing pedestrians, benches, trees, adjacent buildings, parked cars, etc.

  - scale 1" = 30'
  - image size 8 1/2" x 11"
  - shows: trees, footpaths, catch basins, manholes, hydrants, light poles, fences, walls, sidewalk, security wall, water display, maintenance building, Tomb of the Unknown Soldiers, etc.
  - bounded by Walnut Street and Washington Square South, 6th Street and Washington Square West

Printed Materials: Books
  - brief history with illustrations; information on Walnut Street Prison

- TYPESCRIPT. "History of Washington Square"
  - General history, including: "The attempt to improve it [in the early 1800s] seems to have succeeded, for a committee of the Horticultural Society said of it after an inspection in 1831, that 'The whole is beautifully kept and well illuminated at night with reflecting lamps until ten o'clock, all showing the correct and liberal spirit of our city.'" [FPC: Washington Square Folder]

- TYPESCRIPT. History of Washington Square
  - General history, including this summary of the 1956 archeological findings: "Through accounts written during the Revolution Colonel Campbell was able to get a very accurate description of the graves. The burial pits were 30' by 20' and were dug along Walnut Street near Seventh [Street]. The pits were filled with coffins placed one on top of the other. Colonel Campbell and his party opened up a shaft about 8' by 4' and at a depth of 6' they found what was undoubtedly one of these burial pits." [FPC: Washington Square Folder]

- TYPESCRIPT. "National Register Thematic Group Nomination" n.d.
  - Includes brief sections on "Geographical Data"; "Description"; "Significance" (including the University of Pennsylvania's 1805 attempt to build on it, 1870s attempt to build City Hall there [according to Mark Lloyd, Archivist at the UPenn Archives, there is no record of this; Washington Square Park may have been one of a number of possible locations UPenn was considering for building]) [FPC: Washington Square Folder]

Free Library of Philadelphia
Logan Square
Philadelphia, PA
Map Collection: 686-5397; Print and Picture Dept.: 686-5405; Social History Dept.: 686-5396

The Free Library has a few very important collections. The Map Department houses a number of Washington Square plans and maps from the eighteenth century to the present day. In addition, the Atlases of Philadelphia, beginning in the 1860s, all show Washington Square within the larger context of entire city region. The Social History Department has file folders on Washington Square and related topics. These contain mostly newspaper clippings and photographs from the 1920s to the present. Finally, the Print and Picture Department itself has a number of things on Washington Square. They have both circulating and non-circulating images (meaning, new/common and old/rare) of the square in all media, from lithographs to photographs. They also have image indexes that correspond with "Philadelphiana" scrapbooks, most notably the Castner and Kennedy scrapbooks. These indexes provide references to the appropriate reel numbers of microfilm.

- UNIDENTIFIED CLIPPING. "Statue for Washington Grays." [no source, no date] [FLP: Castner Scrapbooks on microfilm. Reel 2, vol. 15, p. 52]
- "The monument in Washington Square, which is to be ornamented with a bronze figure of a typical member of the Washington Grays in their old uniform, has not been without its vicissitudes. Originally the granite shaft on a modest pedestal occupied the middle of Girard avenue on the east side of Broad street. It was erected in 1782 [sic]. About ten years ago, the market sheds in Girard avenue having been removed and the trolley company desiring to draw together its tracks, succeeded in having the monument, which is a memorial to the organization's members and officers who fell in the Civil War, removed.

    Washington Square was selected for several reasons, among them because it was on the west side of the square that the organization was mustered in at the outbreak of the Civil War, and from which time dates its change of character. The old monument was re-erected on a new base, because its old foundation was too low for its new position. It is not generally known that the monument occupies approximately the position of the corner-stone of the Washington Monument, which was laid with imposing ceremonies in the year 1833, the marble for the purpose having been dressed in the great Washington Centennial parade the year before. This corner-stone was a gift from the marble cutters of Philadelphia, and it was believed that before [-] enough money would be su[-] carry the project to completion. But nothing further in the matter seems to have been done, and nothing but the corner-stone remains."
Haverford College
Quaker and Special Collections
Haverford, PA; (610) 896-1161

Haverford Special Collections contains an extensive collection of George Vaux papers, organized in a finding aid called "The Vaux Collection of Correspondence and Documents, 1659-1914." A thorough search through this finding aid, which describes the contents of individual manuscripts, found no sources related to Vaux's involvement with Washington Square.
Historical Society of Pennsylvania
1300 Locust St.
Philadelphia, PA; 732-6200

The HSP is closed for research due to renovations. They tentatively plan to reopen around July, 1999. A cursory look at their card catalogue during phase I of this project revealed no manuscript material directly related to Washington Square. A search on the database Archives USA, however, showed that HSP has holdings for the Fairmount Park Commission located in their Albert Monroe Greenfield Collection. When HSP reopens to researchers, this collection should be consulted to determine the scope and content of papers related to Washington Square.
Library Company of Philadelphia
1314 Locust
Philadelphia, PA; 546-2465

The Library Company of Philadelphia's most useful materials for Washington Square are its Philadelphia-related scrapbooks originally compiled by Poulson. Photocopies of these found in the Reading Room are indexed and provide a number of nineteenth-century newspaper articles on Washington Square. In addition, they have a number of complete or near-complete runs of Philadelphia newspapers from the eighteenth through the mid-nineteenth century. A possible way to get more material on Washington Square is to browse these papers on or around certain important dates in the square's history. The Library Company also has an extensive collection of travel literature and histories of Philadelphia, which might contain accounts of visitors to Washington Square. Their Print Department had nothing on Washington Square specifically, but a researcher in the future could browse their card catalogue by street address for related images.

  - (pp. 186-7): "WASHINGTON SQUARE, Lies immediately Southwest of INDEPENDENCE SQUARE, having Sixth Street on its east side, and Walnut Street on its north side. This Square is entirely surrounded with a tall iron-railing, resting on heavy blocks of granite, and has principal entrances at each corner, through heavy iron gates, supported by blocks of marble. The Square can also be entered, by small gates on either of its four sides: It was at one time formerly, a sacred depository of the dead, and is now, one of the most ornamental spots in the City;--its walks, trees, shrubbery, &c. all preserved in high order, cannot fail to produce a most agreeable impression, especially in the summer and autumn. In the centre of this square, the foundation of a MONUMENT, in honor of the "FATHER of his COUNTRY" was laid, on the 22d of February, 1833. This important structure should not, be suffered to languish, especially as Funds have already been secured, to commence the Monument. Philadelphia, in which, WASHINGTON lived so many years, an ornament to the City, and whose principal acts, constituting him the first man, of all times, were here performed, and should never rest, until an enduring Monument of her gratitude, is erected."

  - brief history with illustrations; information on Walnut Street Prison
  - one chapter on Washington Square; information on contemporary plantings, including ginkgo; description of public houses

Printed Material: Articles
  - "Potter's Field' (now Washington square) was surrounded by a post and rail fence, where, in the midst of the 'silent dead,' stood a willow Tree and a vault wall."

  - "A Revery in Ancient Potter's Field": "The beautiful pleasure ground in Philadelphia known as the Washington Square, was in former times the public burial place, or potter's field. I have been told that after a heavy storm of rain, bones were sometimes seen protruding from the ground."
  - article contains poem of 26 stanzas about burials in Washington Square, and the spirits that might still live there

  - "Philadelphia: sights from a Steeple, No. III: Washington Square"
  - long article featuring description of square in spring and summer, its use as an 18th century African gathering place, and Revolutionary events, including its 1777 conversion to a public grave: "The sexton told me,' said John Adams in a letter dated April 13, 1777, 'that upwards of two thousand soldiers had been buried there, and by the appearance of the graves and trenches, it is most probable to me that he speaks within bounds'"
  - in 1793 opened as Potter's Field because of yellow fever (mentions that Charles Brockden Brown's Arthur Mervyn has a "vivid description" of it)
  - in 1836, the iron railing enclosure cost $38,201.00
  - in the 18th century, Potter's Field was leased to Joshua Carpenter for use as a pasture

  - "Beautiful Trees -- Six of a rare variety of shade-trees known as Rowan, or European mountain ash, have recently been planted in the Washington Square, and from their bearing a white blossom in clusters, already attract the notice of visitors. They renew their blossoms every month until September, when they give place to red berries. The trees in question were brought from Saratoga by David Paul Brown, Esq., who presented them the to Committee on City Property, and by their direction they were distributed among the various squares. Washington Square has a rich variety of trees both exotics and natives."

  [publ. in another paper, but "for Christian Observer," ]: "Reminiscences of Philadelphia" regarding "striking transformation" of Potter's Field: "The Potter's Field of our boyhood, a desolate, dreary spot, beneath whose soil. thousands of men have been hidden from the gaze of men, and the beautiful Washington Square, the delightful promenade of the aged and the young, from every part of the city. None can begin to realize the contrast, save those who saw the dismal original, and who knew its early history."

  - "Recollections of the Past," Frank Colliger: "Potter's Field, now Washington Square, was [---]en like a neglected common, surrounded by a dilapidated fence, and divided by Seventh Street; the western portion was used as a receptacle for cobble-stones, and other city materials. The ravine divided, diagonally, a portion of the [---]tern part, and drained the surrounding ground through an arch on Sixth street to the common [se]wer, which passed under the prison yard and also drained that establishment. The horse market, by John M. Irwin, was held on Locust street, at the rear of Potter's Field."

  - "Recollections of the Past," Frank Colliger: "Washington Square -- This now beautiful place for promenade, and the amusement and merry gambols of children, was originally an uneven-surfaced lot of ground, owned by the city corporation under the 'Patent' of William Penn, to be forever kept open for the uses and purposes it is now enjoyed. At first this square was rented out as a pasture lot; but in the course of time it became a cemetery or 'Potter's Field,' and thousands of bodies were buried there, especially during the prevalence of that terrible pestilence, the yellow fever, which prevailed throughout the city in the summer and autumn of the year 1793, when the ravages of the disease were so rapid and sweeping as to destroy the lives of upwards of four thousand people, and preclude separate graves and customary ceremonies of internment, and hence the victims of the plague were promiscuously entombed in deep trenches. The central part of the square was then occupied by a brick wall enclosure, about 20' square, in the area which were several tombless graves."

Olmsted Associates were hired to design improvements for Washington Square in the early-twentieth century. Coxey Toogood has photocopied the correspondence relating to this (obtained from the Library of Congress, microroll #228). In addition, Linda Genovese from the Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site has provided descriptions of plans in their collection in Massachusetts (see photocopies, pages 52a-52g). She seems to have provided information on everything they have, but if future correspondence is necessary, the original job number was #3825.

Olmsted Job #3825  Washington Square
Philadelphia City Plan Commission
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

Wendy A. Woloson
Independent Researcher
504 Woodland Terrace
Philadelphia, PA  19104

Dear Wendy:

In response to your request of April 15, the archives staff have searched the historic landscape design records of the Olmsted firm for information relating to Olmsted Job #3825 Washington Square, Philadelphia City Plan Commission in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

To date, 6 plans and drawings dated 1913 and 1 file folder of planting lists for Job #3825 are included in the Olmsted Archives. There is no evidence of photographs for this job. Enclosed is a copy of the plans inventory for your information. Further research will need to be conducted by the researcher to determine if additional relevant materials are included in the collection. Also, please contact me for copyright information should reference to Olmsted Archives source material be considered for publication.

The bulk of the Olmsted firm's correspondence predating 1950 was donated by the Olmsted firm to the Manuscripts Division of the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. Enclosed is a brief description of the Olmsted Papers and Olmsted Associates Records at LC. LC records indicate there is 1 file folder of correspondence dated 1913 for Job #3825 in the Olmsted Associates Records, Series B. LC records indicate there is additional correspondence for Job #3825 included in the file for Job #3325 John D. McIlhenny in Germantown, Pennsylvania. The Manuscript Division will provide copies on request. The telephone number is (202) 707-5387. Microfilm reels are also available through interlibrary loan.

The correspondence between the Olmsted firm and the client is often critical in clarifying the design intent and the extent of work which was carried out by the firm. Based on past experience, many researchers have found the correspondence invaluable in terms of explaining the nature of the firm's work.

Enclosed is an Olmsted Archives Access Policy for you to review.
Researchers need to submit requests for appointments in writing. If you need further assistance, please feel free to contact me at (617) 566-1689 x231. On behalf of the Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site, it has been a pleasure to assist you with your research.

Sincerely,

Linda C. Genovese
Supervisory Archivist

GUIDE to the Olmsted Papers and Records at the Library of Congress

Manuscript Division, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540-4780
Telephone (202) 707-5387

The Frederick Law Olmsted Papers and the Olmsted Associates Records are located in the Reading Room of the Manuscript Division in the Madison Building, Library of Congress. This newest Library of Congress building is at the northeastern corner of the intersection of First Street SE and Independence Avenue.

Frederick Law Olmsted Papers (60 microfilm reels). The papers have been microfilmed, and the Library of Congress has prepared a guide to them entitled, "Frederick Law Olmsted: A Register of his papers in the Library of Congress which is available in the Manuscript Reading Room. The papers span the years 1777 to 1952 and are divided roughly into four categories: Correspondence, which is arranged chronologically (reels 1-23); Subject, which is arranged topically by type of landscape design project (reels 24-41); Speeches and Writings (reels 41-47); and Miscellany (reels 48-51). Reels 52-60, containing many of the Olmsted papers, are also stored. The collection of microfilm was first deposited, have financial records (1855-1903), correspondence relating to Central Park, Louisville parks, Mount Royal, Niagara Falls Reservation, and the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893, as well as miscellaneous documents and writings. Individual reels of the papers, or the full set, may be purchased from the Library of Congress or ordered on interlibrary loan.

The Frederick Law Olmsted Papers editing project has prepared computerized correspondence, lists which also serve as guides to the Olmsted papers. The lists include all post-1865 letters to and from Olmsted as well as third-party letters. The lists contain the following information: sender; recipient; date of the letter; landscape design project with which it deals (by job number); repository, location (if the letter is located in the Olmsted papers), the reel and frame numbers (if any); and a letter code if Olmsted signed the letter in the name of the firm. The lists can be sorted and searched by any of the above fields.

Olmsted Associates Records. A register to the Olmsted Associates Records similar to that provided for the Olmsted papers can also be consulted in the Manuscript Reading Room. The Olmsted Associates Records span the years 1870 to 1950 and are the records of the Olmsted landscape architectural firm. They include correspondence, letterbooks, memoranda, reports, plans, specifications, lists, clippings, and other related material. The records are divided into eight series.

Series A: The Letterbooks, 1864-99 (75 Volumes). The letterbooks are bound copies of letters sent, chronologically arranged, and fully indexed by name of recipient. They contain business letters, cost estimates, planting procedures and instructions, and various requests for information. Some personal correspondence is occasionally found in the business material. From 1890 on, outgoing letters are filed in the Series B letterbooks. The index has faded so badly in the letterbooks through the years that it is virtually illegible. The indexes in the volumes have been microfilmed, and are on two reels, shelf number 1151, 18,274. They can be purchased, or ordered from the Library of Congress on interlibrary loan.

The Olmsted Papers editorial project has compiled a computerized list of all correspondence in the A series through August 22, 1995 (volume 41). This list gives the correspondent's name and the number of a series volumes with letters to that person. There is a separate entry for each design project about which the firm wrote a correspondent. The list may be sorted and searched alphabetically or by job number, producing either a list of all jobs with which a correspondent was involved, or an alphabetical listing of all correspondents for a particular job in the letterpress volumes. The researcher can then take this list of volumes and use the microfilmed indexes of the letterpress volumes to locate the page numbers for letters to a given correspondent.

Series B: Job Files, 1871-1950 (522 Containers). The files are arranged by job number and may range in size from one folder to over two hundred. The folders are stored in containers numbered 81-8523. Correspondence and other material for each job is arranged in rough chronological order. These files contain letters received and (after 1899) sent, as well as informal landscape designs and work arrangements, as well as notes, diagrams, and other printed matter.

There are two sets of indexes available for the job files. The first is a set of job books which serves as a numerical index. It includes all jobs undertaken by the firm for which job numbers were created, as well as jobs in which the firm was interested, created a job number, but did not perform any work. This list consists of photocopies and is located in container 81. The second index is a microfilm copy (shelf number M31.5.196) of the firm's index card for the job file and lists the jobs undertaken by the firm alphabetically, geographically, and by category. These microfilm indexes are all incomplete to some extent, and vary in completeness. The alphabetical index—reels 1 through 2—is the most complete: the geographical index, on reel 7, is nearly as complete, while the index arranged by category of work is incomplete and unreliable.

In the Manuscript Reading Room there are also two oversized volumes that are a copy of the master job book at the Olmsted National Historic Site in Brookline. These volumes list the projects undertaken by the firm, by job number. (A number of projects done by Frederick Law Olmsted, Sr. did not receive job numbers, but have been assigned numbers by the editors of the Olmsted Papers.)

For anyone seeking information about any of the firm's landscape design projects, Series A and B would probably be the most useful.

Series C: General Correspondence, 1864-95 (4 containers). The correspondence in this series is largely routine in nature. It contains work requests and comments about park and estate development.

Series D: Special Correspondence, 1874-99 (4 containers). Most of the correspondence in this series relates to landscaping of the World's Columbian Exposition. In addition, five letterbooks contain material relating to the US Capitol Grounds dated 1874-91.

Series E: Business Records, 1868-1950 (19 containers). This series contains reports of visits to job sites as well as monthly and quarterly reports, nursery orders, journals, ledgers. The material is arranged by type of record.

Series F: Scrapbooks and Albums, 1893-1917 (13 containers). This series contains bound newspaper clippings arranged by subject with a loose chronological arrangement within each volume. It also contains photograph albums.

Series G: Miscellany, 1890-1950 (2 containers). This series contains miscellaneous letters, letter fragments, resolutions, and deeds that are arranged by type of material or by subject.

Series H: Family Papers, 1868-1903 (9 containers). This series contains journals, account books, letterbooks, and family and personal letters. The material is grouped by type of material, with each group having either a complete chronological arrangement, or a combination alphabetical-chronological arrangement.

OLMSTED ARCHIVES ACCESS POLICY

The surviving records of the Olmsted firm are held primarily at the Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site and at the Library of Congress. Originally together in Brookline, these collections complement each other and are often best studied in tandem. The records document approximately 5,000 jobs conducted by the firm, beginning with the work of Frederick Law Olmsted, Senior in the 1860s and followed by that of his sons and successors until 1980.

The Archives of the Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site include an estimated 150,000 landscape architectural plans and drawings, 70,000 sheets of planting lists, 60,000 photographic prints, 30,000 photographic negatives, 12,000 lithographs, financial records, job correspondence, records and reports, and models relating to over 5,000 individual jobs which date from the 1860s to 1980. There are also study collections on urban design, landscape architecture, and the fine arts in general, and a reference collection of maps and atlases. The Library of Congress holds the bulk of the firm’s correspondence (see enclosure). The archival collection represents a rare continuity of work by a single professional office and reflects the history of the development of landscape architecture and environmental design in the United States.

We are currently in the process of a long-term inventory and paper conservation program which will gradually improve access to the full collection. Because processing of the collection has not been completed and many items are fragile, it may take the archives varying amounts of time to retrieve and prepare documents for research use. In some circumstances, items may require extensive inventorying and conservation treatment before they are accessible. Within the limitations stated above, we will make every effort possible to prepare materials requested for research use.

Scheduling Research Appointments

Requests for research appointments need to be submitted in writing, and we encourage you to do so as early as possible. Please direct your research requests to the Archivist, Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site, 99 Warren Street, Brookline, Massachusetts 02146. Requests should provide the researcher’s professional or academic affiliation, the scope and purpose of research, Olmsted job number, if known, client name at the time of the firm’s activity, project location, and any variants or additional information that can be provided would be most helpful.
We strongly suggest researchers consult other primary and secondary sources of information prior to requesting use of the Olmsted Archives. The information from these sources is often critical to interpreting the graphic materials in the Olmsted Archives. Space constraints limit the number of researchers during an appointment to three. Archival materials are noncirculating.

Reproduction Policy

The Olmsted Archives provides limited reprographic services. In order to minimize damage from light, handling and copy equipment, approval to copy and the selection of a copy process is at the discretion of the Archivist. We ask that researchers review the documents before requesting copies and be as selective as possible when choosing items to be reproduced. This is due to the large volume of research requests we receive as well as the fragile condition of the collection. Reproduction fees vary according to the size of the document and the type of copy format chosen. Researchers may photograph documents at the site if the condition of the document permits. Researchers must provide their own camera and film. Please notify the staff if you wish to photograph at the time of your request for an appointment.

Determination of copyright is the responsibility of the researcher. We request that the following credit line will be used:

September 1997
Penn Mutual Archives
Philadelphia, PA

George Koch is the contact person for the Penn Mutual Archives, and can be reached on Thursdays at (215) 956-7777. Discussions with him over the telephone revealed that many of the Penn Mutual materials related to the corporate history generally and to Washington Square specifically were destroyed in a fire. What remains is housed at the Athenaeum. Koch is continuing to check the miscellaneous archives not housed at the Athenaeum. As of May, 1999, he found the following items, and will continue to provide lists of newly accessible materials if and as they surface.

Manuscript Material
- MISCELLANEOUS CORRESPONDENCE. ca. 1980s, 1990s. Correspondence regarding fundraising efforts for the Square.

Articles, Clippings
- ARTICLES. From the Penn Mutual newsletter, Comradeship, regarding reopening of the Square.
  - June, 1957: cover story about the rededication, including photos
  - July/August, 1957: "Colorful Ceremony of Washington Square."

Miscellaneous Material
  - 3 pages of typescript.
Pennsylvania Horticultural Society
20th & Arch
Philadelphia, PA; 988-8772

It is unclear where the archives for the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society are located, if indeed they exist at all. The manuscript catalogue at the PHS contained no entries for Washington Square, or for any of the prominent people who were involved with its development. Another researcher might have better luck by trying more names, and by consulting the librarians once again, who themselves are not in agreement about the scope of their manuscript collection — it is still possible that materials might be there but for some reason inaccessible. They also have only a few Annual Reports for The City Parks Association (listed below). Other issues of these might contain articles about Washington Square.

Maps/Plans
  - diagram of trees planted, labeled, and lists corresponding to types of plants
  - all hand drawn, colored, and lettered

Printed Material: Books
  - Description of 18th century Southeast Square: "It is not very attractive, as it is a Potter's Field to which have been added the bodies of Revolutionary soldiers and even Acadians, and victims of the Yellow fever, buried in ditch-like graves. Some negroes and freemen, in their colorful costumes, are doing a Calypso in the center of the Square. Fortunately as it is not a Fair Day when they gather here in the thousands, we have the place pretty much to ourselves" (pp. 3-4).
  - description of Square and its transformation through time continues on subsequent pages

- ANNUAL REPORTS. The City Parks Association of Philadelphia.
  - listing of Washington Square Park and acreage: Ward 5, 6.9 acres: 1917, p. 31; 1922, p. 82; 1925, p. 58; 1926, p. 118; 1927-8, p. 87; 1928, p. 17. Also 1928, list of parks under jurisdiction of Fairmount Park Commission as of June 1, 1928. [PHS: Special Collections]
Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution
The Racquet Club, Suite 27
215 South 16th Street
Philadelphia, PA; 545-1888

Mark Frazier Lloyd, President of the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution, indicated that the PSSR is an organization distinct from the Sons of the Revolution, which has no direct relationship with Washington Square. The PSSR, however, has been involved with ceremonies both at Independence Hall and Washington Square. Lloyd states in e-mail correspondence that "The Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution... was deeply involved in the founding of the INHP in the 1940s. The Sons have also, since about 1969, held an annual patriotic ceremony every July Fourth on Independence Square. The Sons have held a ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier for only about a decade."

The PSSR has few archives sources on site. According to Martha Taylor, Office Manager of the PSSR, documents predating 1994 are located at the Pierce Leahey Archives in Sharon Hill, PA, and therefore inaccessible. Consulting these documents may clarify the PSSR's involvement with Washington Square, although the PSSR's complete holdings of their annual proceedings provides a great deal of information about the ceremonies held at Washington Square and Independence Hall.

Documents
- FILE. "Washington Square Association"

- FILE. "Independence Hall Preservation Fund"

Annual Proceedings of the Society (PSSR has 1916/1917, 1921 - present)
- 1969/1970: "This Society will do its part in kindling the slow burning fires of patriotism this coming Fourth of July. Your Board of Managers at a recent meeting resolved that this year the Rededication Ceremony, which is held annually at Independence Hall on July 4th, will be sponsored by this society." (p. 35)

- 1970/1971: mention of last year's rededication ceremonies, organizers

- 1971/1972: "Plans are now being made for the 1971 celebration. You are all invited to Independence Hall on Sunday, July 4th at 1:30 P.M." (p. 33)

- 1972/1973: rededication program, entitled "Operation Patriotism"; includes contents of speech, participants, etc.

- 1976: mention of July 4th observance at Independence Hall and remarks at ceremony
- 1977: bell ringing ceremony and speech at Independence Hall

- 1978-1986: July 4th Address at Independence Hall

- 1987: July 4th Address at Independence Hall; "Resolution to Incorporate Washington Square in INHP" proposed by the board of managers (p. 49)

- 1992-1994: July 4th Address at Independence Hall; Wreath Laying Ceremony at Washington Square

- 1995: July 4th Address at Independence Hall

- 1996: July 4th Address at Independence Hall; no Wreath Laying Ceremony speech included, but Proceedings stated that it happened

- 1997: July 4th Address at Independence Hall

Swarthmore College
Friends Historical Library
500 College Avenue
Swarthmore, PA; 328-8496

The Friends Historical Library contains manuscript material related to hundreds of Quaker families. The card catalogue was consulted for documents related to the Quakers involved with Washington Square, particularly George Vaux and Eli K. Price. There were no relevant Vaux papers and the Price papers were from the collection of the elder Price, not the one who was with the Fairmount Park Commission.
Winterthur Museum and Library
Manuscript Collection
Winterthur, DE; (302) 888-4600

Winterthur's Edwin Brumbaugh Collection contains a number of drawings, maps, plans, and studies related to the renovation of Washington Square proposed by the architect in the late 1950s. These items provide intricate details of the designs for the Memorial to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier as well as information about other aspects of Washington Square. (See pages 62a-62c for list of items in the collection.)

Miscellaneous Newspaper Articles

The following articles were obtained using CD-ROM indexes at the University of Pennsylvania. Washington Square was referred to by a number of things; therefore, it is necessary to use various search terms to find relevant articles: South East, Southeast, Potters, Strangers, Burial, Burying, etc.

Pennsylvania Gazette
- semi-weekly mention of city burial grounds (until early 1733), including "Strangers Burying Grounds"; some list statistics of number of people buried per week; other issues merely mention that people were buried, but do not break it down by individual cemetery

* Mention of Strangers Burying Ground, but no individual statistics provided.
- PENNSYLVANIA GAZETTE Nov. 12, 1741:
  "On Saturday last John Bullock was executed here according to Sentence, for the Murder of his Wife. He was privately, tho' decently, bury'd, by his Friends, the same Evening, in the Strangers Burying Ground."

- PENNSYLVANIA GAZETTE March 31, 1763; Nov. 16, 1769; Dec. 14, 1769; Nov. 14, 1771; Dec. 2, 1772; Feb. 23, 1774:
  "Level of Seventh Street, From High Street to Strangers Burying Ground, Eighteen Feet."

- PENNSYLVANIA GAZETTE Sept. 26, 1765 re: public lectures on medicine and anatomy:
  It has given Dr. Shippen much Pain to hear, that notwithstanding all the Caution and Care he has taken, to preserve the utmost Decency in opening and dissecting dead Bodies, which he had persevered in, chiefly from the Motive of being useful to Mankind, some evil minded Persons, whither wantonly or maliciously, have reported to his Disadvantage, that he has taken up some Persons who were buried in the Church Burying Ground, which has distressed the Minds of some of his worthy Fellow Citizens. ---- The Doctor, with much Pleasure, improves This Opportunity to declare, that the Report is absolutely false; and to assure them, that the Bodies he dissected, were either of Persons who had willfully murdered themselves, or were publicly executed, except now and then one from the Potters Field, whose Death was owing to some particular Disease; and that he never had one Body from the Church, or any other private Burial Place.

- PENNSYLVANIA GAZETTE May 8, 1766:
  The public are hereby informed, that the public Burial Ground of this City, known by the Name of the Potters Field, and which was heretofore under the care of Mr. Jacob Shoemaker, sen., is now under the care of the Subscriber, living in Spruce street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, where all Sorts of Joyners Work is done, and a Hearse and all Things necessary for Funerals provided by JOSEPH CARPENTER.

- PENNSYLVANIA PACKET Oct. 6, 1778:
  TO THE PUBLIC. IMPRUDENTLY giving my personal attendance as one of the mourners when the body of James Molesworth was removed from the Potter's Field to the Quaker's burial ground, at the time the British army possessed this city, arose not from any party matter, nor particular respect for said Molesworth, but solely to gratify the earnest desire of a young woman nearly allied in kindred, which after much persuasion for many months that he might remain in said Potter's field, could not prevail with her. Therefore being considered as one of the principals in the said removal, and desirous of satisfying the minds of all concerned, do make this public declaration and condemnation of the measure; desiring that my fellow citizens may receive this as a full compensation for the aforesaid fault; and assure them that the body of said Molesworth, on the seventh of September last in the morning, was removed from the Quakers burial ground to the Potter's Field, where it formerly lay. -- Tho. Harrison
  N.B. The above publication should have appeared sooner, had not some obstructions in obtaining a certificate from the proper persons who saw the body removed, prevented it.
  Any persons having any doubts concerning the above facts, for further information are desired to call at Isaiah Bell's, who will shew them the grave where Molesworth lay, it being left open for that purpose.
- NILES REGISTER vol. 28, May 21, 1825, p. 178: "The several squares in this city [Phil.] are hereafter to be known by the following names -- Logan, Rittenhouse, Penn, Franklin, Washington, and Independence."
Miscellaneous Sources

Databases
More and more computer-accessible databases contain citations for historical items and collections. Many of these were consulted, with some being more fruitful than others.

- ARCHIVES USA (http://archives.chadwyck.com/). Similar to NUCMC, this subscription database lists archival sources from around the country and can be searched by keywords, proper names, and subjects. Searches performed on the terms "Washington Square," "George Vaux," and "Eli Price" located the collection at Dickinson College (see page 41).

- THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS AMERICAN MEMORY, HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS FOR THE NATIONAL DIGITAL LIBRARY (http://lcweb2.loc.gov/amhome.html). This database, containing visual images, is searchable using a variety of search terms from broad subjects to individual names to geographical areas. A search on Washington Square found many sources related to New York City's Washington Square, and the following images of Philadelphia's Washington Square:
  - "Washington Square Area Study, Sixth, Seventh, Walnut and Locust Streets, Philadelphia, PA." No date [post-1933]
  - 9 black and white photos, 1 photo caption page
  - call number HABS, PA, 51-PHILA, 603-

- THE MAKING OF AMERICA (http://www.umdl.umich.edu/moa/). The Making of America consists of thousands of American books and periodicals dating from about 1800 through 1925. The pages of these texts, which include travel literature, advice manuals, works of fiction, and other writings that reflect American culture of the time, are scanned into the database and are searchable by individual word, so that specific words and search terms can be located within large volumes of writing. A search on Washington Square using the terms "Washington Square," "Potter's Field," and "Southeast Square" came up with the following citations:

  - Blair, Mrs. C.P. "Prosperio." The Ladies' Repository Feb. 1860, p. 101: John King, English Methodist, came to America from London in 1769. "He offered himself to the Church for license, but it hesitated. However, he determined to preach, and made an appointment in the Potter's Field, now Washington Square."

    - (p. 66): "Independence Square lies on the north side of Walnut street, between Fifth and Sixth [Streets]; and diagonally opposite, at the corner of Sixth, is Washington Square, both of which have been already described. This is a region of lawyers' and real estate agents' offices; a number of insurance office are also located here. On the corner of Walnut street and West Washington square is the handsome bank building of the Philadelphia Savings Fund Society, the first savings bank established in America."
    - (p. 98): "Immediately opposite the southern entrance to Washington Square is The First Presbyterian Church."

  - (p. 4): "Washington Square was once a 'Potter's Field.' Many soldiers, victims of the smallpox and camp fever, were buried here during the Revolution. The ground under the waving trees and springing grass, where the birds sing and the children play, is literally 'full of dead men's bones;' but the grass is no less green, the sunshine no less bright, on that account, and the dead sleep none the less peacefully, for the life above them."

  - (pp. 36-7): "Outside the railing of this [Washington] square, on a line with Seventh Street, is a stone fountain surmounted by an eagle standing on a globe, which is noteworthy as being the first of those benevolent structures in providing which the Philadelphia Fountain Society has already earned the gratitude of thousands of thirsty men and suffering beasts."

- Thorpe, T. B. "Bessie Black; or, The Undertaker's Courtship." Appleton's Journal August 7, 1869: 580-84.

  - (p. 581): "His [Mr. Hollowshell's, an undertaker] father had charge of Potter's-field, and he took such pride in his duties, that he resolutely dug a new grave for each pauper, where his predecessors used one grave for a dozen recipients. When the Potter's-field was finally abandoned as a burying-place, the ancient keeper as a favor was permitted by the city authorities to live in the old house among his tenants, where he quietly and pleasantly passed the latter days of his life. When the city authorities decided, however, to turn Potter's-field into Washington Square, they ordered that the remains of the paupers should be removed. This piece of vandalism the venerable grave-digger resented, and in his vexation -- died."
About the Author

Wendy Woloson received her Ph.D. in American Civilization from the University of Pennsylvania in 1999. She wrote her dissertation on the democratization of refined sugar in nineteenth-century America. It will be published under the title, "Refined Tastes: Sugar, Consumers, and Confectionery in Nineteenth-Century America," by the Johns Hopkins University Press in 2001.
