April 2014

Dear Colleagues,

Every day, I am reminded of the fundamental purpose and mission of the National Park Service. Few organizations benefit from such a clear, critical mission that is still relevant after almost 100 years. As the workforce and partners of the National Park Service, we are driven by this powerful mission. We are blessed with an incredible legacy of love, dedication, and devotion—love for our nation’s natural and cultural inheritance, dedication to its stewardship in perpetuity, and through this work, devotion to perpetuating a civil democratic society.

Every generation has its own set of challenges and opportunities in accomplishing this duty—and ours is no exception. We live in a time of exponential change that often feels chaotic and overwhelming. Climate change, globalization, rapidly changing technologies, economic instability, struggling educational systems, and polarized politics are a few issues swirling around us on a daily basis. Even children’s brains are developing differently due to their intensive use of technology.

We preserve park resources and values for the enjoyment, education and inspiration of this and future generations. Twenty-first-century learners have new needs and desires. Ninety-five percent of learning opportunities occur outside the classroom. Learning is highly personal and can happen anywhere, anytime. People want to engage in making meaning of the world around them. They demand interactive experiences and access to multiple sources of information. They also expect multiple opportunities to participate in decisions on the direction and scope of experiences in national parks and programs and in their communities. These challenges and changes, along with shrinking financial and personnel resources, require us to be highly strategic and make difficult choices in meeting the National Park Service mission.

How, in the face of large-scale change and new attitudes about learning, do we accomplish the mission so elegantly stated in the Organic Act? More importantly, how do we inspire others to be good stewards—to help? How do we contribute to modern society? The answers lie within each of us. As we enter the second century of the National Park Service, with all its challenges, fostering personal connections through active engagement and learning are the means by which we achieve our mission.

In the spirit of our founders, Steven Mather and Horace Albright, we are called to imagine new possibilities: We must pursue new directions in interpretation, education, and volunteerism; new approaches to solving problems collectively; novel ways to inspire and engage twenty-first-century learners; innovative methods to reveal meanings; additional sources of revenue; new strategies to connect our parks and programs to communities across our nation; and new ways to keep the National Park Service a vibrant, nimble, and effective organization.

I know this is possible because I have witnessed—in spite of the challenges we face, or perhaps because of the opportunities they present—brilliance throughout the National Park Service. You

*"[We] have no blueprints and no architect.
Only the ideals and principles for which the Park Service was created—to preserve, intact, the heritage we were bequeathed."*

Horace M. Albright, 1917

are responding with innovation, openness to new ideas, risk taking and ongoing learning, novel collaborations across organizational and disciplinary boundaries, sharing of power and authority with partners and audiences, and much more.

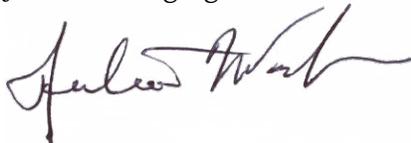

This strategic plan reflects thinking both within and outside the National Park Service—in many cases the parks and programs are leading the way. This plan is a tool for superintendents and program managers to scale-up innovation and inspire change, as well as a means for highlighting success stories in the field. The plan offers a vision for the future based on the best past efforts as well as the emerging trends, ideas, and effective work all across the fields of interpretation, education and volunteerism.

This plan provides a blueprint and strategies for the Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers program and how we will preserve the heritage bequeathed to us for protection.

The problems we face today are too complex to be solved in isolation. They require systems-thinking and the input of many good minds. True interdisciplinary collaboration requires sharing power and leveraging resources across disciplines and programs and with our partners. Indeed, it is through collaboration and working in concert with our partners that our generation will succeed in carrying out the National Park Service mission.

Together, we will ensure that parks are relevant to our children and their children, as a pact between generations. In the second century of the National Park Service, we will make choices that safely pass along our nation's natural and cultural heritage by inspiring the public to share in its stewardship in perpetuity. In the process, we can leave the world a better place. We can increase quality of life, help realize the vision of democracy, ensure that all Americans' stories are shared, improve education and health, and support environmental and institutional adaptation and resilience.

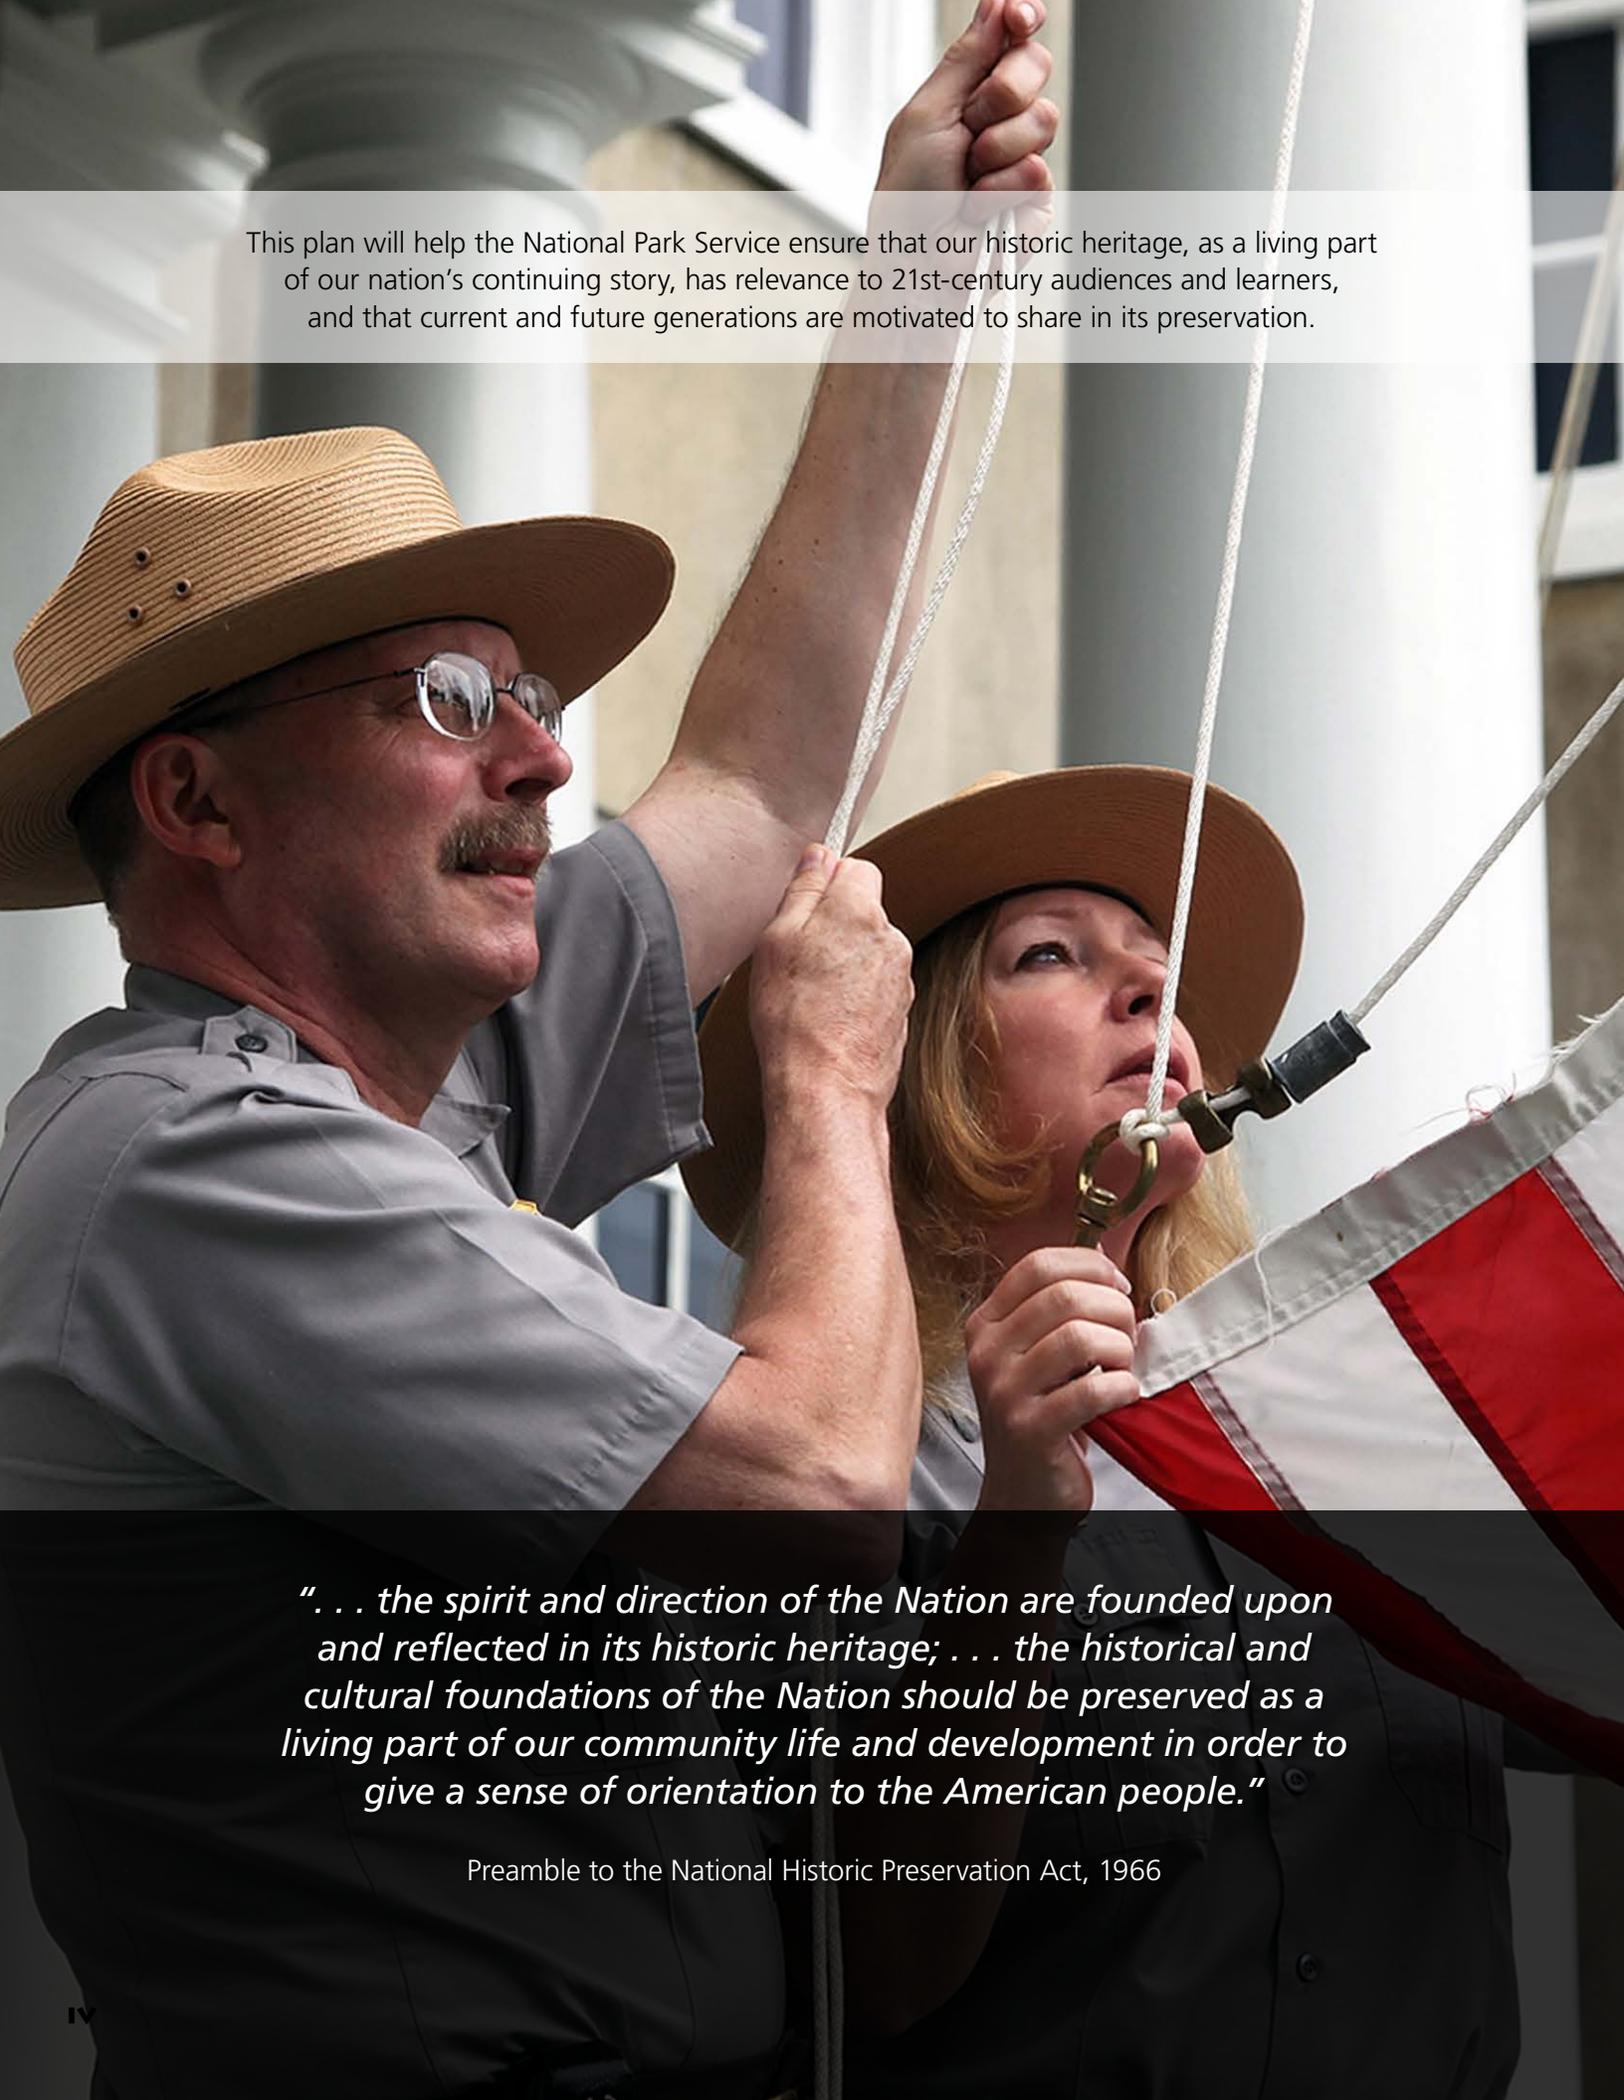

Join us in forging the future!

This plan will help the National Park Service ensure that our historic heritage, as a living part of our nation's continuing story, has relevance to 21st-century audiences and learners, and that current and future generations are motivated to share in its preservation.

“ . . . the spirit and direction of the Nation are founded upon and reflected in its historic heritage; . . . the historical and cultural foundations of the Nation should be preserved as a living part of our community life and development in order to give a sense of orientation to the American people.”

Engaging in

A CALL TO ACTION

The 2012 A Call to Action articulates an expansive vision for the role of the National Park Service (NPS) in society during its next century and identifies specific actions to move us toward that vision. This strategic plan provides a bridge between the vision and the actions. It examines how we can do our work in order to accomplish the A Call to Action vision and carry it into our next century.

This plan also builds on the foundation set in the 2006 Interpretation and Education Renaissance Action Plan, which emphasized five areas of focus: engaging all audiences, setting standards, embracing partners, creating a culture of evaluation, and using emerging technologies. Those “pillars” still stand, and relevant actions from that plan that were not completed are carried over into this strategy.

This strategy was developed during a time of momentous societal change. In addition, the economic downturn of the past few years necessitated painful budget cuts and a significant downsizing of our agency. In the face of staff reductions across the Service and the need to ensure continued high performance, the planning team made it a priority to reexamine the ways in which we meet the demands of stewarding NPS resources.

The purpose of our strategic planning process was to identify more effective ways of fulfilling our agency’s mission and adapting to our changed circumstances. Continued success requires strengthening our capacity for organizational learning and increasing our flexibility to respond quickly to new opportunities and challenges. It requires forward-thinking leaders and managers who align resources to priorities, inspire excellence, and reward innovation.

HOW THIS STRATEGIC PLAN WAS DEVELOPED

This plan is based on the thoughts and ideas of many. For two years, the Washington Office of Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers conducted listening sessions, met with internal stakeholders and partners, received ideas and recommendations from the National Leadership Council, National Park System Advisory Board Education Committee, National Interpretation and Education Leadership Council, and the National Education Council, and solicited input through review processes and planning meetings. It has been a rich conversation which has helped the Washington Office of Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers to articulate shared values, aspirations, and priorities for the future of our national parks.

The spirit of interdisciplinary collaboration is infused throughout this plan. While interpreters play a key role in engaging the public and inspiring them to stewardship, this work is done by many people within all National Park Service disciplines and programs and among partners, more numerous than NPS employees.

HOW TO USE THIS STRATEGIC PLAN

This plan is meant to be useful to everyone in the National Park Service who has an interest in increasing the relevance of parks. It is designed to provide guidance on setting priorities and helps us decide what to do more of, what to do less of, and what to do differently so that we can all move in the same direction as an organization toward common outcomes. The goals can and should be accomplished at all levels and within a variety of NPS programs and disciplines. The strategies provide high-impact approaches that many of us can work toward accomplishing.

Recommended actions are listed in our Action Plan on page 23 which identifies responsibilities at the local, regional, and national levels. However, any given park, program, or regional office should identify only a few actions that resonate and feel doable, and focus on those. In many cases, individuals, parks, programs, and regional offices are already practicing these strategies and actions. They may also choose to modify or develop additional actions and strategies to achieve the goals.

Successful implementation of this plan will rely on the creativity and innovative energy of NPS staff and volunteers in parks, regions, programs, and Washington, working with partners and collaborators. If we all take small steps toward common outcomes, we will help the Service adapt and be resilient in the face of change.

Note: Throughout this document, “parks” connotes not only the 401 units of the National Park System, but also programs, national heritage areas, affiliated areas, wild and scenic rivers, and national trails. The term “Service” refers not only to the employees, but also to the wide range of programs the National Park Service administers.

A group of diverse children and a National Park Service employee are huddled together outdoors. The employee, wearing a grey shirt and a wide-brimmed hat with "NATIONAL PARK SERVICE" written on it, is looking down at something in the center of their hands. The children, of various ethnicities and ages, are also looking down with interest. One child in the foreground has a blue t-shirt with "EMERALD MOUNTAIN" and "CALIFORNIA" visible. The background shows green grass.

Realizing

OUR VISION

The National Park Service is recognized as a valued and significant educator and a trusted interpreter of America's stories and heritage. All audiences have multiple opportunities for participatory, transformative experiences that promote stewardship and relevant, inclusive, and active learning.

OUTCOME ONE
RELEVANCE AND INCLUSION

The National Park Service facilitates thematic, inclusive, and inquiry-based interpretation.

WE FOSTER TRANSFORMATIVE EXPERIENCES that help people find meaning and make sense of issues that reflect the breadth of the country's natural and cultural resources and its peoples. We promote active engagement and memorable experiences in parks and communities. We provide opportunities that attract and engage new audiences, leverage existing and new partners, and consistently meet or exceed audience expectations for learning and visitor experiences.

GOAL 1A – Place events and park resources into national and global contexts.

STRATEGIES

- USE THE INTERDISCIPLINARY THEMATIC FRAMEWORK, park plans, and audience input to place meaningful stories, integrated natural and social systems, and pivotal issues in their greater contexts. (This framework will be available August 2014.)
- INTERPRET NATIONALLY RELEVANT thematic issues like women’s history, science literacy, Latino heritage, climate change, and civil rights in collaboration with cooperating associations and other partners.
- BROADEN THE THEMES of interpretation and education activities by incorporating advice of external advisors and professional societies (e.g., “Revisiting Leopold” report by National Park System Advisory Board Science Committee; “Imperiled Promise” report by Organization of American Historians).
- FOSTER COLLABORATION among interpreters, communicators, resource managers, scientists, scholars, and historians.
- USE AN INTERDISCIPLINARY APPROACH to harness the knowledge and skills of diverse staff (natural and cultural resource experts, law enforcement officers, economists, social scientists, etc.) to strengthen and enrich interpretation.

See Goal 1A Recommended Actions on page 24.

GOAL 1B – Ensure that National Park Service audience experiences are relevant, inclusive, active, and fun.

STRATEGIES

- EVALUATE INTERPRETIVE PROGRAMS AND PRODUCTS for their success at including diverse audiences, connecting to visitors' lives, inviting visitors to participate actively in learning.
- DESIGN INTERPRETIVE PROGRAMS that tell all Americans' stories, uncover buried stories, present multiple points of view, and encourage inquiry and civic dialog.
- INVITE VISITORS to tell their own stories, co-create knowledge about park resources, and share the meanings that they discover.
- IMPROVE THE ACCESSIBILITY of all interpretive programs and products.
- USE SOCIAL MEDIA, distance learning, electronic gaming, and other emerging technologies to encourage self-directed learning and to reach new audiences.
- USE SOCIAL SCIENCE RESEARCH to better understand our audiences and stay current on best practices in interpretation, education, and public engagement.

See Goal 1B Recommended Actions on page 25.

GOAL 1C – Transform the role of interpreter to be a facilitator of learning rather than just a giver of information.

STRATEGIES

- TRANSLATE CURRENT RESEARCH on learning and public engagement into interpretive practices.
- CREATE COMMUNITIES OF PRACTICE and enhance communication Servicewide about the purpose, methods, and goals of facilitated learning.
- USE INTERACTIVE INTERPRETIVE TECHNIQUES like facilitated dialog, social learning, and essential questions.
- TRAIN AND EQUIP staff, volunteers, and partners to use emerging technology that connects with youth and enables free-choice learning by ever-larger audiences.
- CHANGE how we use our time and plan our work to leverage the capacity of staff, volunteers, and partners to engage larger audiences.

See Goal 1C Recommended Actions on page 26.

A young girl with colorful beaded braids is looking up at a National Park Service ranger. The ranger is wearing a light-colored uniform with a patch that says "NATIONAL PARK SERVICE". The girl is wearing a blue and pink striped shirt with the word "pasture" visible. The scene is set outdoors at night, with warm lighting from a fire or lantern in the foreground.

OUTCOME TWO EDUCATIONAL LEADERSHIP

The National Park Service is a valued and significant educator.

WE ACCEPT AND FULLY EMBRACE our role as a critical contributor to America's educational ecosystem, ensuring that parks are places for formal education and free-choice lifelong learning that promotes personal and societal growth.

GOAL 2A – Establish the National Park Service as an educational institution and strengthen parks as places of learning that teach about our American heritage and develop civic engagement, scientific and historical literacy, and citizen stewardship.

STRATEGIES

- BRAND, PROMOTE, AND ADVANCE the National Park Service education mission and the role of informal education in America's ecosystem of learning.
- COLLABORATE with the National Park System Advisory Board Education Committee and informal learning organizations to promote and advance the NPS education mission.
- CAPITALIZE on the national agreements with the Department of Education and the Bureau of Indian Education.
- EQUIP National Park Service staff, volunteers, and partners in all disciplines to lead effective formal and informal education programs that develop civic engagement, scientific and historical literacy, and citizen stewardship.
- EXPAND interpretive and education programs and products to include explanations of how scientists and scholars conduct research and create knowledge.
- FULLY INTEGRATE Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers with the Department of Interior's Youth Initiative, including the goal to provide educational opportunities to at least 25 percent of the nation's K-12 population annually.

See Goal 2A Recommended Actions on page 27.

GOAL 2B – Collaborate with partners and other educational institutions to expand National Park Service education programs and the use of parks as places of learning.

STRATEGIES:

- INVEST IN AND SUPPORT CLASSROOM TEACHERS as National Park Service educators to leverage their talents and ability to reach additional students.
- GIVE PRIORITY TO TEACHER TRAINING to maximize the level of outreach and number of students who connect with national parks when limited resources require that choices be made between teacher training and student programming.
- PROMOTE PARTNERSHIPS with educators and education organizations to align National Park Service education programs with applicable local, state, and national standards, such as the Common Core Standards.
- USE AND ENHANCE the National Park Service Education Portal and a variety of educational technologies to support National Park place-based, distance learning.
- EXPLORE NEW NATIONAL AND REGIONAL-LEVEL PARTNERSHIPS that could help expand National Park Service educational programming, connect parks across the country through common themes, and increase the use of parks as places of learning.
- CREATE NEW AND INNOVATIVE WAYS to join with long-standing partners, e.g., cooperating associations and educational institutions, to leverage their resources and expertise.

See Goal 2B Recommended Actions on page 28.

GOAL 2C – Develop and nurture lifelong connections between the public and parks—especially for young people—through a continuum of engaging recreational, educational, volunteer, service, and work experiences.

STRATEGIES:

- WORK ACROSS DISCIPLINES to expand and integrate youth programs so that participants have access to a seamless continuum of experiences.
- PARTNER with healing organizations or programs, such as Wounded Warrior and cancer survivor groups, to increase the opportunity to build connections and promote parks as places of healing.
- PROMOTE cultural understanding and scientific and historical literacy through education programs, volunteerism, service learning, and internship opportunities.
- PRIORITIZE working with schools and organizations that reach a high percentage of students from underserved audiences.

See Goal 2C Recommended Actions on page 29.

OUTCOME THREE

ACTIVE ENGAGEMENT

The National Park Service works hand-in-hand with communities to engage people of all ages and backgrounds in meaningful and mutually beneficial volunteer opportunities.

WE FACILITATE active, meaningful volunteer and service opportunities that are highly effective in helping people form deep, personal connections to park and community resources. These connections lead to greater understanding of scientific and historical content and create active park stewards and greater engagement in communities. Volunteer service strengthens one's sense of national heritage and citizenship and encourages civic engagement. Young people who volunteer are more likely to finish school, develop jobs skills, and be contributing members of society.

GOAL 3A – Cultivate an organizational culture of stewardship and service within the larger context of national volunteerism efforts.

STRATEGIES:

- RECOGNIZE VOLUNTEERISM as an organizational strategy, rather than a program, integral to the function and success of the National Park Service.
- MAKE VOLUNTEERING A CORE STRATEGIC FUNCTION where all sectors of the National Park Service participate and find meaning in stewardship and service.
- FOSTER RELATIONSHIPS with other volunteer and nonprofit organizations to expand and share resources and materials broadly. Expand participation in local, national, and international volunteerism organizations and efforts.
- ADVOCATE for volunteers, volunteer managers/coordinators, and volunteerism at all levels.
- EMPHASIZE the importance of ethics and professionalism in relating to and working with volunteers.
- ESPOUSE SHARED ORGANIZATIONAL VALUES that support active engagement as a key outcome of the National Park Service mission.

See Goal 3A Recommended Actions on page 30.

GOAL 3B – Build capacity and sustainability for parks and programs through effective volunteer management, investments, partnerships, and program/professional development.

STRATEGIES:

- SUPPORT VOLUNTEER MANAGEMENT as a profession and promote and use systems and tools for accountability and communication.
- OPTIMIZE each park’s operational ability to develop a robust volunteer program through strategic investments in staff, funding, time, training and infrastructure.
- FOSTER RELATIONSHIPS with partner organizations to leverage funds, build capacity, and assist with volunteer management and leadership in new and creative ways.
- ENSURE that the volunteer program is fully integrated into the fabric of park and program operations through interdisciplinary collaboration to strengthen its impact and effectiveness Servicewide.
- PROVIDE professional development opportunities for volunteer coordinators and promote volunteer recognition to ensure a high level of excellence for volunteer programs.
- FULLY INTEGRATE the National Park Service Volunteers-In-Parks Program with the Department of Interior’s Youth and Service Initiative, including the goal to engage one million volunteers annually on public lands in four years.

See Goal 3B Recommended Actions on page 31.

GOAL 3C – Provide a range of engaging volunteer, service learning, and civic engagement opportunities that match the interests and skills/talents of volunteers, meet community needs, and are aligned with high priority National Park Service work goals.

STRATEGIES:

- TAKE INNOVATIVE AND CREATIVE STEPS to diversify the volunteer base. Recruit and engage new audiences in volunteer and service opportunities.
- BROADEN THE VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE and provide compelling and diverse volunteer, service learning, and civic engagement opportunities for volunteers of all ages.
- ENSURE that work performed by volunteers contributes to the National Park Service mission in meaningful ways.
- PROVIDE TANGIBLE BENEFITS to volunteers, communities, and society.
- HOLISTICALLY CONNECT volunteer and service opportunities for young people to other age-appropriate National Park Service programs that promote community engagement and outdoor recreation (play), learning and awareness of park values (learn), and employment and conservation careers (work).

See Goal 3C Recommended Actions on page 34.

OUTCOME FOUR BUSINESS ACUMEN

The Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers program employs excellent business practices to maximize and leverage resources.

IN ORDER TO ACCOMPLISH the preceding outcomes, we must use business acumen to ensure that programs are cost effective, leveraged, and data-driven. We make effective use of business models and systems, develop a diverse, well-trained and dedicated workforce, and establish effective communication networks. Decisions are based on the best available social science and evaluative data to ensure effective outcomes for audiences, the National Park Service, and collaborative partners.

GOAL 4A – Create a flexible and adaptive organizational culture that encourages innovation, collaboration, and entrepreneurship.

STRATEGIES:

- REGULARLY SEEK INPUT from Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers stakeholders and ensure that systems and practices reflect the diversity of needs and current trends.
- ENCOURAGE A CULTURE OF EVALUATION that routinely identifies creative and innovative strategies to problem solving and shares lessons learned across the Service.
- DEVELOP STRONG INTERDISCIPLINARY COLLABORATION between Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers, partners, and other National Park Service career fields at all levels.
- MODEL GOOD BUSINESS PRACTICES that have transparent processes and clearly defined work plans aligned with the five-year outlook and funding.
- FULLY INTEGRATE the National Park Service Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers program with the Department of the Interior Youth Initiative, including the goal to provide 100,000 work and training opportunities to young people over the next four years.

See Goal 4A Recommended Actions on page 36.

GOAL 4B – Modernize and streamline National Park Service business processes and systems.

STRATEGIES:

- ESTABLISH AND MAINTAIN a sustainable internal communications network for Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers. Use leading-edge technology to enhance communication at all levels of the organization.
- CREATE, COLLECT, AND USE EFFECTIVE MEASURES and standards for assessing qualitative and quantitative data on interpretation, education, and volunteer efforts Servicewide.
- TRANSFORM AND USE LONG-RANGE INTERPRETIVE PLANNING processes to incorporate and reflect trends, operational realities, audience research, and the new vision for Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers into services and programs Servicewide.
- DEVELOP new Indefinite Delivery/Indefinite Quantity contracts (IDIQs), cooperative agreements, and partnerships to bring additional resources to the interpretive planning effort. Modify current financial assistance mechanisms to make them easier to use in support of partnerships for Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers.
- INCREASE program managers' familiarity with National Park Service budget, project planning, and accountability systems to improve time management efficiency and maximize resources that support interpretation, education, and volunteers outcomes.

See Goal 4B Recommended Actions on page 38.

GOAL 4C – Actively support and train staff, volunteers, and partners from all disciplines who deliver Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers services and programs.

STRATEGIES:

- CARE FOR EMPLOYEES by embracing and prioritizing safety, health, and wellness.
- EMBRACE OUTSIDE SOURCES of learning and development so that we can focus internally on the training that we can best deliver and is aligned with the goals and outcomes of this strategy.
- ESTABLISH EFFECTIVE PROCESSES for assessing and addressing ongoing developmental needs for National Park Service interpreters, educators, volunteer coordinators, and supervisors. Ensure ongoing collaboration occurs among the various discipline-based training managers and functional areas in order to leverage impact and extent of offerings.
- COLLABORATE with Interpretation and Education partners who provide interpretive services and facilitate partners in the attainment of excellence.
- PROMOTE interdisciplinary learning and development through training, details, and other means to fully engage the full Service in enhancing the relevance of the National Park Service.

See Goal 4C Recommended Actions on page 40.

National Park Service
Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers

ACTION PLAN

The following pages offer recommended actions in support of the Achieving Relevance in Our Second Century strategic plan. This action plan identifies responsibilities at these levels: Washington Office (WASO), Regional Offices (Regions) National Park System units (Parks), and the National Council for Interpretation, Volunteers, and Education (NCfIVE). Individuals also are encouraged to offer innovative ideas for taking action.

OUTCOME ONE – RELEVANCE AND INCLUSION: The National Park Service facilitates thematic, inclusive, and inquiry-based interpretation.

GOAL 1A – Place events and park resources into national and global contexts.

ALL NPS

- Action 1A-1
Provide timely and relevant employee training in science literacy and climate change fluency.
- Action 1A-2
Model interdivisional and interdisciplinary collaboration and include such collaboration on annual work plans.
- Action 1A-3
Make regular use of Cooperative Ecosystem Studies Units (CESUs) and Research Learning Centers (RLCs) to access a broader research community and to connect interpreters, resource managers, scientists, and scholars.
- Action 1A-4
Foster development and exchange of ideas across disciplinary and divisional boundaries in support of interpretation and education.

WASO

- Action 1A-5
Develop a Servicewide Interdisciplinary Thematic Framework.
- Action 1A-6
Research, develop, and disseminate National Historic Landmark theme studies that are the core of the heritage initiatives.
- Action 1A-7
Embed interdivisional collaboration in Servicewide training programs.
- Action 1A-8
Identify and evaluate best practices of cross-divisional collaboration and provide resources and references to the field.
- Action 1A-9
Make interdisciplinary collaboration in support of interpretation, education, and public engagement a criterion for Servicewide funding calls.

REGIONS

- Action 1A-10
Support parks in developing broad and multidisciplinary interpretive themes for General Management Plans and foundational documents.
- Action 1A-11
Create regional strategies for integrating the emerging stories uncovered through broad thematic initiatives and support parks in telling those stories.
- Action 1A-12
Create accessibility teams to work with park-based interpreters and facility managers to improve accessibility.
- Action 1A-13
Engage CESU research coordinators to involve university partners in integrating current science and scholarship with interpretation, education, and public engagement.

PARKS

- Action 1A-14
Establish interdisciplinary teams to plan events, programs, products, and outreach.
- Action 1A-15
Review existing themes, programs, and media for universal concepts and interpretation that places resource meanings in a broad context.

INDIVIDUALS

Use this space to record your own ideas for taking action.

GOAL 1A RECOMMENDED ACTIONS

OUTCOME ONE – RELEVANCE AND INCLUSION: The National Park Service facilitates thematic, inclusive, and inquiry-based interpretation.

GOAL 1B – Ensure that National Park Service audience experiences are relevant, inclusive, active, and fun.

ALL NPS

Action 1B-1
Provide timely and relevant employee training in cultural competency and cross-cultural communication (world views, approaches to conflict, etc.).

Action 1B-2
Identify and rectify deficiencies in the accessibility of digital media and provide appropriate staff training.

Action 1B-3
Make use of the CESUs to gain access to researchers and technical experts in evaluation, informal learning, audience characteristics and expectations, and public engagement.

Action 1B-4
Make best use of social media and technology to support active learning of diverse audiences.

WASO

Action 1B-5
Identify deficiencies and ways to make new media accessible and disseminate training.

Action 1B-6
Sponsor social science research to build audience-centered approaches and best practices in interpretation and education.

Action 1B-7
Develop criteria for relevancy, inclusiveness, and active learning for Servicewide funding calls.

Action 1B-8
Support National Historic Landmark nominations and technical assistance to increase the diversity of stories.

REGIONS

Action 1B-9
Create accessibility teams to work with park-based interpreters and facility managers to improve accessibility.

Action 1B-10
Engage facilitators to help with program evaluations and empower parks to reprioritize resources to better accomplish the park and agency goals, audience needs.

INDIVIDUALS

Use this space to record your own ideas for taking action.

PARKS

Action 1B-11
Develop programs and media with audiences not for them; embrace organizations and audience members as full partners in program design and delivery.

Action 1B-12
Create citizen science projects so visitors actively participate in inquiry-based learning and resource stewardship.

Action 1B-13
Design and infuse multicultural, inclusive programs and products through current scholarly research, as well as contributions by audiences through inquiry and civic dialog in order to tell all American's stories.

GOAL 1B RECOMMENDED ACTIONS

OUTCOME ONE – RELEVANCE AND INCLUSION: The National Park Service facilitates thematic, inclusive, and inquiry-based interpretation.

GOAL 1C – Transform the role of interpreter to be a facilitator of learning rather than just a giver of information.

ALL NPS

Action 1C-1
Identify and disseminate best practices for reaching diverse audiences.

Action 1C-2
Create a system to reward individuals, teams, partners, and collaborations for 21st-century interpretive skills and practices.

Action 1C-3
Develop new standards for interpretive success based on 21st-century interpretive skills such as digital interpretation and facilitated dialog.

Action 1C-4
Create and disseminate needed training on facilitated dialog techniques, digital interpretation, and use of new media.

WASO

Action 1C-5
Evaluate and rework funding criteria to emphasize desired skills sets.

Action 1C-6
Draft new position descriptions that embed 21st-century interpretive skills.

Action 1C-7
Work with the national web council to ensure www.nps.gov enriches in-park interpretation and online learning.

Action 1C-8
Represent the needs of the field to the web and communication councils.

INDIVIDUALS

Use this space to record your own ideas for taking action.

REGIONS

Action 1C-9
Designate a social media consultant at the regional level.

Action 1C-10
Intentionally coordinate and empower regional training teams, linking trainers, chiefs, and advisory group members to identify regional needs and prioritize training events.

Action 1C-11
Coordinate mentoring, detail appointments, and job shadowing to expand professional development opportunities.

PARKS

Action 1C-12
Develop a social media strategy and establish an interdisciplinary social media steering committee to increase the reach of programs and audiences.

Action 1C-13
Train interpreters in facilitated dialog techniques.

Action 1C-14
Shift programming from didactic techniques to engaging, co-created audience experiences.

Action 1C-15
Seek additional skills to address needs of today's learners and help co-create training for those skills.

Action 1C-16
Embed new standards into performance plans and individual development plans.

GOAL 1C RECOMMENDED ACTIONS

OUTCOME TWO – EDUCATIONAL LEADERSHIP: The National Park Service is a valued and significant educator.

GOAL 2A – Establish the National Park Service as an educational institution and strengthen parks as places of learning that teach about our American heritage and develop civic engagement, scientific and historical literacy, and citizen stewardship.

ALL NPS

Action 2A-1
Leverage Historically Black Colleges and Universities as well as Latino-, Asian-, and tribal-serving institutions to engage next-generation educators in promoting park science and history.

Action 2A-2
Collaborate with the Washington Office of Communications to develop a branding strategy or communication plan specific to promoting parks as places of learning.

Action 2A-3
Support Department of Education Green Ribbon Schools program by providing content and professional development opportunities for teachers.

Action 2A-4
Partner with the Department of Education to promote National Park Service educational opportunities.

WASO

Action 2A-5
Evaluate Teacher-Ranger-Teacher Program and Teacher Corps in partnership with the Department of Education's Office of Research.

Action 2A-6
Design effective teacher engagement programs for educators to have hands-on professional development in parks science and history.

Action 2A-7
Inform Congress about the educational mission of the National Park Service.

Action 2A-8
Define "educational institution," the characteristics of such an institution, and what steps the National Park Service can take to establish itself as one.

Action 2A-9
Launch a new national Parks as Classrooms Day to promote parks as learning landscapes. (With National Park System Advisory Board)

WASO

Action 2A-10
Strengthen the National Park Service's participation in National History Day through innovative outreach programs that engage underserved audiences.

Action 2A-11
Develop training to equip interpreters to understand and lead curriculum-based education programs and to develop programs that meet Common Core Standards.

Action 2A-12
Perform an assessment of training needs to increase scientific and historical literacy among interpretation and education staff and partners. Develop training modules as needed in partnership with NPS Natural and Cultural Resources programs.

Action 2A-13
Develop online training for National Park Service staff to learn about non-profit organizational cultures.

WASO

Action 2A-14
Develop online training for partner staff to understand National Park Service culture.

Action 2A-15
Develop a competency for superintendents to increase their understanding of the role and needs of the Interpretation, Education, and Volunteers program.

INDIVIDUALS

Use this space to record your own ideas for taking action.

GOAL 2A RECOMMENDED ACTIONS

OUTCOME TWO – EDUCATIONAL LEADERSHIP: The National Park Service is a valued and significant educator.

GOAL 2B – Collaborate with partners and other educational institutions to expand National Park Service education programs and the use of parks as places of learning.

ALL NPS

Action 2B-1
Establish and expand new partnerships with youth-serving organizations (e.g., Boys and Girls Clubs).

Action 2B-2
Partner with informal education institutions and organizations, such as museums, to promote parks as places of learning.

INDIVIDUALS

Use this space to record your own ideas for taking action.

WASO

Action 2B-3
Collaborate with the Department of Education and National Park Foundation to develop a National Park Service Teacher Corps to increase capacity to offer education programs in the classroom and within the park. (Teacher Corps could draw from Teacher-Ranger-Teachers, retired teacher volunteers in parks, Park Stewards, Park Teachers, and seasonal park rangers who are teachers.)

Action 2B-4
Establish a method to collect internal and external feedback on how the Education Portal functions.

Action 2B-5
Support national partnerships to engage new audiences and communities which cannot always get to parks (e.g., National Alliance for Faith and Justice).

WASO

Action 2B-6
Explore new national and regional level partnerships that could help increase the use of parks as places of learning (e.g., Journey North/South, Roots and Shoots, the National Writing Project, or the National Phenology Network).

Action 2B-7
Broaden the Education Portal to include partner education programs, including field trips and distance education.

Action 2B-8
Develop a strong distance learning strategy that is audience-centered and reaches beyond park boundaries. (With Parks)

PARKS

Action 2B-9
Develop, offer, and/or host professional development opportunities for teachers that are based on national park experiences and resources, such as presenting virtual programs, hosting teacher workshops, and participating in teacher in-service trainings. Partner with universities to offer continuing education credits.

Action 2B-10
Partner with universities to offer classroom or distance education programs in courses required for teaching certification in order to reach future teachers.

GOAL 2B RECOMMENDED ACTIONS

OUTCOME TWO – EDUCATIONAL LEADERSHIP: The National Park Service is a valued and significant educator.

GOAL 2C – Develop and nurture lifelong connections between the public and parks—especially for young people—through a continuum of engaging recreational, educational, volunteer, service, and work experiences.

Action 2C-1
Create a parent-friendly online searchable database of activities that engage children of any age.

Action 2C-2
Develop a template for a park-level education plan.

Action 2C-3
Re-message and/or provide updated materials for national special event days that will lead to increased civic engagement, scientific and historical literacy, and citizen stewardship.

Action 2C-4
Develop and implement a strategy to evolve and expand the Junior Ranger and WebRanger programs as tools for engaging children and families.

REGIONS

Action 2C-5
Coordinate and develop distance education programs for national special events, anniversaries of significant events, etc. (e.g., virtual program on ANILCA with President Jimmy Carter). (With Parks)

Action 2C-6
Review completion reports in Project Management Information System (PMIS) to determine if employee development and diversity outcomes for funded projects are achieved. Capture lessons learned. (With Parks)

INDIVIDUALS

Use this space to record your own ideas for taking action.

PARKS

Action 2C-7
Develop an education plan to consciously decide which audiences will or will not be targeted, the best forms or methods to conduct the outreach, etc. (similar to a social media plan).

Action 2C-8
Partner and align with universities, especially tribal colleges. Integrate classroom or distance education programs into various college courses and/or host university courses onsite in parks. Courses could range from art and science to history and geography.

Action 2C-9
Conduct BioBlitz and other citizen science events and programs, including the goal to create a generation of citizen scientists and future stewards by conducting fun, engaging, and educational biodiversity discovery activities in at least 100 national parks.

PARKS

Action 2C-10
Partner with gym and health class teachers, hospitals, and active lifestyle organizations to increase the use of parks and green spaces and to improve public health.

Action 2C-11
Use partners and programs, such as public land corps organizations, Youth Conservation Corps, and the Youth Partnership Program, to incorporate interns into park projects.

Action 2C-12
Develop active, technology-based activities to promote physical recreation and meaningful learning opportunities in parks.

GOAL 2C RECOMMENDED ACTIONS

OUTCOME THREE – ACTIVE ENGAGEMENT: The National Park Service works hand-in-hand with communities to engage people of all ages and backgrounds in meaningful and mutually beneficial volunteer opportunities.

GOAL 3A – Cultivate an organizational culture of stewardship and service within the larger context of national volunteerism efforts.

ALL NPS

Action 3A-1
Incorporate new language and concepts about participatory stewardship into everyday conversations to foster a culture shift in the National Park Service.

Action 3A-2
Communicate the value of collaboration on a broader scale as a way to embrace a multicultural world.

Action 3A-3
Continually advocate for volunteerism which includes volunteers, volunteer managers, and volunteer program/strategy.

Action 3A-4
Think about volunteerism without limits by creatively developing virtual and in-person volunteer opportunities for groups, individuals, and families.

WASO

Action 3A-5
Advocate that volunteerism is a core value of the National Park Service, and should be aligned with NPS mission statement, goals, and objectives.

Action 3A-6
Demonstrate how volunteer programs respond to identified community needs, incorporate agency needs and interests, are developed at the national level, and are implemented throughout the entire agency and department.

Action 3A-7
Reach out to cooperators so they may advise the NPS on the value that service plays in the lives of our citizens.

Action 3A-8
Maintain an active and visible presence on Federal Interagency Team on Volunteerism (FITV).

Action 3A-9
Foster regional relationships with neighboring federal, state, and local land management agencies following the FITV model to share resources and ideas and streamline processes for excellence in volunteer management and recognition.

WASO

Action 3A-10
Maintain multiple national memberships in organizations like ALIVE (Association for Leaders in Volunteer Engagement), Points of Light, Hands-On Network, etc.

Action 3A-11
Participate in International Volunteer Managers Day by publicly recognizing National Park Service volunteer managers/coordinators in unison with those around the world.

Action 3A-12
Stretch National Park Service resources through creative collaboration with partner organizations to support volunteer management.

Action 3A-13
Encourage and support parks and program offices Servicewide in seeing volunteerism as a way to help preserve resources and educate the public about the significance of those resources.

PARKS

Action 3A-14
Foster relationships with neighboring federal, state, and local land management agencies following the FITV model to share resources and ideas and to streamline processes for excellence in volunteer management and recognition.

Action 3A-15
Cultivate partnerships with other organizations to support volunteerism.

Action 3A-16
Develop relationships with surrounding communities through volunteerism engagement.

Action 3A-17
Continually advocate for volunteerism with park management and leadership.

Action 3A-18
Communicate to staff and partners the value of cultivating a stewardship-focused organization.

MORE ABOUT NATIONAL PARK SERVICE VOLUNTEERS

The REIMAGINING SERVICE coalition has established four principles to guide its work:

- 1. THE VOLUNTEER ECOSYSTEM is more effective when all sectors participate in its evolution.
- 2. MAKE VOLUNTEERING A CORE STRATEGIC FUNCTION, not an add-on.
- 3. FOCUS volunteer engagement on true community needs.
- 4. IN ORDER TO GET A RETURN, you have to invest.

(REIMAGINING SERVICE website, www.reimagining-service.org, copyright 2013)

The National Park Service is a signatory of the REIMAGINING SERVICE principles. The goals that support Outcome Three, Active Engagement, in this strategic plan reflect the four principles established by the REIMAGINING SERVICE coalition.

The National Park Service Volunteers-In-Parks Program (VIP) was authorized by Public Law 91-357 enacted 1970. The primary purpose of the VIP program is to provide a vehicle through which the National Park Service can accept and utilize voluntary help and services from the public. The major objective of the program is to utilize this voluntary help in such a way that is mutually beneficial to the National Park Service and the volunteer. For more information visit www.nps.gov/gettinginvolved/volunteer.
