Keweenaw National Historical Park

Far from the bustle of city life, the Keweenaw Peninsula possesses a beauty and hosts a lifestyle all its own. Located eight hours north of Chicago and three hours from the nearest interstate, the Keweenaw, as it is known, sits at the far reaches of Northern Michigan on a peninsula jutting into Lake Superior. It is a destination unto itself and one not easily reached on the way to some other place, but the rewards upon arrival are plentiful and worth the time.

Initially, many people were attracted to the Keweenaw Peninsula for the abundant natural resources that existed, namely copper. As mining communities developed, commerce also became a lure but for most, it was still about the use of resources like timber, fish, and copper. Today, travelers are attracted to the area for its scenic beauty and recreational opportunities. The place abounds with possibilities – hiking, skiing, painting, fishing, and so on. It is also a place rich in history, arts, and culture. Whether visiting for a day or a week, the area has much to offer.

A first stop on the travel route should include either Keweenaw National Historical Park’s Visitor Information Desk at the Quincy Mine or the park headquarters building in Calumet. Both locations have staff available to answer questions about the Keweenaw Heritage Sites associated with the copper mining history of the area, as well as the historical park that was developed in 1992. These locations provide a nice overview of the area’s history, and explain how the region played a national role in copper production for over 100 years.

To gain a deeper understanding of the area’s past, stop at a local historical society or museum. Most communities have at least one, and sometimes more. Many of these organizations are run by volunteers, who often make visits more memorable by sharing local knowledge and stories. If an underground mine tour sounds appealing, venture into the three the Keweenaw has to offer. Each provides a different perspective worth investigating. If learning about people’s lives is of interest, then a historic home tour might top your list. Visit the homes of early copper miners, farmers, and mining captains to see how different people lived. Maybe recreational opportunities are sometimes more. Many of these organizations are run by volunteers, who often make visits more memorable by sharing local knowledge and stories. Maybe recreational opportunities are high on your agenda, in which case, stop at the two fantastic state parks that book end the Keweenaw Peninsula. Each offers abundant recreational opportunities that include camping, hiking, fishing, and relaxing, not to mention the glimpse of an earlier way of life that those activities provide.

The Keweenaw has countless sites of interest and beauty – picturesque lighthouses, refreshingly cool copper mines, historic main streets, rocky shorelines, and miles of hiking and biking trails turned ski and snowmobile trails in the winter. It is a good place to wander and explore at your own pace. All ages are welcome and each season offers something different. Enjoy Keweenaw National Historical Park, the Keweenaw Heritage Sites and the rest of the Keweenaw Peninsula and see what they have to offer!

Park News

This year marks three significant milestones related to the Quincy Mining Company. 160 years ago, the company incorporated in Marshall, Michigan. 100 years ago, the company built the No. 2 shaft rockhouse on top of the hill, and 50 years ago, the Quincy Mine Host Association organized to preserve Quincy’s mining history.

PARK HEADQUARTERS
Keweenaw National Historical Park Headquarters, located at 25970 Red Jacket Road in Calumet, has a staffed reception desk and book sales area, providing park information. Open Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Closed on Federal Holidays.

FOOD AND RESTAURANTS
A variety of restaurants are located throughout the Keweenaw Peninsula. Grocery stores are also available in all major communities.

CAMPING
Numerous camping options, including both primitive and developed sites, are available across the Keweenaw Peninsula. Fort Wilkins, Porcupine Mountains, McLain and T'inn Lakes State Parks have public campgrounds. Community-operated and private campgrounds are also available. For more information, contact the Keweenaw Convention and Visitors Bureau at 1-800-338-7982 or www.keweenaw.info.

TRANSPORTATION

Transportation
The most difficult decision you may face while visiting the Keweenaw Peninsula is deciding what to do and when. Whether you have half a day or a week, there are plenty of places to visit, relax, and explore. The following is a list of suggestions and ways to organize your visit on the Keweenaw Peninsula. Calumet and Houghton tourist information 1-800-338-7982.

Arriving and Getting Oriented
Visit the Keweenaw National Historical Park Information Desk at the Quincy Mine Gift Shop to learn about the park and Keweenaw Heritage Sites. Here you can acquire more detailed information on points of interest.

Enjoying Natural Scenery
State, county, and township parks offer a wide range of options from extended overnight backpacking trips to short day hikes and picnicking. There are also waterfalls to view, kayaking tours, and beaches for relaxing on warm summer days.

Enjoying Cultural History
Visit the local historical societies and museums to learn about the rich cultural heritage of the area. These points of interest are staffed by knowledgeable volunteers and offer a variety of perspectives on life in the Keweenaw Peninsula.

Staying Safe
During your excursions, be mindful of old mining sites. Such sites often contain old machinery and buried mine entrances – all of which could pose visible and unforeseen hazards.

Respecting Private Property
Please be considerate of private property. Many abandoned mining sites and homes are in private ownership and require owner permission prior to visiting. To learn more about such sites and the distinction between federal, state and private property, visit the Keweenaw National Historical Park Information Desk at the Quincy Mine Hoist. See above for days and hours of operation.

Recommended Stay
You should allow four days to visit all of the Keweenaw Heritage Sites. You may wish to add a few more days to fully enjoy the Keweenaw Peninsula.

Trails and Roads
Walking tour brochures for Calumet’s historic downtown, the former Calumet & Hecla industrial district, and Laurium’s historic residential neighborhood are available at Park Headquarters and the Keweenaw Convention and Visitors Bureau located on U.S. Highway 41 in Calumet, Michigan.
Visiting Keweenaw National Historical Park

Keweenaw National Historical Park consists of two units – Quincy and Calumet – located at the sites of former large-scale copper mines approximately twelve miles apart. Most of the property within the units is privately owned. Please respect private property. As the park continues to develop, additional services and facilities will become available.

Calumet Unit

The Calumet Unit of the park focuses on the preservation and interpretation of buildings and sites associated with the former Calumet & Hecla Copper Mining Company (C&H). C&H grew into the largest and most successful copper mining company in the Lake Superior region. C&H’s key to fortune was its location on the copper-rich Calumet Conglomerate Lode. The Coppertown Mining Museum, a Keweenaw Heritage Site, is located in the former C&H pattern shop and features exhibits on the Calumet & Hecla mine and life in Calumet.

Located next to C&H’s mining operations was the village of Red Jacket (now known as Calumet). Red Jacket’s businesses, institutions and people were directly tied to the Calumet & Hecla Mining Company. Though copper mining eventually ceased, many buildings and features from this boom time remain. Several Keweenaw Heritage Sites are located in the Village of Calumet including the Keweenaw Heritage Center at St. Anne’s, the Calumet Theatre and the U.P. Firefighters Memorial Museum in the historic Red Jacket Fire Station. Information on the park is available at our headquarters, located at 25970 Red Jacket Road.

Quincy Unit

Within the park’s Quincy Unit are former Quincy Mining Company properties, including mine shafts, hoist houses and the copper smelting complex on the shore of Portage Lake. Much of Quincy Mine was designated a National Historic Landmark District in 1989. Quincy Mine Tours, a Keweenaw Heritage Site, is a key part of the unit and provides guided tours of the underground mine and hoist house. Visitors can also explore the #2 shaft-rockhouse and around many surface ruins. The National Park Service operates a seasonal information desk in the entryway to the gift shop.

Collection of artifacts or copper specimens is not permitted on NPS or Quincy Mine Hoist property. Most property within the park boundary is privately owned. Please respect private property.

Keweenaw Heritage Sites are places that contain significant cultural and natural resources that make a unique contribution to the copper mining story. Embodiments of strength, hardship, struggle, and success, each site allows you to explore the role mining played in people’s lives here and after.
Union Building Receives a New Lease on Life

Total. Many people associate fraternal organizations with mysterious events, such as those that make up the plots of movies like National Treasure. In the past, however, these organizations played a major role in daily life. In 1889, two fraternal organizations—the Free and Accepted Masons and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows—joined forces to build a lodge hall on Fifth Street in Calumet. The Union Building received its name because of this joint enterprise. The Calumet & Hecla Mining Company donated land for the project, revealing its interest in shaping local society and supporting a stable, productive and loyal workforce.

Fraternal organizations fall into two broad categories: secret orders and benefit societies. The secret orders, such as the Free Masons and Odd Fellows, functioned chiefly as social clubs with an emphasis on ritual and ceremony to teach moral values. Benefit or aid societies often employed secret rituals as well, but were primarily organized to provide life insurance and other forms of financial support to members. Many fraternal groups, particularly benefit societies, were organized along ethnic lines. Some had specific religious or denominational requirements, while membership in others was determined by economic standing. From the mid 1800s to the early 1900s, more than 800 fraternal organizations were established in the United States. By 1920, an estimated fifty percent of all Americans belonged to at least one fraternal group. While many admitted men only, there were also women’s organizations, such as Pythian Sisters and Order of the Eastern Star.

For over 80 years, more than twenty of these fraternal groups held regular meetings in Calumet’s Union Building. These groups provide a picture of the village’s social landscape, including the different ethnicities, religious denominations, and social classes that made up the community. The very number of these groups also reveals how large the area’s population once was. By the time Calumet & Hecla closed its doors in 1969, the downtown in area mining had forced many to leave for opportunities elsewhere. Many fraternal lodges consolidated, while others closed altogether. In 1978, an area resident purchased the Union Building, using it for both a residence and business. Lack of routine maintenance over the years caused deterioration.

In 1999, the National Park Service purchased the Union Building with the long-range goal of making it a visitor facility. Keweenaw National Historical Park completed the first phase of the building’s rehabilitation by stabilizing and restoring its exterior in 2005. This year, the park received funding to begin planning the interior rehabilitation. Deciding how to restore the various rooms and determining the best locations for rest rooms, an interior stairway and an elevator for accessibility will be part of the planning process. Concepts for exhibits and a visitor orientation area will also be developed. With additional funding, the actual work on the interior can begin. If all goes well, this historic building will open its doors to the public in 2011. Visitors will then have a place to reflect on the connection between mining companies, communities and people, as well as the role of Keweenaw copper mining in our heritage.

TODAY, MANY PEOPLE ASSOCIATE FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS WITH MYSTERIOUS EVENTS, SUCH AS THOSE THAT MAKE UP THE PLOTS OF MOVIES LIKE NATIONAL TREASURE. IN THE PAST, HOWEVER, THESE ORGANIZATIONS PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE IN DAILY LIFE. IN 1889, TWO FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS—THE FREE AND ACCEPTED MASONS AND THE INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS—JOINED FORCES TO BUILD A LODGE HALL ON FIFTH STREET IN CALUMET. THE UNION BUILDING RECEIVED ITS NAME BECAUSE OF THIS JOINT ENTERPRISE. THE CALUMET & HECLA MINING COMPANY DONATED LAND FOR THE PROJECT, REVEALING ITS INTEREST IN SHAPING LOCAL SOCIETY AND SUPPORTING A STABLE, PRODUCTIVE AND LOYAL WORKFORCE.

FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS FALL INTO TWO BROAD CATEGORIES: SECRET ORDERS AND BENEFIT SOCIETIES. THE SECRET ORDERS, SUCH AS THE FREE MASONS AND ODD FELLOWS, FUNCTIONED CHIEFLY AS SOCIAL CLUBS WITH AN EMPIRISON RITUAL AND CEREMONY TO TEACH MORAL VALUES. BENEFIT OR AID SOCIETIES OFTEN EMPLOYED SECRET RITUALS AS WELL, BUT WERE PRIMARILY ORGANIZED TO PROVIDE LIFE INSURANCE AND OTHER FORMS OF FINANCIAL SUPPORT TO MEMBERS. MANY FRATERNAL GROUPS, PARTICULARLY BENEFIT SOCIETIES, WERE ORGANIZED ALONG ETHNIC LINES. SOME HAD SPECIFIC RELIGIOUS OR DENOMINATIONAL REQUIREMENTS, WHILE MEMBERSHIP IN OTHERS WAS DETERMINED BY ECONOMIC STANDING. FROM THE MID 1800S TO THE EARLY 1900S, MORE THAN 800 FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS WERE ESTABLISHED IN THE UNITED STATES. BY 1920, AN ESTIMATED FIFTY PERCENT OF ALL AMERICANS BELONGED TO AT LEAST ONE FRATERNAL GROUP. WHILE MANY ADMITTED MEN ONLY, THERE WERE ALSO WOMEN’S ORGANIZATIONS, SUCH AS PYTHIAN SISTERS AND ORDER OF THE EASTERN STAR.

Cruising through Keweenaw History

Starting this summer, visitors to the Copper Country can take a ranger-narrated tour of the historic Torch Lake area aboard the Keweenaw Star. During this 3.5 hour tour you will view numerous sites associated with the region’s copper mining boom that are not accessible from shore. These include the Quincy Smelter, the former Tamarack and Franklin Stamp mill sites, the Torch Lake cuts that opened the lake to shipping, Quincy’s reclamation dredges, and the remains of Calumet & Hecla’s stamp mill and smelting works.

This program is operated by Keweenaw Excursions. Additional cruises to other sites. 20 pages.

Become a Junior Ranger!

Children ages 8 to 12 can now become Keweenaw National Historical Park Junior Rangers! Pick up a free book and follow Rusty and Digger through fun and engaging activities. Together, they draw, complete crossword puzzles, search for words, and explore the park.

You can get your free Junior Ranger book at:
- Keweenaw National Historical Park Information Desk at Quincy Mine, or
- Park headquarters in Calumet

After completing your book, bring it back to either location for review. If your work checks out, a ranger will award your badge and sticker!

You can also join a ranger for a guided Junior Ranger program twice a week in the Calumet Unit. The program will have activities to help you complete those in the book. See the program listing on left for details.
