The Funeral of George Washington

Jerry Hawn
Park Ranger

In recent years, park rangers on the National Mall were actively involved with funerals for former President Reagan and former President Ford. These events served to overtake the emotions of the nation for several days and even weeks. As you stand at the base of the Washington Monument and reflect on the life of George Washington, how do you think the nation responded to his death?

On December 14, 1799, George Washington died at his estate at Mount Vernon, Virginia. The nation had to deal with the loss of a true leader of the young nation. Washington led the troops to victory. He advanced the process of creating the new form of government. He became the first leader for a newly formed government. Now...this man was gone. How would the nation react?

Some of the most well known words describing George Washington came in a eulogy delivered by "Light-Horse Harry" Lee. After hearing of Washington’s death, the United States Congress which was meeting in Philadelphia, chose Mr. Lee to deliver a tribute for the whole country. Lee, who was serving as a Virginia Congressman, had been an officer with the Revolutionary forces and a close associate of Washington for many years. He gave his speech on December 26, 1799. Mr. Lee’s words still echo with Americans after over two centuries:

"First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life. Pious, just, humane, temperate and sincere—uniform, dignified and commanding—his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting... Correct though out, vice shuddered in his presence and virtue always felt his fostering hand. The purity of his private character gave elegance to his public virtues... Such was the man for whom our nation mourns."

Mock funerals were held all over the country. Perhaps, the most memorable of these funerals took place on December 26, 1799, in Philadelphia, which was serving as the nation’s “temporary” capital for 10 years while the new federal city was being constructed. The many mock funerals took place over a period of several weeks. The firing of sixteen cannons at day break in Philadelphia signaled the beginning of funeral events on the 26th, and volleys repeated on a half hour basis throughout the morning. Troops assembled at the State House as people came from the surrounding countryside to observe the ceremony. The splendid and somber march, accompanied by the sounding of muffled drums, proceeded through Philadelphia a little past noon. A riderless horse, escorted by two marines wearing black scarves, preceded the clergy. In the Pennsylvania Gazette it was reported that the horse carried an empty saddle, holsters, pistols, and boots reversed in the stirrups. The horse also was "trimmed with black—the head festooned with elegant black and white feathers the American Eagle displayed in a rose upon the breast, and in a feather upon the head."

In the midst of the procession, pallbearers carried an empty casket. Arriving at the German Lutheran Church, the bier was put in the middle of the center aisle, and members of Congress and other participants heard prayers by the Reverend William White, a bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States. Congressman Henry Lee read his eulogy from above before a crowd reported to be. The memorial service concluded with vocal and instrumental music, and the firing of three volleys.
The history of the National Mall is as diverse and fascinating as the history of our nation itself. From George Washington’s vision of the Federal City to the District of Columbia of today, how has this span of green space in the heart of the Nation’s Capital been altered over time? How has this area been influenced by great natural, cultural, historical, and social events through time? Come see and hear how the National Mall has evolved into what you experience today.

Saturday, September 1, 2007
History of the Mall Explore the History of America’s Front Yard

The history of the National Mall is as diverse and fascinating as the history of our nation itself. From George Washington’s vision of the Federal City to the District of Columbia of today, how has this span of green space in the heart of the Nation’s Capital been altered over time? How has this area been influenced by great natural, cultural, historical, and social events through time? Come see and hear how the National Mall has evolved into what you experience today.

Saturday, September 8, 2007
People of DC, Famous Names, Extraordinary Stories

Get to know the people behind the city. See and hear how the influential personalities of Washington, DC have affected the city, the landscape, the architecture, and the culture of the Nation’s Capital over time. Presidents, First Ladies, Governors and Mayors, authors, poets, famous and infamous characters have all helped shape the history of Washington, DC. These people have helped influence not only the city, but the entire nation. These are their stories.

Saturday, September 9, 2007
Unexplored Tales of the City Freemasons and the creation of Washington, DC

On Sunday, July 4, 1848, the cornerstone for the Washington Monument was officially laid by Grandmaster Benjamin B. French, of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, of the District of Columbia. Using the same gavel George Washington wielded many years before when he laid the cornerstone for the U. S. Capitol, French declared: “This cornerstone is now ready to receive the superstructure which is to rise above it.” While neither cornerstone is visible today, the rich history and influence of Freemasons can still be seen throughout Washington D.C. This tour will investigate the truths and myths that surround this sometime mysterious group.

Sunday, September 16, 2007
On This Date in History

“Great in life, he was...great in death”

In 1881, just sixteen years after the death of Abraham Lincoln, another assassin’s bullet cut short the life of an American President here in Washington, D.C. Explore the life and brief presidency of James A. Garfield that visits the numerous sites of the Nation’s Capital where the tragic story of Garfield lives on barely noticed or recognized.

Sunday, September 16, 2007
Family Tour The Hunt is on! The search for symbols on the National Mall 2:30-4:30 p.m.

Have you ever wondered if there is anything hidden inside the monuments and memorials on the National Mall? If you did, you’re right! There are symbols, some in plain view, others hidden, which are clues about the person or event being memorialized that help visitors better understand the structure. Plants, animals, and even different types of stone have meaning. You just need to know where, and what, to look for. What can the leaves at the World War II Memorial teach us? Who is that man in the painting at the Lincoln Memorial? What is George Washington leaning on? You will never look at the monuments and memorials on the National Mall the same way again!

Parents – Please note; all participants (children and adults) must have their own bike and helmet. Reservations for Family Tours are required. Please call Bike Program Coordinator Ranger Jason Martz (202) 438-4391 to make reservations. Space is limited.

Saturday, September 22, 2007
Off the Beaten Path Discover Lonely and Overlooked Landmarks

You may have seen them on a map, driven past them hundreds of times, or even walked up to one of them out of curiosity. What are they, who do they memorialize, and, more importantly, why are they here? In a city full of colossal and iconic memorials to great people and even greater deeds, these statues, urns, and symbolic gestures of friendship and remembrance can be found all over DC, yet, their stories have gone largely untold, until now. Find out the stories of these lonely landmarks from our Rangers.

Saturday, September 15, 2007
History of the Mall Explore the History of America’s Front Yard

For description see September 1
Friday at 7:00 p.m.
September 21

How did the deaths of over 14 million persons ironically produce someone like Monty Python? How does a small obscure monument, which commemorates one of the great events of the 20th century, connect to the heavily visited Franklin Delano Roosevelt and World War II Memorials? How did the assassination of an archduke, nearly 100 years ago, lead to current events in the United States and the world? Meet at the World War II Memorial Information booth. Call Ranger Lowell Fry (202) 438-9603 for more information.

How World War I birthed Monty Python or Three Memorials in One Evening

Friday at 7:00 p.m.
September 21

Why was this location chosen for the last of America’s eleven capitals? How has the purpose and meaning of the two mile space between the Lincoln Memorial and the Capitol changed over time? To discover that answer, meet at the entrance to the Washington Monument. Call Ranger Lowell Fry (202) 438-9603 for more information.

"Viva la Revolution!": The South American Rebellion from Spain

Saturday at 6:00 p.m.
September 1

The statues along Virginia Avenue, NW honor those who helped the United States acquire its freedom as well as Latin American revolutionary leaders. Bernardo Galvez helped the United States during its revolution; Jose San Martin, Simon Bolivar, and Jose Artigas led rebel forces that liberated twelve million people in South America from 1810-1824. The tour will start at the entrance to the Foggy Bottom Metro Station (23rd & I Street, NW) and will end at the intersection of Virginia and Constitution Avenues, NW. This will be a strenuous walk and comfortable shoes are recommended. There are no public restrooms along the route. For further information, please call Ranger Mike Balis at (202) 438-9710. This tour is free of charge.

The Road to Revolution Runs Through the District of Columbia

I "tremble at the consequences," wrote George Washing-ton in 1755 following his narrow escape from death in the frontier wilderness of Western Pennsylvania. Find out how a British military disaster there contributed to the rise of George Washington, the outbreak of the American Revolution, and the creation of the Nation’s Capital here on the bank of the Potomac River. Learn the fascinating origin of such local place names as "Braddock Rock" and "Camp Hill."

Wednesday, September 5

Park Ranger Michael Kenny

"The sky was brilliantly illu-minated:” The Burning of Washington, D.C.

The War of 1812. On August 24, 1814, Washington D.C. came under attack and the Capitol and White House were set ablaze! American military defenders fled, as did the President of the United States and the First Lady—all had been forced to watch the destruction of the city. Learn the fascinating, true tales of the city’s darkest hour and how nature and the American spirit combined to save it—and how these events culminated in the creation of our National Anthem.

Wednesday, September 19

Park Ranger Kristi Thiel

Civil War Washington Through the Eyes of a Poet

Walt Whitman spent ten years in Washington, DC witnessing the nation’s struggle through the Civil War, President Lincoln’s death and the long recovery afterwards. What brought him here, and what inspired him to stay? Using the good grey poet’s own words we will retrace his footsteps through the Washing-ton, D.C. view and ultimately uncover the traces he left behind.

Wednesday, September 26

Park Ranger Brad Berger

"The Monitor is mine:” The Man Who Saved Lincoln’s Navy

In spite of the passage of time, many Americans happily recall the Civil War triumphs of the legendary USS Monitor. Few, however, remain aware of the true story behind the construction of the ship and the trials her brilliant designer suffered to bring her to fruition. Here is a story of redemption and heroism that contributed to the salvation of the American Union. A memorial to the Monitor’s builder, a brilliant, yet reclusive man, stands in West Potomac Park, with the same privacy its honoree yearned for in life.

Pennsylvania Avenue Walking

A hat, good walking shoes, and some water is recommended. For more information call: (202) 606-8691.
Join National Park Service Rangers to learn more about the meaning, symbolism, and significance of the park’s many memorials. No prior signup is required and all programs are free. Program length varies. For more information contact a Park Ranger at each memorial. Programs are offered at the following memorials:

| World War II Memorial | Lincoln Memorial | Thomas Jefferson Memorial | Franklin Delano Roosevelt Memorial | Vietnam Veterans Memorial | Korean War Veterans Memorial |

Scheduled Programs are
Presented at: 11:00 am, 1:00 pm, 3:00 pm, 5:00 pm

Additional programs on request

Please meet at the Fireside Chat Statue in Room 2 (The man listening to the radio). Each program will last 30-45 minutes. A short walk is involved, but there will be seating for most of the program. For more information contact Brendan Wilson at (202)438-4098.

11:00 AM and 2:00 PM
September 3, 2007
On the European War
Originally broadcast September 3, 1939.
The World is now at war!

FDR responds to the invasion of Poland by Nazi Germany as well as Great Britain and France declaring war. He discusses America’s neutrality and introduces the “cash-and-carry” program to the American public, which will be used to aid the Allied effort.

September 11, 2007
On Maintaining Freedom of the Seas
Originally broadcast September 11, 1941.
America inches closer to joining the Second World War!
Responding the Greer Incident, when an American destroyer was attacked by a German submarine, FDR argues for America to become involved in the war. He escalates American support of the Allied war effort by ordering warships to protect the Lend-Lease convoys and authorizes those ships to fire on German submarines.

For more information call (202) 606-9686.

*Note: Groups may only make reservations by calling 1-877-559-6777. Reserved tickets are often booked 30 days ahead of time during peak times (spring, summer, weekends, and holidays). Please plan accordingly. All reserved tickets

Ford’s Theatre
The evening of April 14, 1865, has forever been marked with tragedy. On that night, our 16th President, Abraham Lincoln, was assassinated in Ford’s Theatre by actor John Wilkes Booth. Just days after General Lee’s Confederate troops surrendered at Appomattox, VA, a time of hope and peace in Washington and around the country turned to a period of mourning that America had never seen before.

Ford’s Theatre is closed for renovations. Peterson House is open daily 9AM - 5PM.

Old Post Office Tower
The Old Post Office, built between 1892 and 1899, is home to the Bells of Congress, which were a present from England on our Nation’s Bicentennial. From the observation deck, located 270 feet above the street level, the visitor can get a spectacular view of our nation’s capital.

Operating Hours
Summer: Begins 1st weekend in June through Labor Day, 9:00 a.m. - 7:45 p.m. (Monday through Friday) Saturday, Sunday and Holidays 10 a.m. to 5:45 p.m.

Winter: (Labor Day through Memorial Day): 9:00 a.m. - 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday. Weekends and Holidays, 10 am to 5:45 p.m.

For more information call (202)606-9686.

"Monuments, and reservations, which purpose is to conserve the scenery and the natural and historic objects and the wildlife therein and to provide for the enjoyment of the same in such manner and by such means as will leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations."

-National Park Service Organic Act-

-August 25, 1916-