Visionaries & Experimenters in History

Freedom’s Way National Heritage Area
2018 Annual Report
Making a Difference

This year has been one of continued accomplishment for the Freedom’s Way Heritage Association.

Significant progress has been made on advancing the goals and objectives articulated in our management plan approved by the Secretary of the Interior in 2015. Collaborative programs, designed to strengthen the regional identity of the Freedom’s Way National Heritage Area, have provided new insights into the region’s rich history, strengthening its sense of place.

Partnerships remain key to our success. During the past year Freedom’s Way has increased the number of individuals and organizations it works with and engaged new constituencies and communities. Themed interpretive presentations, including Hidden Treasures and Declaring Independence: Then & Now, have made a difference, linking sites and stories and revealing shared subjects, topics and themes.

Moving forward, there remains much to accomplish, and we need your help. Journey with us and explore the region’s historical, cultural and natural resources. Be a visionary and experimenter. You can make a difference.
Connecting People, Places and Communities

Among the many traditional activities explored by Freedom’s Way during the management planning process was an entirely new way of thinking about communication and collaboration—the Heritage Area as a virtual museum to empower a shared sense of place.

By curating the landscapes, sites, communities, structures, routes, objects and stories within its boundaries, the Heritage Area serves as facilitator, managing “the experience of place.” To create a museum without walls, Freedom’s Way works with communities to gather, organize and provide access to information, content and collections developed by partners and others.

To achieve this outcome, Freedom’s Way continues to expand its communication capacity through the use of innovative social media (including an enhanced website and bi-monthly e-newsletters) and the ever-changing variety of applications available for managing and sharing information in creative and engaging ways.

While a complex undertaking involving the integration of a wide range of information, topics and stories, assuming a curatorial role and providing the framework for a shared interpretive presentation strengthens the Heritage Area’s identity and brand.
An exciting multi-year initiative that celebrates those visionary individuals within the Heritage Area that have been at the forefront of ideas and events that have shaped the region and provided new ways of thinking about America and the world.

Visionaries and Experimenters
Through a continued exploration of the region’s stories, the Heritage Area’s role as a region of firsts in American invention, thought and design has emerged. Key is the contributions of individuals, whose discoveries and inventions remain at the forefront of social, intellectual and cultural innovation in America. They made a difference.

It is these visionaries and experimenters that are celebrated in Heritage Stories. Designed to encourage new audiences to consider their relationship to Freedom’s Way, Heritage Stories encourage everyone to explore their own story.

Stories shape our identity, connecting physical places to people and time. The past informs the present and future, providing a bridge between generations. Shared, the stories we tell make a difference and provide a context for understanding the cultural identity of our communities.

Cultural Heritage Through Image
In collaboration with Fitchburg State University, Freedom’s Way is a partner in Cultural Heritage Through Image, a multi-year project that encourages students to make connections between the history and experiences of their local culture with those outside of New England.

This year, students used photography to illustrate how ancient to medieval cultural heritage stories from other countries relate to cultural heritage stories of local communities within the Heritage Area. A digital exhibition of themed photographs, focusing on Freedom’s Way, was mounted at the Fitchburg Art Museum for Cultural Heritage Day, on September 30th.

In FY2019, students will develop, research, and record cultural heritage stories, translating them into cultural heritage artifacts. These will be used to create written accounts that can be used by Freedom’s Way to develop Heritage Stories. The interviews are thematic and include artisans and traditional crafts people, historic reenactors and personas, and contemporary individuals from within the Heritage Area that are visionaries and experimenters.
The first woman to be admitted to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Ellen Henrietta Swallow Richards (1842–1911) was the most prominent female American chemist of the 19th century. A pioneer in sanitary engineering, she founded the science of home economics in the United States.

“You cannot make women contented with cooking and cleaning and you need not try.”

The musical talents of Barzillai Lew (1743–1822) took him as a fifer to the Battle of Bunker Hill, Fort Ticonderoga, and Saratoga, where he was “selected for fifer and fiddler for the grand appearance” at Burgoyne’s surrender.

Through interpretation, understanding; through understanding, appreciation; through appreciation, protection."

The Father of Heritage Interpretation, Freeman Tilden (1883-1980) is considered one of the National Park Service’s founders. A teacher, mentor and philosopher, his six timeless principles, articulated in “Interpreting Our Heritage” continue to guide and sustain the field of interpretation today.

Declaring Independence: Then & Now

This year we proudly offered 17 performances of Declaring Independence: Then & Now. The program tells the story of people within the Freedom’s Way National Heritage Area in the spring and summer of 1776. Using their own words, it portrays how they debated and celebrated the declaring of independence from Great Britain.

Offered in partnership with the American Antiquarian Society and with support from the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati, Declaring Independence: Then & Now provides an opportunity to consider the promises made in that foundational document through the lens of both the past and the present, providing new insights into its meaning today.

Each presentation, which includes a narrated reading of the Declaration of Independence, interspersed with the words spoken by local individuals as researched by citizen-historians, is unique. Presentations are held in historic venues, often the same ones in which the original discussions occurred.

Declaring Independence: Then & Now continues to evolve as each community explores its part in the story of American Independence and in our on-going aspirations for freedom and equality for everyone.

Civic engagement and interest in our nation’s founding principles are high and Declaring Independence: Then & Now provides an interactive forum in which to explore both. Audiences are inspired and challenged by hearing the Declaration of Independence anew, providing an opportunity for reflection about what the words mean in contemporary society.

Since 1776, there have been approximately 120 declarations of independence made by different countries and different peoples.
Volunteers Making a Difference

Declaring Independence: Then & Now, is made possible through the generous volunteer hours of many individuals and organizations who have dedicated themselves to making the program available to the public.

These include the citizen-historians who research the stories, the historical reenactors who breathe life into each character, the narrators who read the words of the Declaration of Independence, the coordinators who oversee each performance and the community access stations that record them.

We would also like to celebrate the three people whose vision and focus have been central to the program’s success—Mary Fuhrer, Maud Ayson and Jim Moran. Their dedication brought the story of the Declaration of Independence to life.

Thank you!

For collaborative heritage programming, Freedom’s Way National Heritage Area may match the funding we receive through the National Park Service with the fair market value of contributed volunteers’ time, including donated professional services. Every “in-kind” dollar we receive makes a difference.
Promoting the Region’s Hidden Treasures

Hidden Treasures celebrates the region’s natural, cultural, and historical resources by showcasing the work of the many organizations that steward and interpret these sites, artifacts, and traditions. Freedom’s Way provides a coordinated branding and marketing effort aimed at increasing exposure and inspiring residents and visitors to discover their place in the Heritage Area.

Despite a particularly rainy May, the fourth year of Hidden Treasures boasted over 10,500 attendees! In its second year as a month-long program, Hidden Treasures promoted 80 unique events in 35 of the Heritage Area’s communities. This year’s events were offered in coordination with 83 local, state, federal, and non-profit partners; nearly a third of which were first-time participants.

Thank you to Fidelity Bank for its continued support of this program.

2018 featured the launch of the inaugural Hidden Treasures Photo Contest! The public was invited to submit original photographs from their travels throughout the Heritage Area in three categories: What’s Your Nature?, Culture Reframed, and History in the Making. Winners were announced at the Annual Meeting on October 28th at The Groton Inn.

Hitting the Trail

The Thoreau Trail—A Walk to Wachusett
Following an exploratory launch of the Thoreau Trail in 2017, this past year’s efforts were focused on working with municipal and non-profit partners in Concord, Acton, Maynard, Stow, Bolton, Lancaster, Sterling, Leominster, and Princeton to discuss the project’s opportunities and challenges. Through these meetings alternative routes, interpretive themes, and priority projects were identified. An interpretive framework was developed for Concord and will be used as a model for the other communities. These findings will be compiled into a feasibility report to be shared with the public in early 2019.

Connecting Communities: Walks & Talks
After a year-long hiatus, Freedom’s Way is pleased to announce its relaunching of the Connecting Communities: Along Our Trails program as Connecting Communities: Walks & Talks! What was once a series of monthly trail activities coupled with a cultural or historical component, is now an annual set of five guided walks with an educational focus led by local experts on a new theme each year. Stay tuned as we bring you Birding in Freedom’s Way in early 2019.

On the Road in Freedom’s Way

During the past year, we were provided numerous opportunities to share the work of Freedom’s Way with new audiences. These included:

Co-hosting the 2018 Mass History Conference: People’s History–Local History and moderating the Self-guided Tours: To App or Not to App? session, which explored affordable options for developing self-guided walking tours, including CLIO and Uniguide;

Presenting at MassDOT Moving Together 2017: Annual Statewide Healthy Transportation Conference, the 2017 Massachusetts Trails Conference, and the 2018 Thoreau Society’s Annual Gathering about the Thoreau Trail project;

Sponsoring and presenting at Cultural Heritage Day at the Fitchburg Art Museum with Fitchburg State University English Studies Professor Kisha Tracy where exhibits, activities and speakers focused on exploring the meaning and significance of cultural heritage;

Introducing Freedom’s Way to the Tyngsborough-Dunstable Historical Society, Hanscom Area Towns Committee, and students in the Culture Heritage Through Image English Studies class at Fitchburg State University;

Exhibiting at National Trails Day at Wachusett Mountain and Mason’s 250th Anniversary Celebration; and,

Conducting field work for the National Historic Landmark Study with municipal planning departments, historical societies and site managers in Amherst, Milford, Nashua and New Ipswich, New Hampshire and Ashburnham, Arlington, Fitchburg, Harvard, Hudson, Lexington, Leominster, Maynard, Malden, Shirley and Woburn, Massachusetts.
Partnership Projects

We are pleased to share updates on three partnership projects which the Heritage Area supported.

The Boxborough Historical Society’s efforts to restore the 1784 Levi Wetherbee (Steele) Farmhouse (pictured top right) concluded its preliminary phase, which included stabilization of the existing structure and planning for rehabilitation. A “Hug the House” celebration was held in June 2018.

The Shirley Meeting House accessibility project completed its first phase in early 2018 with the installation of a new handicapped-accessible bathroom and a utility area with sink and cabinets. The second phase, which will be completed in October, includes the reconstruction of the portico deck (pictured bottom right).

The Sudbury Historical Society is continuing its work on its multi-phased project to build the Sudbury History Center, complete with museum galleries, an archive, and a visitor’s center, in the town-owned, circa 1730 Loring Parsonage (pictured top left). Construction is set to begin in late October on phase two and is scheduled to be complete in the spring of 2019.

Freedom's Way National Heritage Area
Established in 2009 by an act of Congress, the Freedom's Way National Heritage Area is a large landscape of 995 square miles (636,160 acres). Encompassing 45 communities in Massachusetts and Southern New Hampshire, it is home to more than 750,000 people.

Reflective of its scale, the Heritage Area contains a richly textured mosaic of unique historical, natural and cultural features and sites that reveal the region's story and role in the shaping of an American identity.

Home to Minute Man National Historical Park and Walden Pond, the Heritage Area is steeped in concepts of individual freedom and responsibility, community cooperation, direct democracy, idealism, and social betterment, perspectives that have inspired national and international movements in governance, education, abolitionism, social justice, conservation and the arts.
