Lookout Shelter, Mississippi Palisades State Park, Illinois

High in the merit list of lookout shelters, this jaunty little building of hand-hewn timbers as here illustrated basks in the full added benefit of dramatic photography. To those who must have something to cavil at, the excessive “beaver ing” of the rail members is suggested. But accelerated personality is more than compensatory for any minor sacrifice of structural maximum. Opposite are detail drawings of the building.