Narrative Description (Describe the historic and current condition of the property on one or more continuation sheets.)

The Civilian Conservation Corps built the Windfall Harbor Shelter Cabin during the 1930s as part of the Admiralty Island Canoe Route. It is a three-sided Adirondack shelter cabin with a peeled log superstructure and shake walls and roof.

In 1986 the sill logs, vertical posts, and angel-braces on the cabin were replaced. The horizontal lintel logs forming a top-plate on the wall were not replaced, as indicated by 1966 graffiti. Although chainsaws were used to cut the new structural logs, the essential post-and-beam form was retained. Some cross-bracing was squared with a chainsaw, rather than left round as it had been originally. Wall shakes are thirty inches long and abut vertically. None of the roof or wall shakes is original. The front of the shelter has a single set of shakes protecting the ends of the horizontal poles used as nailers for the wall shakes. The structure is in fair condition.

The natural setting is similar to the 1930s. The view from the shelter is of a pleasant tidal beach extending into Windfall Harbor. The trailhead leading to Hasselborg Lake is not evident.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Explain the significance of the property on one or more continuation sheets.)

Civilian Conservation Corps workers built the Windfall Harbor Shelter Cabin in the 1930s as part of the Admiralty Island Canoe Route project. It is a three-sided Adirondack style shelter intended for recreational use. Lack of attention to manufacturing detail in repairing the shelter in 1980 has not substantially detracted from the architectural integrity of the building.
