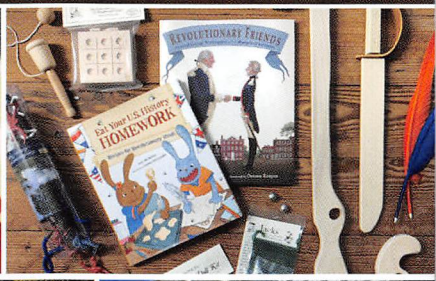
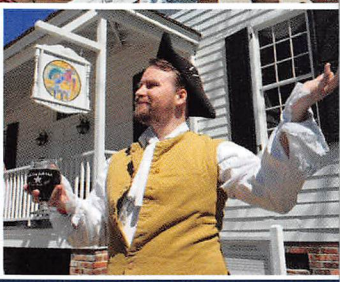
Historic Camden

SOUTH CAROLINA

104-ACRE MUSEUM & PARK CELEBRATING CAMDEN'S EXTRAORDINARY COLONIAL AMERICAN HISTORY!





Visit Historic Camden and stand upon the site of South Carolina's oldest inland town, or head 8 miles north to explore the 475+ acre site of the the 1780 Battle of Camden called the Camden Battlefield and Longleaf Pine Preserve. From Native American inhabitants like the Catawba to British soldiers, Camden was a hub of backcountry commerce and strategic settlement for centuries.

The Broad Street site was home to the town's prolific founder Joseph Kershaw, as well as an army of British General Lord Cornwallis' men from 1780-81. Explore the reconstructed Kershaw-Cornwallis House, the c.1800 McCaa's Tavern, and other period structures to learn about Camden's important history, its occupation and destruction by the British army, and how the Battle of Camden and the Southern Campaigns shaped the course of the Revolutionary War. In addition to tours and exhibits, the museum offers educational programs for all ages, community events, and living history events. Historic Camden is on the National Register of Historic Places and is a National Park Service Affiliate.
