INVENTORY OF FURNISHINGS AT WAKEFIELD

by: Carl Flemer

LIBRARY,
PLANNING AND RESOURCE PRESERVATION
NATIONAL PARK SERVICE, MARO

Washington's Birthplace
Virginia.
December 6, 1963.

Dear Miss Albro:

I am taking the liberty in mailing you a set of my new " Picture Inventory " of all the rooms and kitchen at Wakefield. I thought that you might like a copy.

All the items listed have been gone over and checked for numbers and placement and I believe will be found to be correct.

I have made notes of any discrepancies as to numbers and descriptions and we will try to correct.

I carried the clock and barometer to Washington in October. Have not heard from them as yet.

I wonder if you could do something for me ? You know that there is really little known about this place as to its original location and the type of house that was here. I wonder if you know that the same thing is beginning to happen to the present building ?

For nearly twenty years we have been telling visitors about the process used in finishing the panel work.

First the wood was washed down with a lye preparation (I saw this done) than it was stained with a mixture of walnut, carrot and others. Now we have to say the only treatment given it was a continuous treatment of linseed oil and beeswax.

Another thing is the origin of the wood used both in the flooring and the panel work. Some say it was obtained from old houses in Georgetown others say it was found near Richmond.

Jones and Conquest of Richmond were the original contractors and I understand that part of the firm is still doing business in Richmond.

I was wondering if some one out of the office might contact these people and maybe find out about these things and maybe other things ? We have a copy of the original specifications here but as you know many were changed as worked progress.

While I am letting my hair down there is something else I would like to complain about and that is the new entrance way they have set up here. We have had many complaints about it.

You remember the old entrance was over an old road ~~be~~ bed that dated way back and it approached the mansion from the main gate with the kitchen on its left. This road was here and used when I was a kid and I am no youngster ???

The main complaint is you have to go right by the kitchen door before entering the main house. In all the old houses that I have seen I have never approached the main house by having to first go by the kitchen door. Have you ? The old entrance was by far the finer of the two.

One more thing and then I will quit complaining. This Summer I overheard a congressman telling a friend how the Park Service architects were glorifying themselves with their grand 66 reception centers.

Please do not let that happen here. The simplicity of this place is the most attractive part of it. Don't you think so ???

I meant to tell Mr. Mulvany all this when ~~here~~ was here but as usual forgot. By the way he had a wonderful idea about describing different pieces in the rooms in our pamphlet. What do you think of it ?

Kindest regards,

Carl F. Flemer

Please forgive me if I seem to be complaining to but I have always loved this old place and would anything to improve it.

The 18th-Century tiles decorating the fireplace facing in the Memorial Mansion were made in Holland. Technically they are known as tin-glazed earthenware tiles. After shaping the tiles were fired to a "biscuit" state in a kiln emitting an equable temperature, thus preventing shrinking and reducing the wastage caused by warping. The "biscuit" tiles (unglazed and undecorated) were brushed to remove dust and then dipped into white tin oxide enamel held in suspension by water. After dipping the moisture was absorbed into the porous "biscuits", carrying with it fine particles of enamel deeply into its texture and also leaving the surface covered with a layer of fine white powder. They were then set aside to dry in the air. After the white tin oxide enamel had dried the Dutch potters painted the designs directly over the tin oxide surface, afterwards sprinkling it with a thin coating of powdered lead glaze. The ware was then fired a second time, the heat converting the powder into an opaque film of white enamel. The combination of glaze, enamel, and color produced a brilliance almost equal to that of over-glaze enamels on porcelain.

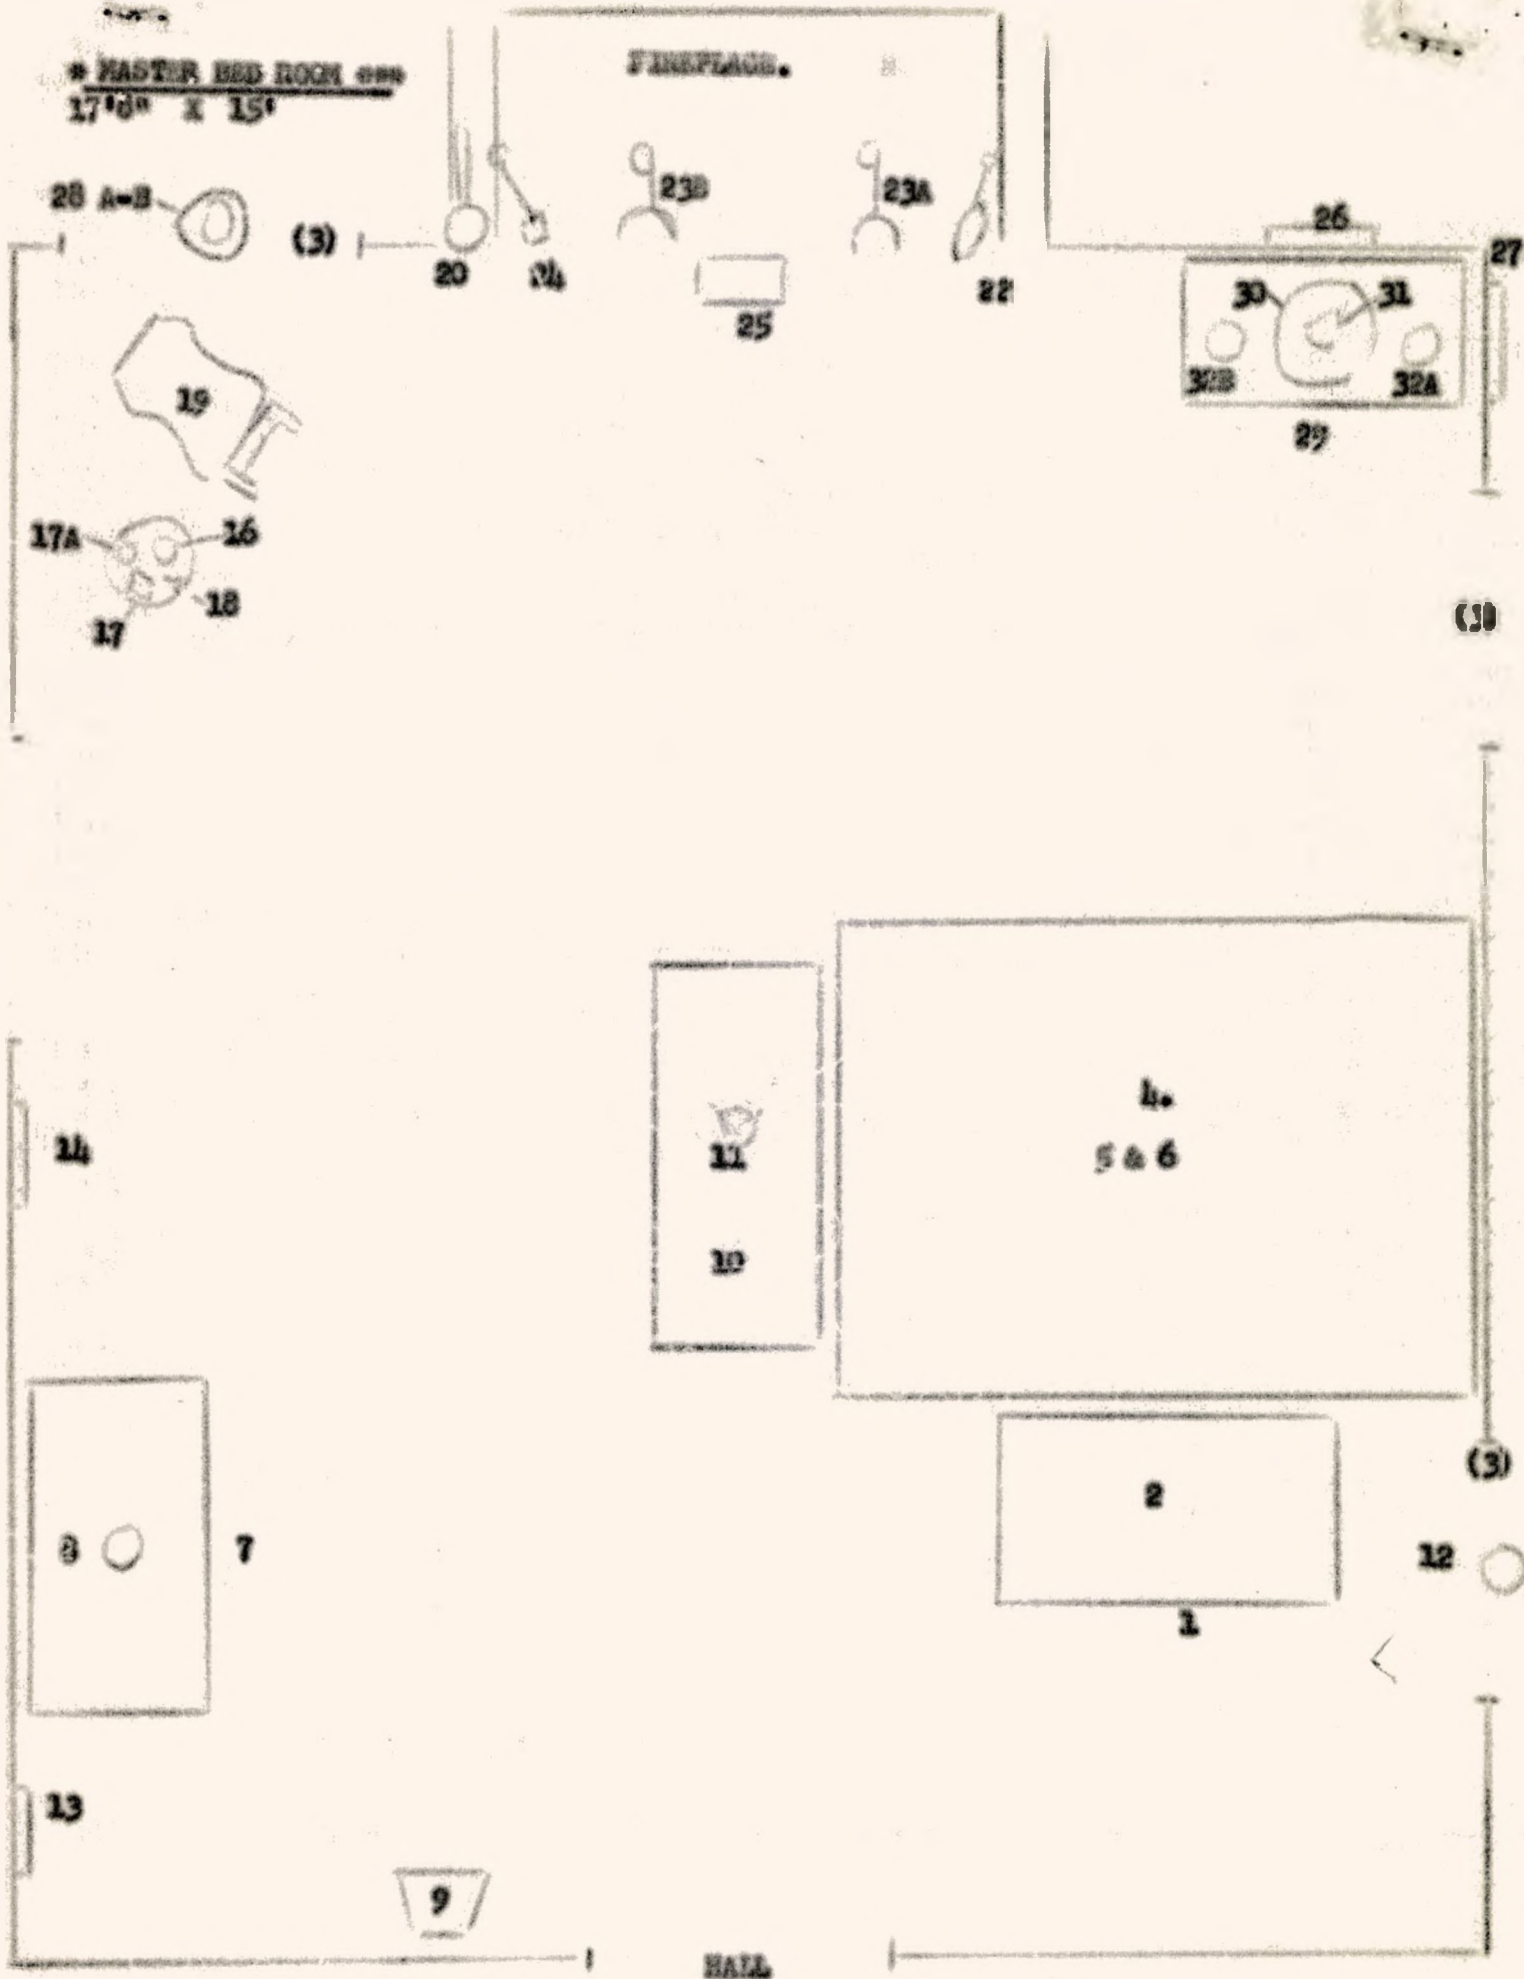

(J.P.H.)

These tiles were furnished by the M.N.H.A. to be set by the contractor.

 NOTES ***

1. This cradle is said (by Latanes) to have been made on Haywood Farm by slave labor. Others say it was made by a Mr. Thompson at Oak Grove. The rockers were put on at a later date, some (Latanes) say for Mr. Lal. Washington while a baby. 1837.

ch. This bed is said by some of the Latanes to have been brought over from Maryland by the Wilsons, others say it was a Washington bed. (Who knows ?)

6. Cleaned in winter of 1963-64.

19. Upholstered in 1956 with copy of old English linen by Sealamandre, Museum of Textiles, New York, N.Y.
