

Serpentine Hot Springs

Introduction

Inupiat Eskimos call this place lyat, meaning “cooking pot” or “a site for cooking.” During the Gold Rush era of the early twentieth century, it was called Arctic Hot Springs. Most people know this place as Serpentine Hot Springs. It is located in Bering Land Bridge National Preserve. The most popular visitor destination in Bering Land Bridge, Serpentine Hot Springs offers opportunities for healing, recreation or simply solitude.

Renovating Lady Liberty

Introduction

The Statue of Liberty National Monument officially celebrated her 100th birthday on October 28, 1986. The people of France gave the Statue to the people of the United States over one hundred years ago in recognition of the friendship established during the American Revolution. Over the years, the Statue of Liberty has grown to include freedom and democracy as well as this international friendship.

Palo Alto Battlefield
National Historic Site

Fort Brown

Introduction

Palo Alto Battlefield National Historic Site preserves the 3,400-acre scene of this clash between nations and informs visitors about its national and international importance. As the only unit of the National Park Service with a primary focus on the U.S.-Mexican War, Palo Alto Battlefield also interprets the entire conflict. In an effort to turn a scene of conflict into a place of bi-national exchange and understanding, all research and interpretation conducted by the park reflects perspectives of both the United States and Mexico.
