A World Heritage Site

Visitors on a ranger-guided tour of Cliff Palace

Welcome

Mesa Verde preserves an extraordinary record of the Ancestral Pueblo people who made this place their home for more than 750 years. With over 52,000 acres, Mesa Verde protects nearly 5,000 archeological sites, including nearly 600 cliff dwellings to share with you and future generations.

As you explore the park, we hope you connect this place to the descendants of the Ancestral Pueblo people—the 19 Pueblos in New Mexico, the Hopi in Arizona, and Ysleta del Sur in Texas. Understanding this relationship will help you gain an appreciation for the continued diversity and continuity of both the past and present. We hope you enjoy your visit!

In an emergency,
contact a park ranger
or call 911

This partial list of regulations is designed to help you have a safe and enjoyable visit, and to protect Mesa Verde’s natural ecosystems and fragile archeological sites. For more on how to respectfully enjoy the park, please visit go.nps.gov/mvpolitics or ask a park employee.

Rockfall Alert

The park road is built on unstable soils. As a result, rocks and boulders can break loose and fall on the road, posing a hazard to you and your car. If you see boulders blocking the road, do not attempt to move them. Call 970-529-4461 or contact a park employee.

Share the Road

Park roads are steep, narrow, and winding. Pullouts are available for slower traffic to use so others may pass. Trailers and towed vehicles are not allowed beyond Morefield Campground, but trailer parking is available near the park entrance.

Mule deer on roadway

Watch for wildlife, obey all traffic signs, and do not stop on the roadway.

Bicyclists, use caution! The road is steep with few shoulders. Ride single file and stay to the right. Bicyclists must comply with all traffic regulations. Bicycle group size is limited to six on roads.

Camping

Camping is available at Morefield Campground, four miles from the park entrance. See page 6. Other campgrounds are located in Cortez and Mancos.

Don't Rely on GPS or Cell Phone Coverage

GPS is not reliable in the area and cell service is limited once you drive past the park entrance. Wi-Fi service is available at Morefield Campground Store, Far View Terrace and Lodge, and Spruce Tree Terrace.

Do You Need Gas?

Gas is only available in the park at Morefield Campground. You will drive at least 50 miles while in the park, so please plan accordingly.

Stewardship

Leave the rocks as you see them and don't add more. Graffiti—carving, scratching, chalking, or any type of marking—is illegal and unsightly.

Archeological sites are fragile. See page 7 for ways to protect them as you visit.

Firearms

Possession of firearms must comply with federal and state laws. Hunting and recreational use of firearms is prohibited.

Marijuana on Federal Lands

As federal land, federal laws apply in Mesa Verde. Possession or use of any amount of marijuana is prohibited anywhere in the park.

Unmanned Aircraft Systems

The use of drones within the park is illegal.

For more information, visit go.nps.gov/mvpolitics.

Your safety depends on your good judgment, adequate preparation, and constant attention. Don't ruin your vacation by having an accident.

Your safety is your responsibility.

Pets need protection too

For your pet's sake, do not leave them in your vehicle without proper ventilation and water, and only when temperatures are not hazardous to their health. A kennel at Morefield Campground is available through October 16.

Leaving pets alone tied to any object is illegal. Pets are not allowed in buildings or on most trails. Leashed pets may join you on paved roads, parking lots, and in the campground. There are some pet-friendly trails on Wetherill Mesa and the Mesa Top Loop, but please clean up after your pet. Service animals are always welcome; therapy animals are subject to pet restrictions.

If You Have a Half-Day...

- Mesa Verde Visitor and Research Center
First, stop by the Visitor Center at the park entrance where park staff will help plan your visit. While there, enjoy the exhibits and browse through the store for a selection of books and trail guides. This is also a good place to purchase tour tickets for Cliff Palace, Balcony House, or Long House tours. See page 1 for facility hours. See page 8 for tours.
- Mesa Top Loop Road (6 miles/10 km)
Twenty miles (32.2 km) beyond the Visitor Center is the Mesa Top Loop. This scenic, 45-minute to one-hour drive includes six stops covering 700 years of Ancestral Pueblo history. See page 6 for details.

Sun Point View, Mesa Top Loop

- Chapin Mesa Archeological Museum
Twenty-one miles (33.8 km) beyond the Visitor Center is the Museum. Here, exhibits and dioramas trace the lives of the Ancestral Pueblo people. See page 4 for details. See page 1 for facility hours.
- Spruce Tree House
Spruce Tree House is closed due to the danger of rockfall, but you can view the park's third largest and best-preserved cliff dwelling from overlooks located adjacent to the Museum. Information booklets are available.

Mesa Verde is a fascinating national park. Whether you have a few hours or a few days, we invite you to enjoy the spectacular scenery and share this rare glimpse into the ancient culture that shaped this region for over 750 years.

Here are a few suggestions for making the most of your time in the park. Use the map in the park brochure for locations.

Spruce Canyon Trail

- Attend an evening program
The free Morefield Campground Evening Program offers a variety of topics on both natural and cultural history. See page 4 for details and times.

Accessibility

Due to elevation and the nature of cliff dwellings, many of Mesa Verde's premier sites are difficult to access. Cliff Palace, Balcony House, and Long House are strenuous and include ladders, uneven steps, and elevation changes. However, many cliff dwellings and mesa top sites are visible from overlooks, short paved trails, and from your vehicle.

Ask for an Accessibility handout.

Be Prepared and Have a Safe Visit

Plan ahead

Before taking any tour or trail, plan ahead and consider your limits. At 7,000 feet (2135 m) elevation, you may feel short of breath, nauseated, or tire easily.

Wear sturdy shoes or boots. Bring and drink plenty of water. Shade is limited throughout much of the park, so bring a hat and sunscreen.

Visit a cliff dwelling safely

Trails into cliff dwellings are uneven and steep, with steps, ladders, cliff edges, tight passages, and strenuous elevation changes. Visiting cliff dwellings is not recommended for anyone with heart or respiratory problems or other physical limitations. You can view many cliff dwellings from roadway overlooks.

Water is vital

Dehydration is a common problem in Mesa Verde. Carry water with you everywhere, and drink it. You can fill reusable water bottles at all park facilities, including Cliff Palace and Wetherill Mesa Kiosk.

Wildlife

Chasing, capturing, feeding, or teasing wildlife is illegal and dangerous. Keep your food, coolers, cooking equipment, and garbage secured in your vehicle or hard-sided trailer.

Wildfire

Help us prevent human-caused fires by being very careful with matches, cigarettes, and campfires. Fireworks are prohibited.

Exploring on Your Own - No Fee

Mesa Top Loop Road

The Mesa Top Loop Road is a 6-mile (10 km) drive that is a tour through time. Along the road, you'll find short, easily-accessible paved trails to view twelve archeological sites, including surface sites and overlooks of cliff dwellings — the ancient homes and villages of the Ancestral Pueblo people who lived here for more than 700 years.

Highlights include Square Tower House Overlook, and views of Cliff Palace from Sun Point View and Sun Temple. The Mesa Top Loop Road is open daily, 8:00 am to sunset.

Chapin Mesa Archeological Museum

Dioramas, artifacts, and exhibits provide insight into Ancestral Pueblo people's lifeways. A 25-minute orientation film is shown on the hour and half-hour. A museum store, water, restrooms, cafe, gift shop, and post office are located nearby. See page 1 for hours.

Spruce Tree House

Mesa Verde's best-preserved and third largest cliff dwelling was constructed between 1211 and 1278. Built into a natural alcove, it has 130 rooms, eight kivas, and may have housed 60 to 80 people.

Although Spruce Tree House is closed due to recent rockfalls (see page 7), you can observe the cliff dwelling from viewpoints near the Museum.

- Graffiti is destructive and illegal in a national park. Take a selfie instead!

Far View Sites

This mesa top community includes Far View House, four other villages, and a dry reservoir. In ancient times, the community was a place of modest homes interspersed with small farm fields. It was a place filled with people, vibrant life, and constant change. As you follow the woodland trail among the six sites, read the trailside signs to learn about Ancestral Pueblo life in the surrounding landscape between 900 to 1300 CE.

Why We Are Here: Preserving Your National Park

While visiting the park, you may see people working in archeological sites or out on the park’s landscape. They are members of Mesa Verde’s resource staff, or one of our many cooperating scientists, researchers, or volunteers. The significance of Mesa Verde National Park lies in the number and remarkable state of preservation of its archeological resources, as well as its diverse array of natural resources including its plants and animals. Ensuring these resources are protected for you and future generations to enjoy is why we are here.

Cultural Resources

Mesa Verde is best known for its cliff dwellings, but it also offers evidence of rich cultural traditions extending back many centuries before the Ancestral Pueblo built these magnificent structures. The cultural resource program at Mesa Verde focuses on the preservation of these archeological resources. They identify and document the attributes of each artifact, feature, and site. They then determine and implement the best preservation treatment needed.

Cultural resource staff perform the preservation treatments needed to preserve the park’s heritage resources in perpetuity. Here, a resource specialist rappels down a cliff face to lay silicon driplines. The driplines will direct runoff away from fragile architecture.

Current Preservation Projects

Spruce Tree House was closed in 2015 due to the danger of rocks falling from the cliff face above it, to the public trail below. The park has been working with a geotechnical engineering firm to find ways to stabilize the rock in that area. The firm made a final site visit last October to complete their assessment. Since additional rock falls occurred in early 2018, they also checked those areas for any possible new issues. Data from their visit will be used to refine the firm’s analysis and recommended stabilization alternatives for the park.

Cliff Palace has been the focus of ongoing structural stabilization work since 2011 due to extensive cracking and wall deformation in the southern half of the site. Most of the work to restore the trails, retaining walls, and 10 kivas has been completed. The engineering analysis of the slope movement is still ongoing.

These and other cultural resource projects ensure that park resources are maintained for the enjoyment and education of the public and for contemporary Native American peoples who hold these places as sacred.

Natural Resources

Although the park’s archeology is world renowned, less well known are the park’s natural resources. Mesa Verde is a hot spot for rare endemic plant species that grow nowhere else in the world. Many of these rare plants, such as the Chapin Mesa milkvetch, are associated with old-growth pinyon-juniper woodlands that dominate much of the park’s natural communities. Multiple springs and seeps dot the landscape and provide water to support a diversity of plants and wildlife in an arid environment.

These important natural resources are inventoried, documented, assessed and monitored by natural resources staff. When the condition of these resources deteriorates or natural processes are altered such as from introduction of invasive species or more frequent wildfires associated with climate change, then the park’s natural resource staff work to restore natural conditions and processes.

Mesa Verde’s natural resource staff control invasive weeds, restore degraded and disturbed areas, recover rare plant populations and work to create resilient natural communities. Here, invasive musk thistle seedlings are choking out a rare, Chapin Mesa milkvetch.

The park is a slice of the Rocky Mountains when it comes to wildlife species. The park sits on the edge of the Rockies and the high desert Colorado Plateau. Its diverse vegetation communities provide habitat for healthy populations of elk, black bear, mule deer, mountain lions, golden eagles, peregrine falcons, and over 100 other bird species.

Because of the park’s popularity and it’s relatively small size, natural resource staff continually examine ways to maintain park wildlife, reduce human-wildlife conflicts, and examine opportunities to restore native wildlife to the park. Here, one of the park’s motion-detecting wildlife cameras caught two bull elk in action.

Current and possible future projects to restore native species to Mesa Verde include species such as sharp-tail grouse, beavers, round-tail chub, and bighorn sheep.

Help Us Protect Black Bears

Black bears have a natural curiosity, but are usually wary enough of humans to keep their distance. But over time, a bear’s natural behavior can be altered and increase the chance of a human-bear encounter. Why? Because intentionally or unintentionally, people feeding bears can lead bears to become habituated to people and their food. They may become aggressive as they return looking for more food, threatening humans and property.

What attracts them? Food or drinks; toiletries or other scented items; trash and recycling; and even empty coolers or water containers.

Keep wildlife wild. Please don’t be one of the reasons a wildlife biologist must do the last thing in the world they want to do—put down a habituated bear.

Here’s What You Should Do

- Store all food, trash, toiletries, or other scented items out-of-sight in a hard-sided, locked vehicle, camper, or food locker. Do not store these items in a tent or soft-sided pop-up trailer.
- Help bears maintain a healthy fear of humans. Stay at least 100 yards (91 m) away to watch or photograph them. If you see a bear close, yell at it, and make as much noise as possible to scare it away (but do not chase it).
- Secure all trash in a park trash can and ensure the lid is locked.
- Report all bear sightings to the camp store, lodge staff, or park ranger.
