SIGNIFICANCE Eligible under Nat. Reg. Criterion A: for its association with recreational development in the North Cascades, and under Criterion C: as an example of a distinct type and method of construction. This is a good example of pre-WW II residential log cabin construction in the park. It incorporates the ethics of rustic architecture in its use of native/natural materials, combination of textures, and siting on the land. It possesses integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association. It is also associated with an early Stehekin Valley resident who built several log cabins and other structures at Stehekin Landing.
