The All New! Outerwear Layering System

The hip-length parka and the Gore-Tex® shell have been redesigned to become the Hip-Length Gore-Tex® Shell. This garment incorporates the new Gore-Tex® construction and an inside zipper track to accommodate either the Hip-Length Thinsulate™ Liner or the Hip-Length Goosedown Liner.

The waist-length parka has been redesigned to become the Waist-Length Gore-Tex® Shell with an inside zipper track which accommodates the Waist-Length Thinsulate™ Liner.

The Insulated or Uninsulated Hood snaps onto the collar of both the Hip-Length and the Waist-Length Gore-Tex® Shell.

The Vest has been redesigned for greater versatility, warmth, and comfort with fuller fit and a stand-up collar.

Numerous layering combinations are NPS approved from this excellent outerwear system to meet your job needs.

The National Park Service Traditional Uniform Color

Getting back to the traditional "National Park Service Green" is part of the continuing effort to maintain the integrity of the Park Service uniform. Over the years, some items have shifted in color due to the way the new fabrics absorb dye. Extra effort and focus now allow us to return to colors that are closer to the original green shade of the NPS uniform.

When you buy new items to wear with garments you already own (such as a new insulated hood for your existing uniform parka), the new item will be a different shade.

As you replace older items with new components in the traditional NPS green, all items will match.

You will find a shade difference when you order these versatile new outerwear items.
