| SIGNIFICANCE (architectural and historical, include original use of structure)Constructed around 1936, this boathouse was probably the last structure built in thecomplex. It stands near the site of an earlier structure that possibly served the samefunction. The boathouse is an integral part of the Rosemary ensemble, contributes to theoverall character of the rustic resort, and possesses integrity of design, materials,workmanship, location, setting, feeling and association. |                                                                                 |                                                                         |
