About our United States Park Police 225th Badge

At the center of this 225th anniversary badge is the current USPP badge and insignia, with our core values clearly emblazoned [INTEGRITY~ HONOR ~ SERVICE]. A horizontal gold ribbon through the center depicts our years of service 1791 to 2016. Symbols of our three geographic areas surround the insignia all framed in the shape of one of our historic badges. The left border is the American flag and the right border is the National Police Week flag. The bottom border is an eagle with spread wings, and the top is bordered by 13 gold stars, symbolizing the 13 USPP HEROES who have paid the ultimate sacrifice. This badge embodies the essence of this organization. We are proud of who we are and what we represent. This is the foundation of our future.

Mission

We, the United States Park Police, support and further the mission and goals of the Department of the Interior and the National Park Service by providing quality law enforcement to safeguard lives, protect our national treasures and symbols of democracy, and preserve the natural and cultural resources entrusted to us.

- ♦ Ensuring citizens are free to safely exercise their constitutionally protected rights.
- ♦ Providing all employees the opportunity to grow, receive recognition, and thrive with pride within our organization.

Values

We, the members of the United States Park Police, believe that integrity, honor and service are the foundation of everything we do. We insist on fairness and responsibility in all facets of our professional and personal conduct and demand the highest standards of ethical behavior.

We are dedicated to protecting human life and to providing quality service to the public, the National Park Service, and the Department of the Interior.

We meet community needs with sensitivity, professionalism, and we hold ourselves accountable to each other and to the citizens we serve.

Message from the Chief

The United States Park Police has been providing law enforcement services to diverse and emerging communities since the 18th century and has been a proud member of the National Park Service since 1933. Organizationally, the USPP reports to the Associate Director, Visitor and Resource Protection Directorate within the Washington Support Office (WASO). Our success is based upon the sanctity and preservation of our nation's civil liberties and our enduring commitment to evolve with the growth of our nation and its communities. Today, law enforcement organizations across this nation are adapting to societal demands.

The President's "21st Century Policing" report identifies the expectations of law enforcement by today's society in building legitimacy and trust with all of the communities that we serve. The National Park Service Director's "A Call to Action" further guides our organization in adapting to the opportunities of this century in: 1) protecting our visitors and employees; 2) protecting the resources entrusted to us; 3) and enhancing the visitor experience; all of which will create the next generation of stewardship.

We have developed this strategic plan, with your assistance, to address the current and future needs of the communities and resources we protect and the people we serve. The Strategic Plan has been informed by the many perspectives of our diverse constituency of stakeholders and it will guide us as we pursue our mission over the next five years.

Strategic Plan

The United States Park Police is proud of its long and honorable history, firmly established in visitor and resource protection since 1791. Just as the first Park Watch provided protection for symbolic areas, assisted those in need, and prevented and investigated criminal activity, our employees of today maintain the same mission and values. Over time, our jurisdiction and responsibilities have significantly increased as the Nation's Capital grew and as we expanded geographically to provide the same level of service to the Icons and national parks in the New York City and San Francisco metropolitan areas.

While our mission and values have not significantly changed, the United States Park Police as an organization, must continually adjust its strategic direction/vision to ensure we are evolving in a way which allows us to ensure legitimacy and trust within the communities we serve. Our strategic plan is how we accomplish this important task and how we remain a relevant and contemporary organization. By bringing together a diverse committee of internal and external stakeholders, we are able to determine the path forward for our organization over the next five years.

From Strategic Planning to Strategic Results

Our Strategic Plan begins with a vision of the ideal future of the Force. Within this vision comes broad reaching themes that show where we will focus our efforts. These areas are where we must excel to achieve success. During the Strategic Planning process, three major themes that incorporate the ideal direction of the Force emerged: Enhanced Public Service and Engagement Effective Use of Relevant Technology Support and Development of the Workforce.

To further define these themes of success, a series of goals were developed.

- ◆ Each goal statement describes the future desired state of the Force and is supported by actionable steps to make them a reality. These actionable steps are achievable and demonstrate the tangible success of our Strategic Planning efforts.
- ◆ Tier 1 actions are short term actions that are critical to successfully moving towards our goals. Tier 2 actions build upon the success of Tier 1 goals and provide long term plans for turning our goals into reality.
