

Map Exhibition Opens In Maritime Museum

BY ELIZABETH CANDELARIO, EXHIBITION COORDINATOR

"Mapping the Pacific Coast," which showcases 45 magnificent maps, books and illustrations dated 1544 through 1802, represents a perfect exhibit for San Francisco Maritime. Inviting visitors on a voyage beginning with the very first exploration of the West Coast by Europeans, this world class exhibition represents the accumulation of knowledge leading to Thomas Jefferson's commission of Lewis and Clark's Corps of Discovery.

"Mapping the Pacific Coast" traces many of the greatest adventures in history, including dangerous ocean voyages by Spanish, French, English and Russian explorers, the race to discover the Northwest Passage, sightings of "sea monsters," and the very first contacts between native Americans and Europeans. Many of the documents included in the exhibition tell dramatic stories in their own right, with references to explorers such as Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, Sir Francis Drake, and Captain James Cook, all of whom left their mark on the Pacific Coast. These historic stories are told through original maps of the time and illustrations- the earliest being woodcuts and the majority being copperplate engravings, many in original hand color.

The later exhibition maps from the 18th century record explorations by fur traders along the West Coast and explorer Alexander Mackenzie's trek from the Atlantic to the Pacific ending in 1793. These journeys and the maps that display them helped convince President Thomas Jefferson to commission Lewis and Clark to explore the overland route to the West Coast and strengthen the American claim to the Pacific Northwest.

The exhibition is further enhanced by an audio tour of selected maps personally narrated by collector Henry Wendt. It is accompanied by a beautifully printed and illustrated catalog further describing each map and document in the exhibit.

"Mapping the Pacific Coast" first opened at the Sonoma County Museum in 2004, and has been on tour around the country. Other venues have included the Mystic Seaport Museum and the Maritime Museum of San Diego. Following its exhibition in San Francisco, it will move to the Columbia River Maritime Museum, its permanent home. Go to www.mappingthepacificcoast.com for additional information.

The exhibit is opening on July 1, 2011 in the Maritime Museum located at 900 Beach Street at the foot of Polk Street in San Francisco. The museum is free and open everyday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Please call 415-447-5000 for more information. The exhibit will close on October 31, 2011.

Compare and contrast two nautical charts of San Francisco Bay. If you were sailing through the Golden Gate which map would you use?

Welcome

You might be hard pressed to experience all we have to offer on a seven-day "boarding pass" this summer—but I encourage you to try! You could start on weekend mornings in the Argonaut Hotel lobby with a ranger-led waterfront walking tour that traces the area's history from the Gold Rush village to National Park.

If sailing sounds better than walking, our 1891 scow schooner Alma resumes her schedule of three-hour, ranger-led Bay explorations starting from Hyde Street Pier. We guarantee the best City and Golden Gate views from any sailing National Historic Landmark!

Starting on July 1, you can discover "Mapping the Pacific Coast," a fascinating exhibit focusing on the 1544-1802 period of West Coast exploration. This colorful collection of woodcuts and copperplate engravings is presented free in the Maritime Museum's unique Prismarium gallery.

And for armchair explorers, the Maritime Library offers a refreshing dip into the ocean of recorded maritime culture. Our librarians will welcome you aboard Tuesday–Thursday afternoons in Fort Mason Center's Building E. But beware, they just might shanghai you into a lifelong literary voyage!

San Francisco Maritime National Historical Park

Established in 1988, San Francisco Maritime National Historical Park encompasses 34 acres, and contains the most National Historic Landmarks of any unit in the National Park Service. In addition to the fleet of historic ships at Hyde Street Pier, the park includes the Aquatic Park Historic District (Maritime Museum, beach, lawn area, and bocce ball courts), a Visitor Center and a research library (in Fort Mason Center).

The Sloop Yacht Kathleen Joins the Collection

BY STEPHEN CANRIGHT, PARK CURATOR, MARITIME HISTORY

The Park has recently accepted the donation of the forty-foot sloop Kathleen, built as a yacht near Fisherman’s Wharf by Salvatore Pasquinnucci in 1904. She is believed to be the second oldest yacht on San Francisco Bay. Owned initially by Corinthian Yacht Club member Frank Raymond, the Kathleen has spent 107 years as a pleasure boat on the Bay. She was owned since the 1960s by the Smith Family of Mill Valley, California, and was donated to the Park by Hap Smith.

Although built in the early 20th century, the Kathleen is a classic example of the 19th century American national yacht type. This type of centerboard sloop yacht was developed in New York City in the 1840s, the design evolving from local fishing boats noted for their speed under sail. As this class of boat was developed for racing and cruising, its popularity spread throughout the nation.

The design was characterized by a wide and shallow hull. Introduced to San Francisco Bay in the 1850s, the sloops worked well on the shallow waters of the Bay and Delta. The popularity of the sloop grew, as more prosperous urban yachtsmen cruised and raced the craft.

The most radical design of this type, seen mostly in New York, were called “sand-baggers.” In their quest to go faster and win the race these boats flew enormous areas of sail on the relatively small and light hulls. Even in light winds, crews had to shift sandbags from one side to the other to keep the boat from capsizing.

A year ago youngsters from the Willie Mays Boys and Girls Clubs of San Francisco designed and planted a California native plant garden in Aquatic Park. This is a photo of the garden this May!

Thanks to a grant from the National Park Foundation, we are hosting a First Bloom project to create native plant landscapes at the Park. Although this was the first First Bloom project at San Francisco Maritime, the program began in 2007. Since then it has blossomed into a national initiative at 26 parks across the country that serves children and families from urban neighborhoods.

We are now into our second year and this past February, fourth graders from Yick Wo Elementary School in San Francisco planted another garden adjacent to this one. Park employees, volunteers, students, chaperones, and parents have all pitched in to make this garden a success.

The San Francisco Yacht Club was established in the late 1860s and many of those yachtsmen cruised and raced this class of boat. The Kathleen was connected with several local yacht clubs over the years, including the Vallejo and Palo Alto clubs.

In the 1930s an engine was installed and a ballast keel replaced the centerboard. Around 1960, her aging hull was sheathed in thin plywood and fiberglass. The original hull has thus been hidden away, untouched, for more than fifty years.

The sloop has recently been hauled out of the water and carefully cradled to retain the shape of the hull. The sheathing will be removed and the condition of her hull documented and assessed, and depending on the findings, the hull will be restored or replicated. In the future we anticipate that some of the restoration work will take place in the Small Craft shed area on Hyde Street Pier, and hope to coordinate this effort with the America’s Cup race coming to San Francisco Bay in 2013.

Alma sails on San Francisco Bay during June, July, and August. Take in dazzling views of the city scape and the Golden Gate while park rangers tell stories about waterfront history.

Tickets prices are $40 for adults, $30 for seniors, and $20 for children ages 6–15. Children age five and under ride for free. All children must be accompanied by an adult. The vessel departs promptly from Hyde Street Pier at 12:30 pm and returns at 4 pm. Alma sails June 4, 11, 25, 30; July 2, 7, 9, 14, 16, 21, 23, 28, 30; August 4, 6, 11, 13, 18, 20, 25.

For information, please call 415-447-5000. Go to www.nps.gov/safr/historyculture/alma.htm to learn about Alma's history.

Join a park ranger for a tour of this Balao-class submarine (SS-38). Now a museum and memorial, the vessel made six patrols in the Pacific during WWII. The tour will emphasize stories about dramatic events during those patrols.

MODEL MAKING WORKSHOP
Saturday mornings, on Eureka. Vessel admission (under 16 free).
The Hyde Street Pier model-making shipwrights maintain a workshop on Eureka.

Stop by to talk with members and see their works-in-progress. Contact kanebulota@comcast.net for more information.

COSTUMED LIVING HISTORY

A DAY IN THE LIFE: 1901
Saturdays, June 11, July 9, and August 13, NOON-4PM. Aboard the historic vessels at Hyde Street Pier. Vessel admission (under 16 free). Reservations are required, please call 415-447-5000.

Step into the past as you board the historic ships and meet the sailors and citizens of San Francisco's waterfront. Help the sailors on Balclutha raise the staysail and join the musical fun at the dogwatch. Visit the ship's cook in the galley, learn about life in 1901 from ferry passengers on Eureka, or join Mrs. Galan on the Ark houseboat for afternoon tea to discuss the issues of the day. In June, come hear notable figures of 1901 at a Chautauqua. In July, witness a dramatic re-creation of the 1901 labor strike that shook the San Francisco waterfront. ☺

IN THE LIBRARY

The Maritime Library, located in Building E, Fort Mason Center, is open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 1pm to 5pm. Call 415-561-7030 and go to <http://www.nps.gov/safr/historyculture/museum-collections.htm> for more information.

VOLUNTEERING AT SAN FRANCISCO MARITIME

Have you thought about volunteering? Retired, and enjoy talking with people from all over the world in a beautiful setting? A recent grad looking for some on-the-job experience? In school and looking for some meaningful community service opportunities?

People of all ages and interests volunteer at the park. Sign up to receive the new Volunteer Newsletter and find out about summer volunteer events. Call Terry or Darren in the Volunteer Office, located on Hyde Street Pier, to receive a copy, 415-561-7160. After reading it you will know what a baggywinkle is, what kind of stone to scrub a wooden deck with, and which way to go on a ship when the captain yells "abaft!"

Paul La Chapelle has been a volunteer for five years. Here he is scraping the railings on Hyde Street Pier before he applies a fresh coat of paint.

MUSIC

CHANTEY SING
Saturdays, June 4, July 2, and August 6, 8PM-MIDNIGHT. Free. Aboard a historic vessel at Hyde Street Pier. Reservations are required: call 415-561-7171 or email peter_kasin@nps.gov.
Sing traditional working songs aboard a historic floating vessel. Bring a mug for hot cider served from the ship's galley.

MUSIC OF THE SEA FOR KIDS
Saturdays, June 18, July 16 and August 20, 3PM. Aboard Balclutha at Hyde Street Pier. Vessel admission (under 16 free).
History comes alive for kids in this special program, where the songs are geared for younger ears and chosen especially for fun. Ages 7 and up. ☺

Yes, it's true! The Sea Music Concert Series returns for another season this fall aboard the historic ships at Hyde Street Pier.

Start looking forward to lively, foot-tapping, seafaring musical experiences this September 24 with The Cutters, October 15 features David Coffin, and local favorites Holdstock and Macleod return November 19.

Call the Visitor Center information desk for ticket information, 415-447-5000.

Compare and Contrast

Here are two small sections of nautical charts showing the entrance to San Francisco Bay. The one on the bottom was published in 1983, 100 years after the one on the top. Of course maps and charts of the same place change over time. Did you see the map on the first page that shows California as an island? Back in the 1600s that was what map makers believed was true. That mistake persisted on some maps for almost 200 years!

Do you use maps? Have you ever drawn a map of your house or bedroom? Have you ever used a treasure map and found where X marked the spot? You might even be holding a small rectangle in your hand that can connect you to a digital map of anywhere in the world. Maps are made to serve different purposes. These charts were drawn to assist mariners piloting their craft in the waters around San Francisco.

A quick look at these two charts suggests that they look pretty similar, but look closely. See if you can spot at least ten differences.
