DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Preservation recommended

This log cabin appears to have initially consisted of the main portion and to have had added a smaller log cabin at the east end.

The overall dimensions of the cabin is 45' x 15', including the addition. It is covered with a shingle roof. An alligator cypress grows beside the east addition and the roof overhang has been built around the tree's trunk.

The logs were apparently chinked with wood and adobe, but in more recent years some of the adobe has been replaced with cement.

The interior of the cabin is divided into four rooms. The interior walls are made of a celotex-type material and painted. The ceiling is headed and painted, and the floor appears to be made of tongue and groove lumber and is oiled. Bracing has been placed on the interior of the cabin to keep it from falling over.

Generally, the cabin is in poor condition; the west end is sinking into the ground.

Outside the cabin is a cistern, and a terraced area contains stone walks, a birdbath and flower beds. A concrete walk runs up to and along the front of the cabin.

Boundary: The historic land embraced in this site is a square formed by using the cabin as a center point and going out 200 feet to the north, 200 feet to the east, 200 feet to the south, and 200 feet to the west.

Class VI land: 3.6 acres

Cost: $10,000 (estimate)

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

3rd Order

This log cabin built in 1904, served as the first headquarters and museum for the monument when it was still part of the National Forest. The visitors planning to tour the cliff dwelling ruins began their hike from this point. The cabin also served as living quarters for the custodian.

Today, this cabin is one of the oldest surviving log structures in this vicinity of the State of Arizona. But more important as the first and long-time headquarters and museum for the monument and quarters for the park's protector, it is significant in the administrative history of Walnut Canyon National Monument.
