■ RECYCLING UPDATE

Glasphalt Replaces Asphalt

from the Concessions Management Office

What is the deal with the glashalt parking lot between the headquarters Admin building and the Canteen? Well, last fall an attempt was made to use some of the glass we recycle in the park....and it worked!

The recycling partnership between TW Recreational Services, Inc. (TWRS), Hamilton Stores, Inc. and the Park Service was created to enhance the recycling efforts in the park. As you probably know, TWRS's contract with the Park Service requires them to participate in a recycling program. TWRS and NPS work together in collecting used glass. Normally, this glass is brought to TW's recycling center in Gardiner, crushed, and hauled to a recycling center in Billings. Money generated by turning in glass to the Billings center does not even offset the transportation costs. Therefore, what better way to save money than to recycle the material right here in the park? Thus, the rebirth of glasphalt.

Rebirth, you ask? Yes, NPS Maintenance division says the use of glasphalt was attempted about 25 years ago in the park. It was not a success. Today, they believe the correct ratios have been achieved.

Within the glasphalt mixture, recycled glass substitutes for material that would have been mined. This glass replaces 3% of the aggregate used in asphalt. The paving of the Canteen parking lot used 18,000 pounds, or 35,556 Coke bottles!

Since the glasphalt parking lot endured the test period successfully, selected future paving projects (parking lots, driveways and secondary roads) will include glasphalt.

■ FEDERAL WOMEN'S PROGRAM

Take Our Daughters to Work Day--A Success

Fifteen seventh and eighth grade girls from Mammoth, Gardiner and Livingston learned a little bit more about National Park Service jobs and about meeting their own potential on the Second Annual "Take Our Daughters to Work Day," Thursday, April 28.

Sponsored locally by the Federal Women's Program, the day included a worksite tour of eight different locations, a Brown Bag Lunch with various NPS employees, and a motivational speech by Marcia Blaszak. The Gardiner

DAUGHTERS, con't

School cooperated with coordination and transportation. Park Service employees who shared their work experiences, presented hands on props, and answered questions included Lisa Pottebaum (Fire Cache), Jill Harting (GIS Lab), Ann Rodman (Soil Science Lab), Bonnie Gafney and canine Sarena (for Law Enforcement/Search and Rescue at the Jail), Terry Eddington (Carpenter Shop for House Restoration), Elsa Kortge (Curator's Office), Kat Gonzales (Communications Center) and Lori Wilkinson and Nancy Tyson (ADP).

Marcia Blaszk, keynote speaker at the brown bag luncheon, offered inspiring comments about women's employment choices, options, and achievements. "Be true to yourself," she advised the young women.

Sleeping Giant Middle School (Livingston) student Michelle Reinhart went on to "shadow" her dad, Dale, at work in the afternoon. In general, the girls said that the morning was both fun and interesting.

"Take Our Daughters to Work Day" occurs annually and is targeted for young women ages 9-15. Start planning for the future!

Wolf Reintroduction Final EIS Hits the Streets

After holding numerous meetings and hearings, and receiving over 160,000 public comments, the final Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) on reintroducing the wolf to Yellowstone National Park and central Idaho was released to the public by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on May 4. After a 30 day review period, the Director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, George Frampton, may sign the Record of Decision at which time the preferred alternative may be put into action.

With a few modifications to the draft EIS, the preferred alternative of the EIS is to return wolves to Yellowstone and Idaho as "experimental non-essential populations". For more information, contact the Public Affairs Office at 344-2013.

Visitors Arrested for Collecting Elk Antlers

Early the morning of May 2, Chris Herriford, 22, and James Webb, 24, both of Billings, Montana, were arrested near Mammoth after rangers observed a large number of elk antlers, with an estimated value of $2,000, in the pickup truck they were driving. Felony Lacey Act charges, which provide for fines of up to $250,000, forfeiture of vehicles, and five years in prison for poaching violations, are being considered for the individuals. The men were released later the same day pending formal indictment by the U.S. Grand Jury.

You May Qualify for Bigger Paychecks

Under President Clinton's new tax bill if your family qualifies for the earned income tax credit (EIC), you can increase your monthly take-home pay by signing up for advance earned income credit (AEIC) payments. Families eligible for the maximum amount of EIC could receive an additional $100 per month in their paychecks.

Before 1994 the EIC was received as a credit when you filed your tax return. Starting this year those eligible may receive EIC when taxes are filed or by requesting the Payroll Office add a portion of the credit to each paycheck throughout the year. Eligible families who earn less than $23,775 in 1994 and have one or more children living with them for more than half of the year, could receive up to $2,528 in EIC.

AEIC is a pay increase where everybody wins. You receive more money in your paychecks, and the amount of taxes withheld from your wages does not change. The NPS payroll remains the same because the money you receive under AEIC comes from the monies the NPS already withholds from your paycheck for taxes.

To find out if you qualify for AEIC payments contact the Payroll Office at 344-2051.
